o'clock in the morning of Sunday last, the man-of-war, called the Gloucester, Sir John Berry, Captain, where his Highness was, and a great retinue of noblemen and gentlemen, whereof I was one; the said ship did strike in pieces, and did wholly sink upon the bank of sand, called the Lemon and Oar, about some twelve leagues from Yarmouth. This was occasioned by the wrong calculation and ignorance of a pilot, which put us all in such consternation that we knew not what to do, the Duke, and the whole that were with him, being all in bed when she struck; the helm of the said ship having broke, and the man being killed by the force thereof, at the first stroke. When the Duke had got his clothes on, he inquired how things stood, she being sunk nine feet of water in the hold, and the sea coming in at the gun-ports; and all the seamen and passengers were not at command, every man studying his own safety, forced the Duke to go out at the large window of the cabin, where his little boat was ordered quietly to attend him, lest the passengers and seamen should have thronged so in upon him as to drown the boat; which was accordingly so conveyed as that none but Earl Winton, and the President of the Session (Sir George Gordon, of Haddo, afterwards Earl of Aberdeen), with two of his bed-chamber men (one of these was John Churchill), went with him, but were forced to draw their swords to hold people off. We, seeing his Highness gone, did cause tackle out, with great difficulty, the ship's boat, wherein the Earl of Perth got in, and then I went, by jumping off the shrouds, into the boat; the Earl of Middleton, immediately after me, did jump into the same, upon my shoulders; withal there came the Laird of Touch, with several others, besides the seamen that were to row.

Among them that were left, were my Lord Roxburgh, and Laird Hopetoun, and Mr. Littledale, Roxburgh's servant, and Dr. Levington, the President of the Session's man; all being at the place where I jumped, would not follow, since it seems they concluded more safety to stay in the vessel, than to expose themselves to any other hazard; all which persons, in an instant, were washed off, and all drowned. There perished in this disaster above two hundred persons."

In the same year that he had this miraculous escape, Sir James was elected Lord-Provost of Edinburgh, and again in 1683. He m. Anne, dau. of William Paterson, Esq. of Drumure, Co. Fife, by whom he had several children, but none to attain maturity, save one, Janet, who married Sir William Cunningham, Bart. of Caprington. Sir James, being thus deprived of male issue, made an entail of his estates of Prestonfield, and Corstorphine, in 1689, "to himself and the heirs male of his body: which failing, to the second and younger sons, successively of his dau., Janet, by the said Sir William Cunningham," &c. He also got a Nova Scotia Baronetcy from Queen ANNE, 23 March, 1707, settling the dignity to go according to the entail of his estate. Sir James d. in 1738, and was s. in his estates by his aforesaid dau., to whom s., and to the baronetcy, her son,

II. SIR ALEXANDER DICK, (paternally Cunningham) of Prestonfield. This gentleman, previously to the decease of his brother, had studied medicine, and practised with great repute in the county of Pembroke, as Doctor Alexander Cunningham. In the year 1736, he was unanimously chosen President of the Royal College of Edinburgh; and, for seven years afterwards successively, had the same high honor conferred upon him; at his retirement, the Fellows, as a testimony of the sense which they had entertained of his eminent services, hung up a portrait of the Ex-President in their Hall, a mark of distinction never previously bestowed on any member whatsoever. Sir Alexander m. 1st, in 1736, his cousin, Janet, dau. of Alexander Dick, Esq., by whom he had three daus., and, 2ndly, in 1762, Mary, eldest dau. of David Butler, Esq., Co. FAMILY OF CUNNINGHAM OF CAPRINGTON.

This family is of very great antiquity in North Britain. According to Camden, the Cunnynghames came originally into Scotland from England, with King MALCOLM CANMORE; and he is probably correct, for we find them settled in the shire of Ayr very soon after the time of that monarch. Frederick Van Bussan, a learned Norwegian, who wrote an account of several Scottish families, says that one

Malcolm, son of Friskin, assisted MALCOLM, Prince of Scotland (afterwards King MALCOLM CANMORE), to make his escape from the tyranny of MACBETH, who had murdered his father Duncan; and, being hotly pursued, he took shelter in a barn, where Malcolm concealed the Prince by forking straw over him. The prince eventually made his escape into England, still attended by his faithful Malcolm. Prince MALCOLM was no sooner in possession of his kingdom, after his victory over MACBETH, than he rewarded his preserver by the Thanedom of Cunnynghame, from which his posterity assumed their surnames, and took a sheaf-fork for their arms, with "Over, fork, over." for their motto.

ROBERT DE CUNINGHAME, of Kilmaurs (eldest son of Warneald de Cunyinghame, de Kilmaurs, Co. Ayr), espoused, in 1162, RICHENDA, only dau. of Sir Humphrey de Berkeley, of Gairntully, in Scotland, and was s. by his son,

SIR ROBERT DE CUNINGHAME, of Kilmaurs, whose grandson,

HENRY DE CUNINGHAME, of Kilmaurs, m. Riddle, heiress of Glengarnock, and, dying in 1263, was s. by his son,

SIR WILLIAM CUNINGHAME, of Kilmaurs, who d. 1285, and was s. by his eldest son,

EDWARD CUNINGHAME, of Kilmaurs, who d. 1285, and was s. by his eldest son,

GILBERT CUNINGHAME, of Kilmaurs, who was s. in 1292, by his son,

SIR ROBERT CUNINGHAME, of Kilmaurs, who swore fealty to EDWARD I.; but, declaring afterwards for ROBERT BRUCE, had a charter from that Monarch of the superiority of the lands of Lambrachtoun and Grugere, in Cunyinghame, to be holden of the King, as Alan la Suche, and William de Fereres held the same. He d. 1330, and was s. by his elder son,

SIR WILLIAM CUNINGHAME, of Kilmaurs, who had, by his first wife,

WILLIAM, (Sir) continuator of the line of Kilmaurs, and grandfather of ALEXANDER CUNINGHAME, of Kilmaurs, who was created EARL OF GLENCAIRN, in May, 1488, and fell the next month at Bannockburn.

Thomas, of whom presently.

Sir William espoused 2ndly, ELEANOR BRUCE, Countess of Carrick, and was created, in her right, EARL OF CARRICK: by this lady he appears to have had no issue, and, upon his Lordship's decease, the Earldom of Carrick reverted to the Crown. His 2nd son,

THOMAS CUNINGHAME, was of Braidhead, and, dying in 1385, was s. by his son,

ADAM CUNINGHAME, who m. a dau. of Sir Duncan Wallace, the heiress of Caprington, and dying in 1431, was s. by his son,

SIR ADAM CUNINGHAME, of Caprington, who m. Isabella, dau. of Malcolm Crawford, and, dying in 1500, was s. by his son,

JOHN CUNINGHAME, of Caprington, who m. Annabella, dau. of George Campbell, of Loudon, and widow of Thomas Boswell, of Auchmlech, and was s. by

WILLIAM CUNINGHAME, of Caprington and Broomhill, who m. —, dau. of Sir William Hamilton of Sanquhar, and d. 1590. His 2nd son,

JOHN CUNINGHAME, of Broomhill, m. Eleanor, dau. of Andrew McAdam, of Waterhead, and was s. by his son,

WILLIAM CUNINGHAME, of Broomhill, who m. 1st, Janet, dau. of Patrick Leslie, Lord Lindores, by whom he had fifteen children in nine years (the first, single; four times, twins; and thrice three at each birth): only three daus. however survived. He m. 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of William Sinclair, of Ratter (great-grandfather of William, 10th Earl of Caithness), and 13th in descent from King ROBERT BRUCE. This William Cuninghame was one of the Commissioners for the Covenanters in 1639. He was s. at his decease by his son,

I. SIR JOHN CUNINGHAME, of Lambrughton and Caprington, who was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, 19 Sept., 1689. This gentleman, a very eminent Lawyer, was appointed to plead against the Duke of Lauderdale, before CHARLES II. in council, and succeeded in establishing the mis-government of that nobleman. He m. Margaret, dau. of William Murray, of Polmaise and Touchadam, Co. Stirling; by whom he had two sons and a daughter. He d. 1694, and was s. by his elder son,

1. SIR WILLIAM, who m. Janet, only dau. and heir of Sir James Dick, Bart. of Prestonfield, and had six sons and four daughters. (The title and estate of Prestonfield devolved upon the 3rd son, ALEXANDER, as in the above pedigree of the Dicks.) Sir William d. 1740, and was s. by his eldest son,

III. SIR JOHN. This gentleman, who was esteemed one of the most learned and polished personages of the period in which he lived, spent most of his time in literary retirement, at his Castle of Caprington, (a seat which is said to have belonged to the great Sir William Wallace, and was even then considered ancient). He is reported to have read over, once every year, for the last 30 years of his life, Homer and Ariosto; he was blessed with constant good health, and his faculties continued unimpaired to the last. Sitting at supper, at Caprington, 30 Nov., 1777, with his usual cheerfulness, he was seized with a fit of apoplexy, fell back in his chair, and calmly expired, in the 82nd year of his age. Sir John m. 1749, Lady Elizabeth Montgomery, eldest dau. of Alexander, 9th Earl of Eglinton, and had two sons,

WILLIAM, his successor.

Alexander, an Officer in the Army, d. unm.

He was s. by his elder son,

IV. SIR WILLIAM, b. 19 Dec., 1752; m. 19 Nov., 1799,

Mrs. Grème, and d. without issue, when the Baronetcy devolved upon his cousin, the present SIR ROBERT-KNIGHT DICK, of Prestonfield, the descendant of Alexander Cuninghame, 3rd son of Sir William, the 2nd Bart., who assumed the surname of DICK, upon inheriting the title and estate of Prestonfield. Owing to certain restrictions in the entail of Prestonfield, the Bart. is obliged to retain solely the surname of DICK, otherwise he would add that of CUNINGHAME (originally KUNIGHAM), and he contemplates doing so by the aid of Parliament.

Lineage.

The original surname of this ancient family is said to have been TILTON, assumed from their residence at Tilton, Co. Leicester, and the alteration is supposed to have taken place in 1236, when that abode was abandoned for Digby, Co. Lincoln.

In nearly two centuries afterwards, A.D. 1434, we find

EVERARD DIGBY, Esq. filling the office of High-Sheriff of the Co. of Rutland, and representing that Shire in Parliament. He fell at the battle of Towton, in 1460, fighting under the banner of the unfortunate HENRY VI. He m. Jaqueta, dau. and co-heir of Sir John Ellys, of Devonshire, and left (with one dau.) seven sons, of whom the two eldest were,

Everard, (Sir) Lord of Tilton and Drystoke, ancestor of the celebrated SIR KENNELM DIGBY, Knt., one of the most faithful adherents of the Royal Cause in the Civil War, and an exile in consequence, during CROMWELL's usurpation. This ornament of England, as he has been styled, wrote several learned books, was a great benefactor to the Bodleian Library, by presenting it, in 1633, with a large collection of MSS., recovered the reputation of his family, and rendered it famous throughout the Christian world. He returned to England in 1661, was appointed one of the Council on the first settlement of the Royal Society, and d. at his house in Covent Garden, 11 June, 1665. He m. Venetia, dau. and co-heir of Sir Edward Stanley, K.B. of Tonge Castle, Co. Salop, and left two sons and a daughter.

The second son,

SIR SIMON DIGBY, Knt. of Colleshill, Co. Warwick, having contributed mainly, with his six valiant brothers, to the Earl of Richmond's success at Bosworth, was rewarded, after the accession of HENRY VII., with large grants of lands, and lucrative public employments. Sir Simon m. Alice, dau. and heir of John Walleys, Esq. of East Radston, Co. Devon, and, dying in 1519, was s. by his elder son,

ROBERT, his successor.

George, who was elevated to the Peerage, in 1617, as Baron Digby of Sherborne, and created in 1622, EARL OF BRISTOL. His Lordship was an eminent Statesman, temp JAMES I., and a staunch adherent of the unhappy CHARLES, whom he attended at Edgehill; at the termination of the contest, the Earl was obliged to withdraw into France, having had his estates confiscated, where he d. in 1652. His Lordship's honors expired with his grandson, John, 3rd Earl, in 1694. (See Burke's Extinct and Dormant Peerage.)

The son and heir,

SIR ROBERT DIGBY, Knt., who received that honor from Robert, Earl of Essex, at Dublin, in 1583, represented the Borough of Athy, in Parliament, in 1613, and was called to the Privy-Council. He m. Lettice, dau. and heir of Gerald, Lord Offally, and grandaun. of Gerald, 11th Earl of Kildare. * Robert Digby, the second son of Lord Digby, and his Lordship's eldest dau., Mary, lie interred at Sherborne church, where, on a black marble tablet fixed in the wall, is the following epitaph, by Pope:—

"Go, fair example of untainted youth,
Of modest reason, and pacific truth;
Go, just of worth, in every thought sincere,
Who knew no wish but what the world might hear.
Of gentlest manners, unaffected mind,
Lover of peace, and friend of human kind;
Composed in sufferings, and in joys sedate,
Good without noise, without pretensions great;
Go, live, for heaven's eternal year is thine;
Go, and exalt thy moral to divine.
And thou, too close attendant on his doom,
Blest maid, hast hasten'd to the silent tomb;
Steer the same course, to the same quiet shore,
Not parted long, and now to part no more.
Yet take these tears, mortality's relief,
And, till we share your joys, forgive our grief;
These little rites, a stone and verse, receive,
'Tis all a father, all a friend, can give."

and Miss Jesse Ramsay, went for a walk by the bridge to the Island in the water of Eden. On their return home, apprehensive of being too late for dinner, they resolved to cross the water at the nearest ford, although considerably swelled by the rains, rather than go round by the bridge. Miss Don and Miss Wilson got safely through; but Miss M. Don, in following, was carried down the current, when Miss Ramsay rushed in to her assistance, but without effect. This is all that Miss Ramsay recollected; nor could she even tell how she herself was afterwards saved, for Miss Don and Miss Wilson, there is no doubt, ran in to their aid, and both shared the unfortunate fate of the younger Miss Don. The distracted state of Miss Ramsay, upon getting out of the water, and missing her companions, prevented any discovery of the fatal accident, till, going to cross the Eden bridge, she saw the body of Miss M. Don floating down the river, and immediately gave the alarm, but, alas! too late."

Sir Alexander was s. at his decease by his son,

His Lordship, who is Lord-Lieut. of the Co. of Donegal, s. as 2nd Marquess, on the demise of his father, 5 Jan., 1799.

Lineage.

The surname of the house of Donegal was anciently written Cirencester, and the family appears to have been one of the most eminent in the Co. of Devon; quartering, according to Sir William Pole, in his MS. survey of Devonshire, the arms of the Raleighs, the Beaumonts, the Willingtons, and many other noble families. The first of the family settled in Ireland was

SIR ARTHUR CHICHESTER, Knt., a distinguished military officer (2nd son of Sir John Chichester, Knt., High-Sheriff of Devonshire in 1552 and 1578, and M.P. for the same county in 1553 and 1562, by Gertrude, dau. of Sir William Courtenay, Knt., of Powderham Castle, in the Co. of Devon). In 1525, Sir Arthur commanded 200 foot, at Carrickfergus; and the end of Nov., in the following year, being garrisoned at that place, laid all the country waste within a circumference of twenty miles. In 1603, he was sworn of the Privy-Council; and, in 1604, appointed Lord-Deputy of Ireland, in which year he established two new circuits, sending the first Justices of Assize into Connaught, and reviving the circuit of Munster, which had been discontinued for more than two hundred years, so that the circuits, which had previously been confined to the English pale, thenceforward included the whole kingdom, and with such effect that, in a very short time, there were not found in all the Irish counties so many capital offenders as in the six shires of the Western Circuit in England. Sir Arthur, in consideration of his eminent services, military and civil, obtained considerable grants of land in the province of Ulster, and was elevated to the Peerage of Ireland, 23 Feb., 1612, by the title of Baron Chichester, of Belfast. His Lordship continued in the government of Ireland for ten years successively, and was re-appointed in July, 1613; in which year the harp of Ireland was first marshalled with the arms of England, and has since continued to be impressed upon the coin of the realm. In Nov., 1615, he retired from his high office, and was appointed, in 1616, Lord-High-Treasurer of Ireland. His Lordship chiefly resided at Carrickfergus, where he erected, in 1618, a magnificent mansion, called Joymount. In 1622, he went Ambassador to the Palatinate, and thence to treat of a peace with the Emperor. During his residence at the Imperial Court, being besieged in the city of Mainz, or Mainheim, by Count Tilly, he remonstrated against the violation of the law of nations in besieging an Ambassador; to which Tilly replying that he noticed not his being an Ambassador, his Lordship thus answered the messenger:—"Had my master sent me with as many hundred men as he hath sent me on fruitless messages, your General should have known that I had been a soldier as well as an Ambassador." His Lordship m. Letitia, dau. of Sir John Perrott, sometime Lord Deputy of Ireland, widow of Vaughan Blackham, Esq., and d. in London, 19 Feb., 1624, when, leaving no issue, the Barony expired, while his large estates devolved upon his brother,

SIR EDWARD CHICHESTER, in whose favor the dignity was revived, with the additional honor of Viscount Chichester, of Carrickfergus, 1 April, 1635. His Lordship m. 1st, in 1605, Anne, dau. and heir of John Coplestone, Esq. of Eggesford, Co. Devon, by whom he acquired a large estate, and had two sons and a dau. He espoused, 2ndly, Mary, dau. of — Denham, Esq. of Wortham, in the same shire, but had no other issue. His Lordship d. in 1648, and was s. by his elder son.

ARTHUR, M.P. for the Co. of Antrim, in 1639, who, in consideration of his eminent services against the rebels, when Colonel Chichester, and at the express solicitation of the Marquess of Ormonde, had been elevated to the Peerage of Ireland, 30 March, 1647, as EARL OF DONEGAL, with limitation of the honor to the male descendants of his father. His Lordship was one of the four hostages sent by the Marquis of Ormonde, in 1647, to the English Parliament, as surety for the delivery of Dublin and other garrisons to their commissioners. After the Restoration, he was Governor of Carrickfergus; and, in 1668, his Lordship established a mathematical lecture in the University of Dublin. He m. 1st, Dorcas, dau. of John Hill, Esq. of Honiley, Co. Warwick, by whom he had an only dau., Mary, who m. John St. Leger, Esq. The Earl m. 2ndly, Lady Mary Digby, dau. of John, 1st Earl of Bristol, but by that lady he had no surviving issue; and, 3rdly, Letitia, only surviving dau. of Sir William Hickes, Bart. of Rooksholt, and, by her, left one surviving dau., Anne, who m. 1st, John Butler, Earl Gowran, and, 2ndly, Francis Aungier, Earl of Longford, but had no issue. The Earl of Donegal d. 18 March, 1674, when his honors devolved, according to the limitation, upon his nephew,

SIR ARTHUR CHICHESTER, as 2nd Earl, (eldest son of the Hon. John Chichester, by Mary, youngest dau. of Roger Jones, Viscount Ranelagh.) His Lordship m. Jane, dau. of John Itchingham, of Dunbrody, Co. Wexford, and was s. by his eldest son,

ARTHUR, 3rd Earl. This nobleman, having distinguished himself in the military service of his own country, was appointed, by the Prince of Hesse, in 1704, Major-Gen. of the Spanish forces, and fell 10 April, 1706, at Fort Monjuich. His Lordship's 2nd lady (by the 1st, Lady Barbara Boyle, he had no surviving issue) was Lady Catherine Forbes, dau. of Arthur, Earl of Granard, upon whom the following lines were written by Swift:

Unerring heaven, with bounteous hand,
Has form'd a model for your land,
Whom love endow'd with every grace,
The glory of the Grauard race;
Now destined by the powers divine
The blessing of another line.
Then would you paint a matchless dame,
Whom you'd consign to endless fame?
Invoke not Cynthera's aid,
Nor borrow from the blue-eyed maid;
Nor need you on the graces call;
Take qualities from Donegal.

By this lady he had two sons and six daus.; three of the latter, Jane, Frances, and Henrietta, were unfortunately burnt to death in the House of Belfast, consumed by the carelessness of a servant. His Lordship was s. by his elder son,

ARTHUR, 4th Earl; at whose decease without issue, in 1757, the honors devolved upon his nephew,

ARTHUR, 5th Earl (eldest son of the Hon. John Chichester, M.P. for Belfast in 1745, by Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Sir Richard Newdigate, Bart. of Arbury, Warwickshire), who was created a British Peer by the title of Baron Fishewick, of Fishewick, Co. Stafford, 3 July, 1790, and advanced in the Irish Peerage, 27 June 1791, to the dignities of Earl of Belfast and MARQUESS OF DONEGAL. His Lordship m. 1st, in 1761, Anne, eldest dau. of James, 5th Duke of Hamilton, by Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Edward Spencer, Esq. of Rendlesham, Co. Suffolk, and had issue,

- i. GEORGE-AUGUSTUS, the present Peer.
- ii. Arthur, b. 1771, d. 1784.
- iii. Spencer-Stanley, b. 1775, m. 1795, Harriet, dau. of John, 7th Earl of Galloway, and d. 23 Feb., 1819, leaving

 - 2 George-Augustus-Frederick, in Holy Orders, 3 Anne.
 - 4 Elizabeth, m. 16 Aug., 1822, to William Hanbury, Esq. of Shobden.

Creations.—Baron and Viscount, 1 April, 1625. Earl, 30 March, 1647. Earl and Marquess, 27 June, 1791: (Irish honors.) Baron, (British) 3 July, 1790.

His Lordship s. as 3rd Viscount, on the demise of his father, 8 Nov., 1819.

Lineage.

The ancient family of St. Leger is of French extraction, and derives from

SIR ROBERT SAINT LEGERRE, Knt., as the name was then written, one of the companions in arms of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR; and, according to a tradition in the family, the person who supported that Prince with his arm, when he quitted the ship to land in Sussex. This Sir Robert, having overcome a Pagan Dane, who inhabited the manor of Ulcomb, in Kent, fixed his abode there; and in that place his posterity flourished for many generations. The lineal descendant of Sir Robert,

SIR ARTHUR ST. LEGER, Knt., went first into Ireland in 1537, being appointed by HENRY VIII. one of the Commissioners for letting the Crown Lands there, and, returning into England, was constituted Lord-Deputy of Ireland 7 July, 1540. In 1543, he was recalled to inform the King of his administration of affairs; which gave his Highness such satisfaction that he created him a Knt.-Companion of the Garter, and sent him back Lord-Deputy, in which high office he continued until 1556, serving three Sovereigns, when, being recalled by Queen MARY, he retired to his estate in Kent, and d. there 12 March, 1559. This eminent person has been characterised "as a wise and wary gentleman, a valiant servitor in war, and a good justice in peace, properly learned, and having gravity interlaced with pleasantness." His Grace is the 5th Duke.

Lineage.

The Sackvilles, or Saukevilles, as the name was originally written, have been persons of considerable power, wealth, and influence, ever since the CONQUEST; and the House of Dorset can trace its foundation to

SIR ROBERT DE SAUKEVILLE, Knt., 3rd son of Herbrand de Salkavilla, one of the Chieftains in the Army of the CONQUEROR. From this Robert descended

JOHN SACKVILLE, Esq., Sheriff of the Cos. of Sussex and Surrey, in the 19th, 32nd, and 38th of HENRY VIII., and M.P. for East Greenwich, in 4th and 5th PHILIP and MARY (being the only return ever made by Greenwich prior to the recently passed Reform Act). This John m. Anne, 2nd dau. of Sir William Boleyn, Knt., and aunt of Queen ANNE Boleyn, and had a numerous family; of which the eldest son,

SIR RICHARD SACKVILLE, Knt. was member of the Privy-Council, in the reigns of MARY and ELIZABETH; Chancellor of the Court of Augmentations in the former, and Under-Treasurer of the Exchequer in the latter; M.P. for the Co. Kent, and, subsequently, for the Co. Surrey. Sir Richard m. Winefrede, dau. of Sir John Bruges, Lord-Mayor of the city of London; and, dying in 1536, was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS SACKVILLE, Esq., who was Knighted in the presence of Queen ELIZABETH, by the Duke of Norfolk, 8 June, 1567; and on the same day created a Peer of the Realm, as Baron Buckhurst, of Buckhurst, Co. Sussex. In 1584, his Lordship was appointed LORD-HIGH-TREASURER of England; and on 13 March, 1603-4, was advanced to the dignity of EARL OF DORSET. Of this nobleman, Warton says, "At both Universities (he had been a student of Oxford and Cambridge) he became celebrated as a Latin and English Poet; and he carried his love of poetry, which he seems to have almost solely cultivated, to the Inner Temple. It was now fashionable for every young man of fortune, before he began his travels, or was admitted into Parliament, to be initiated in the study of the law. But, instead of pursuing a science which could not be his profession, and which was unaccommodated to the bias of his genius, he betrayed his predilection to a more pleasing species of literature, by composing the tragedy of 'Gorboduck;' which tragedy was exhibited in the Great Hall of the Inner Temple, by the students of that society, as part of the entertainments of a grand Christmas festival; and, afterwards, before Queen ELIZABETH, at Whitehall, 18 Jan., 1561." At the trial of the unhappy Earl of Essex, this nobleman, then Lord Buckhurst, officiated as Lord-High-Steward of England. His Lordship m. Cecile, dau. of Sir John Baker, Knt. of Sisinghurst; and, dying suddenly, at the council-table at Whitehall, 19 April, 1606, was s. by his eldest son,

ROBERT, 2nd Earl, who enjoyed the family honors but a few months, and, dying 25 Feb., 1608-9, was s. by his eldest son, by Margaret, dau. of Thomas, Duke of Norfolk,

RICHARD, 3rd Earl. His Lordship m. Lady Anne Clifford, dau. and sole heir of George, Earl of Cumberland, by whom he had two daughters,

MARGARET, m. to John, Earl of Thanet.

ISABELLA, m. to James, Earl of Northampton.

He d. in 1624, when the honors devolved upon his brother, EDWARD, 4th Earl, K.G., who m. Mary, dau. and heir of Sir George Curzon, of Croxhall, Co. Derby, and had two sons, RICHARD, his successor.

Edward, m. to Bridget, Baroness Norreys, of Rycote, dau. and heir of Edward Wray, Esq. This gentleman was taken prisoner, and put to death by the Parliamentarians, in 1645. He left no issue.

His Lordship, before he attained the title, was concerned in a fatal duel, which is thus mentioned by Lord Clarendon:—"He entered into a fatal quarrel, upon a subject very unwarrantable, with a young nobleman of Scotland, the Lord Bruce, upon which they both transported themselves into Flanders, and, attended only by two chirurgiens, placed at a distance, and under an obligation not to stir, but at the fall of one of them; they fought under the walls of Antwerp, where the Lord Bruce fell dead upon the place; and Sir Edward Sackville (for so he was then called,) being likewise hurt, retired into the next monastery, which was at hand." His Lordship, for several years after the accession of CHARLES I., was a leading Member of the Government, and the murder of his Royal master preyed so severely upon him that he never afterwards stirred out of his house. He d. 1652, and was s. by his elder, and only surviving, son,

RICHARD, 5th Earl, who m. Lady Frances Cranfield, eldest dau. of Lionel, Earl of Middlesex, and eventually sole heir of her brother, Lionel, 3rd Earl of Middlesex; by whom he had several children. His Lordship d. 1677, and was s. by his eldest son,

CHARLES, K.G., 6th Earl: who was pre-eminently distinguished as an Anacreontic Poet. This nobleman succeeding also, in right of his mother, to the estates of the Earl of Middlesex, had been created, 4 April, 1675, Baron Cranfield, of Cranfield, Co. Bedford, and Earl of Middlesex. His Lordship's 2nd wife was Mary, dau. of James Compton, Earl of Northampton, and by her he had, with a dau. Mary, m. to Henry 2nd Duke of Beaufort, a son and heir. He d. 22 Jan., 1706.

LIONEL-CRANFIELD, K.G., 7th Earl: b. 18 Jan., 1688, created DUKE OF DORSET, 7th June, 1720. His Grace m. 1700, Elizabeth, dau. of Lieut.-Gen. Colyear, and niece of David, Earl of Portmore, by whom (who d. 12 June, 1768,) he had issue, JOHN-FREDERICK, who s. as 8th Duke.

Mary, m. to Sackville, 8th Earl of Thanet.

III. GEORGE, b. 28 Jan., 1715-16, assumed, by Act of Parliament, 16 Feb., 1770, the surname of "GERMAINE," pursuant to the wills of Sir John and Lady Elizabeth

Germaine, of Drayton, Co. Northampton. This nobleman was subsequently distinguished as a soldier and a statesman, under the designation of "Lord George Germaine." In the former character less fortunate, however, than in the latter; having incurred the displeasure of the Commander-in-Chief, Ferdinand, Prince of Brunswick, at the battle of Minden; and being censured by a court-martial, held at his own request, upon returning to England. His Lordship was endowed with extraordinary talents, and filled, subsequently to this unpleasant affair, some of the highest offices in Administration. He was elevated to the Peerage, 11 Feb., 1782, as Baron Butebrooke, and Viscount Sackville. He m. * Sir John Stewart asserted that he had twin sons by the Lady Jane Douglas, born at the house of a Madame le Brun, 10 July, 1748, in the Fauxbourg St. Germain, at Paris, her Ladyship being then in her 51st year. One of these children, Sholto, died an infant, and against the other ARCHIBALD STEWART's inheriting the estates of his maternal uncle, Archibald, Duke of Douglas, on that nobleman's decease, 21 July, 1761, to whom he was returned heir of line and provision, the guardians of James-George (the minor), Duke of Hamilton, instituted a suit-at-law, and the Scottish Courts determined in favor of His Grace; from the decision an appeal was made to the House of Lords, which eventually reversed it and confirmed Sir Archibald in the possession of the Douglas estates. One of the guardians of the Duke, and institutors of the suit, Sir Andrew Stuart, subsequently published, in Jan., 1773, some very strong letters, addressed to Lord Mansfield, arraigning the conduct of his Lordship during the progress of this celebrated litigation, and maintaining the rectitude of the Scottish decision.

DOUGLAS.

DOUGLAS, SIR ROBERT-ANDREW, of Glenbervie, Co. Kincardine; Capt. 12 Regt. of Foot; b. 25 April, 1807; s. as 2nd Bart., at the decease of his father, 22 Nov., 1833; m. 1835, Martha-Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Joshua Rouse, Esq.

Lineage.

If a long line of illustrious ancestors, distinguished by the highest titles of honor, and connected with the most august houses in Europe, can add importance to a name, there is not one in the empire more dignified than that of Douglas. The family has been connected with the first nobles of Scotland, England, and France; and it has intermarried no less than eleven times with the Royal Houses of Scotland, and once with that of England. The traditional, but probably fabulous, account of the origin of the house, is, that about the year 770, in the reign of SOLVATRUS, King of the Scots, one Donald Bene, of the Western Isles, having invaded the Scottish territory, and routed the Royal Army, a man of rank and figure came seasonably, with his friends and followers, to the King's assistance, who then renewed the conflict, and obtained a complete victory over the invader. The King, being desirous of seeing the person who accomplished for him so important a service, that individual was pointed out to the Monarch, by his colour, or complexion, in these words of the old Gaelic, or Celtic language, Sholto du Glas; in English, "Behold the black or swarthy-coloured man;" from which, the story goes, he was named Sholto the Douglas. The King rewarded this hero with grants of lands in the Co. of Lanark, which were denominated Douglas; and hence the family surname. This Sholto is said to have left two sons:—Hugh, ancestor of the Douglasses, in Scotland; and William, progenitor of the Scotti Douglasii, in Italy.

THE HON. SIR WILLIAM DOUGLAS, of Glenbervie, 2nd son of Archibald, 5th, and commonly called the great, Earl of Angus, obtained from his father, in patrimony, the lands and Barony of Braidwood, in Lanarkshire, about the year 1510; and by his marriage with Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Sir John Auchinleck, of Auchinleck, Co. Ayr, acquired the lands and Barony of Glenbervie, in the shire of Kincardine; which became, subsequently, the principal seat of the family; and in consequence of this marriage, Sir William and his posterity have ever since continued to quarter the arms of Auchinleck with their own. Sir William, with his brother, the Hon. George Douglas, fell at the fatal battle of Flodden Field, in 1513, and left an only son,

SIR ARCHIBALD DOUGLAS, Knt.; whose eldest son,

SIR WILLIAM DOUGLAS, Knt. of Glenbervie, obtained a charter from JAMES V., in 1501, confirming all the ancient privileges of the family of Douglas, namely—The first vote in Council, or Parliament; to be the King's Hereditary Lieutenant; to have the lending of the Lan of the Army in the day of battle; and to carry the Crown at Coronations; to himself and his heirs male. All these were again confirmed by a charter under the Great-Seal, in 1602. Sir William, upon the demise of Archibald, the 8th Earl, of Angus, without male issue, succeeded to the Earldom as heir male, and became the 9th Earl. His Lordship m. Giles, dau. of Sir Robert Graham, of Morphy, by whom he had six sons and daus.; and, at his decease, bequeathed to his 2nd son,

The family of Downes, from which the present Peer maternally descends, and through which he inherits the peerage, appears to have been of considerable antiquity in the Co. of Suffolk: its progenitors having been seated there so far back as the 14th century. From this root branches subsequently spread into Norfolk and Northampton.

SIR MOYSES HILL, Knt. (descended from the family of Hill, of Devonshire, two members of which were Judges of England in the beginning of the 15th century, and one Lord Mayor of London, anno 1484), went over to Ireland, as a Military Officer, with the Earl of Essex, in 1573, to suppress O'Neil's rebellion; and was subsequently appointed Governor of Oldfleet Castle, an important fortress at the period, as it protected the harbour of Larne from the Scots. Sir Moses represented the Co. of Antrim in Parliament in 1613, and, having distinguished himself during a long life, both as a soldier and a magistrate, d. in Feb., 1629-30, and was s. by his elder son, PETER HILL, Esq.; but we pass to his younger son, ARTHUR, who eventually inherited the estates, upon the demise of Peter's only son, Francis Hill, Esq., of Hill Hall, without male issue. DRAKE.

DRAKE, SIR FRANCIS HENRY, of Buckland, Co. Devon; b. in Aug., 1756; m. Anne-Frances, dau. of Thomas Maltby, Esq. (of the same family as Doctor Maltby, Bishop of Chichester); s. as 6th Bart. at the decease of his uncle, 24 Feb., 1794.

Lineage.

This family was founded by the celebrated SIR FRANCIS DRAKE, one of the most eminent of the naval heroes who immortalised the reign of ELIZABETH. Born of humble parents, near Tavistock, in 1545, Drake attained the height he eventually achieved by his own enterprising spirit and transcendent merit alone. He was the son of an honest sailor named Edmund Drake, and the eldest of twelve brethren. He had the good fortune, however, of being allied to Sir John Hawkins, and was brought up at the expense, and under the care of that gallant seaman. When eighteen years of age, he appears to have held the situation of Purser of a ship trading to Biscay, and at twenty, he made a voyage to Guinea. The next year he had the honour of being appointed Captain of the Judith, and, in that capacity was in the harbour of St. Juan d'Ulloa, in the Gulph of Mexico, where he behaved most gallantly in the glorious actions under Sir John Hawkins, and returned to England, rich in reputation, but in nothing else. At this period he announced his intention of making reprisals upon the King of Spain, and no sooner proclaimed the project than hundreds volunteered to embark in it. In 1570, he made his first expedition with two ships, the DRAGON and the SWAN; and the next year in the Swan alone, wherein he returned safe, if not rich. And having now means sufficient to perform greater matters, he laid before the public the plan of a more important design against his enemies. This he put into execution 24 March, 1572; on which day he sailed from Plymouth, himself in the PASCHA, of seventy tons' burthen, and his brother, John Drake, in the SWAN, of twenty-five tons, their whole strength consisting of no more than seventy-three men and boys. With this inconsiderable force he attacked, on the 22nd July, the town of NOMBRE DE DIOS, and took it in a few hours by storm. Here, however, he obtained but little plunder, and was obliged eventually to retire to his ships, having been severely wounded in the action. His next attempt was upon Vera Cruz, which he carried and pillaged, and in returning to his vessels fortunately fell in with a string of mules laden with plate, of which he took possession. From this successful expedition he came back to England in Aug. 1573. He subsequently served as a volunteer in Ireland, under Walter, Earl of Essex; and upon his return, was introduced by Sir Christopher Hatton to Queen ELIZABETH, when her Majesty immediately took him under her protection: and he was enabled by her royal favour to undertake, and accomplish, within three years, his celebrated voyage round the world. This famous expedition, consisting of the PELICAN, commanded by Drake himself; the ELIZABETH, Capt. John Winter; the MARY-GOLD, a bark of thirty tons, Capt. John Thomas; the SWAN, a fly-boat of fifty tons, Capt. John Chester; and the CHRISTOPHER, a pinnace of fifteen tons, Capt. Thomas Moon, sailed from Plymouth, 15 Nov., 1577, and returned to the same port, 3 Nov. 1580. In a few months after leaving England, Drake committed what has been termed in gentle language, "the least commendable action of his life," but to which a much more severe description might with justice be applied. Having arrived at PORT ST. JULIAN, 18 June, he took up his abode there for two months, while he made the necessary provision for passing the Straits of Magellan. Here it was, that, on a sudden, having conducted the persons engaged in the service to a desert island, lying in the bay, he called a kind of Council of War, or rather Court Martial, where he exposed his Commission, by which the Queen had granted him the power of life and death, which was delivered with this remarkable expression from her Majesty's own mouth: "We do account, that he, Drake, who strikes at thee, does strike at us." He then laid open with great eloquence (for, though his education was but indifferent, he had a wonderful flow of speech), the cause of the assembly; he proceeded next to charge Mr. John Doughty, who had been second in command during the whole voyage, when Drake was present, and first, in his absence, with plotting the destruction of the undertaking and the murder of its chief. He said, that he had the first notice of this gentleman's bad intentions before he left England; but that he had hoped his behaviour towards him would have extinguished such disposition, if there had been any truth in the information. He then appealed to the whole assembly, and to the accused himself, for his own conduct: he next exposed the practices of the Prisoner, and supported his accusation by papers under Doughty's own hand, to which the accused added a full and free confession. After this, the Captain, or as in the language of those times, he is called, the General, quitted the place, telling the assembly he expected that they should pass a verdict upon the accused, for he would be no judge in his own cause. Camden says that Doughty was tried by a jury, but other accounts affirm that the whole forty persons of which the court was composed adjudged him to death, and gave this in writing under their hands and seals, leaving the time and manner of it to the General. Upon this, Capt. Drake, having maturely weighed the whole matter, presented three points to Mr. Doughty's choice: first, to be executed upon the land where they were; next, to be set ashore on the main land; or lastly, to be sent home to abide the justice of his country. The prisoner desired that he might have until the next day to come to a determination, which was allowed him; and then, giving his reasons for rejecting the two last, he declared that he made the first his choice; and, having received the sacrament with the General, from the hands of Mr. Francis Fletcher, Chaplain to the Fleet, and made a full confession, his head was cut off with an axe by the Provost-Marshal, 2 July, 1578. It is a very remarkable fact, that the same island had been the scene of a precisely similar affair fifty-eight years before, when Magellan caused John de Carthagena, who was joined in Commission with him by the king of Spain, to be hanged under a charge of the same description; and hence it was called the Island of True Justice. Of this very questionable proceeding upon the part of Drake, Camden says, "Some, who pretending to understand things better than others, gave out that Drake had in charge from Leicester, to take off Doughty upon any pretence whatever, because he had reported that the Earl of Essex had been made away with by the cunning practices of that Earl." In this voyage Drake completely surrounded the globe: but his great success, and the immense wealth he brought home, caused many to characterise the expedition as piratical, and as not only a direct violation of all our treaties with Spain, but likewise of our old league with the House of Burgundy. Her Majesty, however, set the question at rest, and raised the gallant and enterprising seaman above the power of his foes; for proceeding to Deptford, 4 April, 1581, she went on board Capt. Drake's ship, where, after dinner, she conferred upon him the honour of Knighthood, and ordered, at the same time, the preservation of the vessel,* that it might remain a monument of Sir Francis's and his country's glory.

In 1588, when the Spanish armada menaced the shores of England, Sir Francis Drake was appointed Vice-Admiral, under Charles, Lord Howard, of Effingham, and

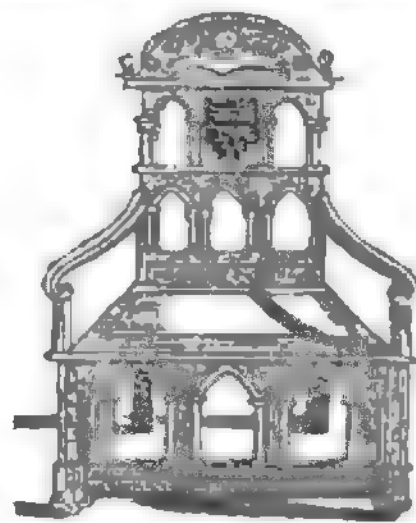

* It is observed by Camden, that when the Queen went to dine on board this celebrated ship (the GOLDEN HIND), there was such a concourse of people, that the wooden bridge over which they passed broke, and upwards of one hundred persons fell into the river; by which accident, however, nobody was hurt; as if, he adds, the ship had been built under some lucky constellation. Upon this occasion, the following verses, made by the Scholars of Winchester College, were nailed to the main-mast.

"Plus ultra, Herculeis inscribas, Drace, Columnis, Et magno, dicas, Hercule major ero."

"Drace, pererrat quem novit terminus orbis,
Quemque simul mundi vidit uterque Polus;
Si taceant homines, facient te sidera notum.
Sol nescit comitis non memor esse sui."

The ship remained for many years an object of public admiration at Deptford, but her timbers falling at length into decay, it was found necessary to break her up, when a chair made out of her planks was presented by John Davies, Esq. to the University of Oxford, upon which the poet COWLEY made the following verses:—

To this great ship which round the world has run,
And match'd in race the chariot of the sun;
This Pythagorean ship (for it may claim,
Without presumption, so deserved a name),
By knowledge once, and transformation now,
In her new shape, this sacred port allow.
Drake and his ship could not have wish'd from Fate
A happier station, or more blest estate.
For lo! a seat of endless rest is given
To her in Oxford, and to him in heaven.

had the good fortune to capture the Great Galleon, commanded by Don Pedro de Valdez, the reputed projector of the enterprise, by which himself and his crew divided 55000 ducats of gold. As Drake's prior expedition to the West Indies, in 1585, when he took the Cities of St. Jago, St. Domingo, Carthagena, and St. Augustin, forms one of the causes of complaint of the Court of Spain, we shall give the very curious Latin verses presented to Queen ELIZABETH by the Spanish Ambassador, setting forth the terms upon which Her Majesty might avert the threatened invasion of her territories;

*Te veto ne pergas bello defendere Belgas
Quæ Dracus eripuit, nunc restituentur oportet:
Quas pater evertit jubeo te condere cellas.
Religio Papæ fac restituatur ad unguam.*

Thus translated by Dr. Fuller.

These to you are our commands:
Send no help to the Netherlands:
Of the treasure took by Drake,
Restitution you must make;
And those abbeys build anew,
Which your father overthrew;
If for any peace you hope,
In all points restore the pope.

To which the Queen extemporaneously replied,

*Ad Græcæ, bone rex, fient mandata calendæ.
Worthy king, know this your will,
At latter lammas we'll fulfil.*

His Lordship inherited the Baronetcy at the decease of his father in 1792, and the Barony on the demise of his kinsman, James Sutherland, Lord Duffus, 30 Jan., 1827. He is the 6th Baron in succession, and the 5th in possession of the dignity.

Lineage.

This is a branch of the noble House of Sutherland, Earls of Sutherland, springing from Kenneth, 3rd Earl of Sutherland, who fell at the battle of Halidon-Hill, in 1333, and left two sons, William, inheritor of the Earldom, and

NICHOL, who m. Mary, dau. and heir of Reginald de Cheyne, and acquired by her the Barony of Duffus, Co. Elgin, when he added the arms of Cheyne to his paternal coat of Sutherland. From this marriage descended

SIR ALEXANDER SUTHERLAND, of Duffus, who was elevated to the Peerage of Scotland, 8 Dec., 1650, by the title of BARON DUFFUS. His Lordship m. four times, but had issue by his 3rd wife (only), Lady Margaret Stewart, dau. of James, 5th Earl of Moray. He d. 1674, and was s. by his only son,

JAMES, 2nd Baron. This nobleman m. Margaret, eldest dau. of Kenneth, 3rd Earl of Seaforth, by whom he had three sons, Kenneth, his heir; Sir James Sutherland (who changed his name to Dunbar, upon marrying Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Sir William Dunbar, Bart., of Hempriggs, and is the immediate ancestor of the present Peer), and William Sutherland of Roscommon. Lord Duffus d. 1705, and was s. by his eldest son,

KENNETH, 3rd Baron. This nobleman, a Naval Officer, was appointed by Queen ANNE to the command of a man-of-war; but being implicated in the Rebellion of 1715, he was obliged to fly the country: taken prisoner, at Hamburg, his Lordship was brought back, and incarcerated in the Tower of London, from which he was released by the Act of Grace, in 1717, and he then withdrew to the Continent, where he served as a Flag Officer in the Russian Fleet. He m. Charlotte, dau. of Erick de Sioblade, Governor and Admiral of Gottenburgh, by whom he had an only son,

ERICK SUTHERLAND, who presented a petition to the King in 1734, setting forth his deceased father's detention at Hamburg, when he was actually on his way to England, to surrender himself in the terms of the statutes and urging, that as he was only prevented from so doing by restraint, he could not be deemed attainted within the meaning of the Act; and that, therefore, the dignity of Baron Duffus had, upon his father's demise, descended to him. The House of Lords, however, upon taking the petition into consideration, resolved that he had no right to the Barony of Duffus. This gentleman, who was an Officer in the Army, m. his first cousin, Elizabeth, 3rd dau. of Sir James Dunbar, of Hempriggs, and was a. at his decease, in 1768, by his eldest son, JAMES SUTHERLAND, b. 8 June, 1747, and restored to the honors of his family, by Act of Parliament, 26 May, 1826. His Lordship dying unm. 30 Jan., 1827, the title and estates devolved upon his cousin, Sir Benjamin Dunbar, of Hempriggs, Bart., the present Baron, whose maternal lineage we shall now detail.

DUNBAR, OF HEMPRIGGS.

There are few families so remotely or distinctly traced as that of Dunbar: by a Genealogical tree, in the possession of the present Lord, the family of Dunbar is minutely laid down for no less a period than 975 years; but it is not requisite here to trace further back than the last heritable Sheriff of Murray.

LODOWICK DUNBAR, from whose seven sons every family of the name extant took its rise. This person, the undoubted chief, was succeeded, for some time, by the lineal descendants of his eldest son; by the male issue failing there, the chiefship and head of the family reverted to the descendant of the Sheriff's 2nd son, Dunbar, of Kilbuich, and became vested in

WILLIAM DUNBAR, of Hempriggs, who was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia about the year 1698. This gentleman m. Margaret, dau. of Alexander Sinclair, of Lathorn, by whom he had one son, Benjamin, (who d. without issue, in the lifetime of his father) and a dau., Elizabeth, upon whom, and her 2nd husband, Sir William entailed his estates after the death of his son. He d. in 1711, when the title reverted to his brother, and with it the chiefship; but the male line again failing with that gentleman's son, Sir Patrick, the title and chiefship reverted to another branch of the family, while the estates of Sir William, according to the deed of entail, devolved upon his daughter,

ELIZABETH DUNBAR, and her 2nd husband (her 1st husband was Sir William Gordon, Bart. of Gordons-town),

I. THE HON JAMES SUTHERLAND, 2nd son of James, 2nd Lord Duffus, who assumed the surname and arms of Dunbar, and being created a Bart. in 1706, became Sir James Dunbar, of Hempriggs. The issue of Sir James's marriage were two sons and four daughters. His 2nd son, James, was killed at Carthage; and the elder,

II. SIR WILLIAM, succeeded to the title and estates. This gentleman m. 1st, in 1744, Elizabeth, dau. of Alexander Dunbar, Esq. of Westfield, by whom he had but one dau., the wife of Capt. Thomas Dunbar, of Grange Hill. He m. 2ndly, Jane, dau. of David Sinclair, of Southdun. By these two marriages, Sir William had no less than twenty-three children, not one of whom, except the lady mentioned above, lived to maturity. He m. 3rdly, Henrietta, dau. of Hugh Rose, Esq. of Kilravock, by whom he left at his decease in 1792, an only surviving dau., Elizabeth, and an only surviving son,

III. SIR BENJAMIN, now Lord Duffus.

His Lordship was subsequently summoned to Parliament, 1st CHARLES I., and suffered considerably in the cause of that unfortunate Prince. A short time before the year 1541, the Lords-Justices had supplied the Lords of the pale with arms, but suddenly recalled them, which occasioned much discontent among the Catholic Lords, who, having assembled, appointed Lord Dunsany to assure the Justices of their attachment and loyalty, and of their readiness to co-operate in every measure that could be conducive to the peace of the country. The Lords-Justices, however, took no further notice of this proffered service, than by confining his Lordship in the Castle of Dublin, where he remained for several years; but, on the restoration of CHARLES II., he again took his seat in the House of Lords, and continued to sit until 1695. This nobleman adhering to the falling fortunes of his legitimate sovereign, JAMES II., was outlawed in 1691, but being included in the treaty of Limerick, his estates were restored; neglecting, however, the forms necessary to re-establish himself in the privileges of the Peerage, neither his Lordship nor his immediate descendants had a seat in the House of Lords. In April, 1821, her Ladyship's sons, John and Charles, obtained a similar license.

Lineage.

The very ancient family of Tollemache claims Saxon descent, and the name is said to be a corruption of the word "tollmack," tolling of the bell. The Tollemaches having flourished with the greatest honor, in an uninterrupted male succession, Co. Suffolk, since the first arrival of the Saxons in England, a period of more than 13 centuries.

TOLLEMACHE, Lord of Bentley, in Suffolk, and Stoke-Tollemache, Co. Oxford, lived in the 6th century, and upon the old Manor House at Bentley may still be seen the following inscription,

"Before the Normans into England came,
Bentley was my seat, and Tollemache was my name."

HUGH DE TOLLEMACHE subscribed the charter, sans date (about the reign of King STEPHEN) made by John de St. John to Eve, the 1st Abbess of Godstow, in Oxfordshire. This Hugh, in his old age, assumed the Cowl at Gloucester, and bestowed upon that monastery a moiety of the town of Hampton, which his son, PETER, confirmed, in the time of the Abbot Hamblin. The descendant of Peter,

SIR HUGH DE TOLLEMACHE, in the 25th of EDWARD I. held of the Crown the manor of Bentley, and the fourth part of the village of Akerton, by Knight's service. In the 29th of the same monarch,

WILLIAM and JOHN TOLLEMACHE had summons to attend the King at Berwick-upon-Tweed, previous to his expedition into Scotland. This John took the Black Cross, and his arms are now remaining in the minster at York.

SIR LIONEL TOLLEMACHE, of Bentley, flourished in the reigns of HENRY VI. and EDWARD IV., and was a personage of great influence and authority. He m. the heir of Helmingham, in Suffolk, and by that alliance acquired the inheritance. His son, John, was father of

LIONEL TOLLEMACHE, who was Sheriff of Norfolk and Suffolk, in 1512; and in 1546, obtained from HENRY VIII. grants of the manor of Wansden, with the rectory thereof; the manor and rectory of Le Church Hey; the manors of Bury-Hall Willows and Overhall, to hold of the Crown by Knight's service. This gentleman was s. by his son,

SIR LIONEL TOLLEMACHE, of Helmingham, High-Sheriff of Norfolk and Suffolk, in 1567. In 1561, Queen ELIZABETH honored Helmingham with her presence, and remained there from the 14th to the 18th of Aug., inclusive, being most hospitably and sumptuously entertained. During her Majesty's visit she stood sponsor to Sir Lionel's son, and presented the child's mother with her lute, which is still preserved in the family. Lady Tollemache was dau. of Sir Richard Wentworth, of Nettlested. Sir Lionel was s. by his son, EDMONSTONE, SIR ARCHIBALD, of Duntreath, Co. Stirling; b. 12 March, 1795; s. to the title, as 3rd Bart., upon the demise of his father, 1 April, 1821; m. 10 Oct., 1832, his cousin german, Emma, dau. of Rundle Wilbraham, Esq. of Rode Hall, Co. Chester.

Lineage.

The family of Edmonstone is of great antiquity in North Britain. It dates its origin about the latter end of the 11th century. Among the many foreigners who attended Margaret, dau. of Edgar Athelney, into Scotland, in 1070, and who afterwards rose to distinction, was Edmundus, supposed to be a younger son of Count Egmont, of Flanders. This Edmundus obtained a grant of land in the Co. Edinburgh, to which he gave his name, and those lands called Edmundestoun, thus became the distinctive appellation of the family.

SIR JOHN EDMONSTONE, Knt., had several charters of lands, temp. DAVID II., A.D. 1329. His son,

SIR JOHN EDMONSTONE, Knt., espoused the Princess, Isabel Stewart, dau. of ROBERT II., and widow of James Earl of Douglas and Marr, who fell at the battle of Otterbourne. By this lady he left two sons, Sir David Edmonstone, his successor, from whom derived the Edmonstones of Ednum, the chief branch of the family, but lately extinct; and another son,

SIR WILLIAM EDMONSTONE, Knt. of Culloden, the first of the family of Duntreath, who m. (having obtained a Papal dispensation) his 1st cousin, Mary, Countess Dowager of Angus, (to whom he was fourth husband), dau. of ROBERT III., King of Scotland. JAMES II. conferred a grant of the lands and Barony of Duntreath, upon Sir William Edmonstone and the Countess of Angus, by a charter bearing date 1452. This, which had previously been a part of the forfeited estate of the Earls of Lennox, has ever since remained the chief seat of the family. Sir William d. in 1460, and was s. by his son,

WILLIAM, of Culloden and Duntreath, who was nominated one of the Lords of Session, by JAMES III. in 1461, and d. the following year. From this eminent person we pass to his lineal descendant,

SIR JAMES EDMONSTONE, Knt., who was constituted, in 1578, Justice-Deputy under the Earl of Argyll, the Justice-General. This gentleman, with others, was indicted for high treason, and convicted, but pardoned, although his accomplices suffered. From Sir James descended in a direct line,

I. ARCHIBALD EDMONSTONE, Esq. (eldest son of Archibald Edmonstone, Esq., by Anne, dau. of the Hon. EGMONT, EARL OF (Henry-Frederick-Joseph-James Perceval,) Viscount Perceval, of Kanturk:

* Frances, Countess of Eglinton, m. 2ndly, Francis Moore, Esq.

Baron Perceval, of Burton, in the Peerage of Ireland; Lord Lovel and Holland, of Enmore, Co. Somerset, in the Peerage of England, and a Bart. of Ireland; m. in Dec., 1828, Louisa-Maria, youngest dau. of Count d'Orselet, and has issue,

A son, b. 1 April, 1829.

His Lordship s. to the honors, as 5th Earl, upon the demise of his father, 31 Dec. 1835.

Lineage.

The first member of this family who settled in Ireland was

RICHARD PERCEVAL, (eldest son of George Perceval, Esq., Lord of Tykenham and Rolleston, by Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Sir Edward Bampfylde, of Poltimore, Co. Devon.) The life of this ultimately successful person was chequered and eventful, in no ordinary degree. He was b. in 1550, and educated at St. Paul's school, then the most celebrated seminary in England, whence he was sent to Lincoln's Inn, to acquire some general idea of the laws, esteemed, in those days, an accomplishment of the highest description. In both his progress was brilliant, but his conduct dissipated and disorderly, so much so indeed, that he incurred the displeasure of his father, who, upon his marriage with Joan, dau. of Henry Young, Esq. of Buchorn Weston, Co. Dorset, entirely abandoned him, observing, that as he had ruined himself by his riots, he might recover himself by his wits. Thus unnaturally cast off, Mr. Perceval found means, by the credit of his reversionary estates, and the assistance of his friends, to maintain himself several years; during which time he had three sons and two daus.: but at length, through a failure of resources, and the increasing expenses of his family, he was obliged to quit the kingdom, and travelled into Spain, where he remained about four years. Being then informed of his wife's decease, he returned to England, hoping, now that the principal cause of his father's displeasure had been removed, he might again recover his good opinion; but that hope proving delusive, his relations, and particularly Roger Cave, Esq. of Stamford, who had married the Lord Treasurer Burghley's sister, engaged on his side, and, by that gentleman's means, he contracted an acquaintance with Lord Burghley, who, being pleased with his talents, and moved by his misfortunes, and having endeavoured, in vain, to procure a reconciliation with his father, determined to promote his fortune by employing him in the management of those state affairs which required the greatest trust and secrecy. Thus he continued till the year 1586, when, whilst the Court of Spain was meditating the Armada, an English ship succeeded in taking, from a Spanish vessel, letters from the Low Countries, which, by intimations from abroad, were known to contain the secret. Those letters being brought to Lord Burghley, were laid by his Lordship before QUEEN ELIZABETH, in Council; but the contents being in cipher, the Lord-Treasurer proposed that the papers should be entrusted to this Richard Perceval, who returned them the next day after they were placed in his hand, to her majesty in person, deciphered, translated, and fairly transcribed, in Spanish, Latin, and English. This was the first certain intelligence of the Spanish design, and Perceval was admitted instantly into the Queen's favour, and, from that moment, his road to honor and fortune was open and unimpeded. Having subsequently filled the office of Secretary of the Court of Wards in England, for several years, he was nominated, in 1616, Registrar of the Court of Wards in Ireland, where, after obtaining considerable landed property, he d. in 1620, and was s. by his son (by his second wife, Alice, dau. of John Sherman, Esq. of Ottry St. Mary's, Co. Devon).

He m. Catherine, dau. of Robert Southwell, Esq. of Kingsale, by whom he had four sons and two daus., Philip, Robert, John, Charles, Catherine, and Helen. Lineage.

This noble family deduces its descent from Ailwardus, an eminent Saxon, of the Co. Norfolk, who, being possessed of an estate there, in Wymondham (subsequently called Wyndham), assumed, soon after the Norman Conquest, the surname of Wyndham. From this person lineally descended

SIR JOHN WYNDHAM, who was in the battle of Stoke, anno 1487, against the Earl of Lincoln, Lambert Simnel, and their adherents, and was knighted immediately after the victory; but being afterwards engaged in the interests of the House of York, he was condemned for high-treason, and beheaded with Sir James Tyrrell, Lieut. of Guisnes Castle, 17th HENRY VII. He m., 2ndly, Eleanor, dau. of Norman Washbourne, Esq. of Washbourne, Co. Worcester, and widow of Sir Richard Scrope. Sir John was s. by his eldest son,

SIR THOMAS WYNDHAM, of Felbrigg, who m. 1st, Eleanor, dau. and co-heir of Sir Richard Scrope, Knt. of Upsale, Co. York, by whom he had, with three daus.,

John, (Sir) of Somersetshire.

Sir Thomas espoused, 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Henry Wentworth, of Nettlested, K.B., and relict of Sir Roger Darcy, by whom he had one son, Sir Thomas Wyndham, an eminent Naval Officer. The line of the eldest son of Sir Thomas failing as above, we proceed with the second son,

SIR JOHN WYNDHAM, who m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of John Sydenham, Esq. of Orchard, Co. Somerset, and thus acquired that estate, which now retains the name of Orchard-Wyndham. Sir John had, with other issue,

Of Sir William's second marriage, with Maria-Catharina, dau. of M. Peter D'Jong, of the Province of Utrecht, in Holland, and relict of William, Marquess of Blandford, there was no issue. Sir William Wyndham, who had a high reputation for eloquence, and was esteemed a most polished gentleman, is thus transmitted to posterity by Pope:—

While Roman spirit charms, and attic wit
Or Wyndham just to freedom and the throne
The master of our passions and his own."

Lineage.

This noble family claims descent from the Royal House of Bruce, and that claim is generally admitted.

SIR DAVID BRUCE, of Clackmannan, m. Jane, dau. of Sir Patrick Blackadder, of Tulliallan, Co. Perth, and had, with other issue,

JOHN, who d. before his father, leaving a son,

SIR ROBERT BRUCE, of Clackmannan.

And

EDWARD BRUCE, of Blairhall, who m. Alison, dau. of William Reid, of Aikenhead, sister of Robert, Bishop of Orkney, President of the Court-of-Session, from 1543, to his death in France, where he was one of the Commissioners to witness the nuptials of Queen MARY with the Dauphin, 1558, and supposed to have been poisoned. Mr. Bruce had issue, ROBERT, of Blairhall; Edward; Sir George, of Carnock,* and William. The second son,

* SIR GEORGE BRUCE, of Carnock, settled at Culross, where he established extensive and flourishing coal-works. He also carried on the manufacture of salt to a great extent, and was engaged in a considerable foreign trade. The coal was wrought to a distance under the sea, and was shipped at a moat under the sea-mark. JAMES VI. visiting Sir George Bruce, and expressing a desire to inspect the coal-works, was conducted through them to the moat, to his Majesty's no small dismay at finding himself in the midst of the sea: he was conducted back, however, in a pinnace, and sumptuously entertained by Sir George, at the Abbey of Culross. By those spirited commercial exertions, Sir George Bruce accumulated great wealth. He was M.P. for Culross, and one of the Commissioners appointed by the Parliament of Scotland to treat of a Union with England, in 1604. Sir George m. Margaret, dau. of Archibald Primrose, of Burnbrae, and had, with other issue,

EDWARD BRUCE, of Kintosa, was appointed a Lord of Session in 1597, and accredited by JAMES VI., in 1600, with the Earl of Mar, to the Court of ELIZABETH, to congratulate her Majesty upon the suppression of Essex's rebellion. He then placed the affairs of his Royal Master in such a train with Secretary Cecil, as to pave the way to the peaceable succession of the Scottish Monarch to the English Throne. Upon his return, he was created a Peer of Scotland, 2 Feb., 1601-2, as Baron Bruce, of Kintosa, in the Co. of Elgin. Accompanying King JAMES into England, on his accession, he was sworn of the new Monarch's Privy-Council, and constituted Master of the Rolls for life, when he resigned the office of Lord of Session. His Lordship m. Magdalen, dau. of Sir Alexander Clerk, of Balbirnie, in Fife, and had issue two sons and one dau., Christian, with whom JAMES I. gave £10,000, with his own hands, as a marriage portion, to William Cavendish, Earl of Devonshire. The Earl d. in 1610, and was s. by his elder son,

EDWARD, 2nd Baron, K.B. His Lordship did not however, long enjoy his honors, being killed in a duel, in 1613, by Sir Edward Sackville, afterwards Earl of Dorset. Dying unm., the barony devolved upon his brother,

THOMAS, 3rd Baron, who was advanced to an Earldom, 21 June, 1633, as EARL OF ELGIN, with remainder to his heirs male for ever, bearing the name and arms of Bruce, and created an English Peer 13 July, 1640, as Baron Bruce of Whorlton, Co. York. His Lordship m. Anne, dau. of Sir Robert Chichester, Knt. of Raleigh, Co. Devon, and, dying in 1663, was s. by his only son, ALEXANDER, 2nd Earl. This nobleman took a prominent part in Scottish affairs after the Restoration, and the Government of Scotland was placed, anno 1667, in the hands of his Lordship, the Earl of Tweeddale, and Sir Robert Murray. Lord Kincardine was appointed an Extraordinary Lord of Session in 1667, and continued in that office until his decease, 9 July, 1680. He m. in 1659, Varonica, dau. of Cornelille Van Arson Van Sommelsdyck, Lord of Sommelsdyck and Spyke, in Holland, and was s. by his only surviving son, ALEXANDER, 3rd Earl. The late Lord having died deeply involved in debt, the estate was brought to a judicial sale, by order of the Court of Session, and purchased, in 1700, by Col. John Erskine, son of David, Lord Cardross. The Earl of Kincardine was an eccentric character, and had the misfortune of losing his sight some years before his death, which happened in Nov., 1705, unm., when a competition arose for the honors between his Lordship's sister, Lady Mary Cochrane, and Sir Alexander Bruce, of Broomhall, which terminated in favor of

In April, 1746, his Lordship obtained a new patent, creating him *Baron Bruce of Tottenham, Co. Wexford, and arriving in his boots at the critical moment, when the question, whether any redundancy in the Irish Treasury should continue there, or be transmitted to England, was under discussion, in the House of Commons, gave the casting vote in favour of his country. In memory of this patriotic conduct, a portrait of the honorable member was soon afterwards engraved in the attitude of ascending the steps of the Parliament house in his travelling dress.

Lineage.

By a deed of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, extant, it appears that the Coles were of the rank of Barons, and were resident in the county of Hants in that Monarch's reign. The first of the family, however, who settled in Ireland was

SIR WILLIAM COLE, Knt., who fixed his abode, early in the reign of JAMES I., in the Co. of Fermanagh, and becoming an undertaker in the northern plantation, had an assignment, in 1611, of one thousand acres of excheated lands, in the county wherein he resided; to which, in 1612, were added three hundred and twenty acres in the same shire; eighty whereof were assigned for the town of Enniskillen, and that town was then incorporated by charter, consisting of a provost and twelve burgesses, Sir William Cole being the first provost. Sir William raised a regiment which he commanded against the rebels, in 1643, with important success. This family is descended from a branch of the Creightons, Viscounts Prendraught, in North Britain, which title ceased with Lewis, the 5th Viscount, about the year 1680.

JOHN CREIGHTON, of Crum Castle, Co. Fermanagh, m. Mary, dau. of Sir Gerald Irvine of Castle Irvine, in the same shire, and was s. by his son,

ABRAHAM CREIGHTON, Esq., M.P. for the Co. Fermanagh, who commanded a regiment of Foot at the battle of Aghrim, in 1692. Col. Creighton m. Mary, dau. of the Right Rev. James Spotiswood, Bishop of Clogher, and was s. at his decease, in 1703, by his only surviving son, DAVID CREIGHTON, Esq., celebrated for his gallant defence, in 1683, of the family seat of Crum Castle, against a large body of the Royal army, (King JAMES's). Having repulsed the assailants, young Creighton made a sally, at the instant that a corps of Enniskilleners was approaching to the relief of the Castle, which movement placed the besiegers between two fires, and caused dreadful slaughter. The enemy attempting to accomplish his retreat across an arm of Lough Erne, near Crum Castle, that spot became the scene of such carnage, that it has ever since borne the name of the "Bloody Pass." This gentleman represented Enniskillen in Parliament, and attaining the rank of Major-Gen. in the Army, was appointed Governor of the Royal Hospital of Kilmainham. ERROL.

ERROL, EARL OF (William-George Hay-Carr), and Baron Hay, of Slaines, in the Peerage of Scotland, one of the Representative Lords; Baron Kilmarnock, of Kilmarnock, Co. Ayr, in the Peerage of the United Kingdom; Hereditary Lord-High-Constable of Scotland, and a Lord of his Majesty's Bedchamber; b. 21 Feb., 1801; s. to the honors upon the demise of his father, 26 Jan., 1819; m. 4 Dec., 1820, Elizabeth Fitzclarence, sister of the Earl of Munster, by whom he has issue,

i. WILLIAM, Lord Hay, Page of Honor to the King, b. 3 May, 1823.

ii. Adelaide-Augusta.

iii. Agnes-Georgiana-Elizabeth.

iv. A dau., b. lately.

His Lordship is the 21st High-Constable, and 16th Earl.

Lineage.

The traditional origin of the noble house of Hay is thus related:—In the reign of KENNETH III., anno 900, the Danes, who had invaded Scotland, having prevailed, at the battle of Luncarty, near Perth, were pursuing the flying Scots from the field, when a countryman with his two sons appeared in a narrow pass, through which the vanquished were hurrying, and impeded for a moment their flight. "What," said the rustic, "had you rather be slaughtered by your merciless foes, than die honorably in the field? Come, rally, rally!" and he headed the fugitives, brandishing his ploughshare, and crying out that help was at hand: the Danes, believing that a fresh army was falling upon them, fled in confusion, and the Scots thus recovered the laurel which they had lost, and freed their country from servitude. The battle being won, the old man, afterwards known by the name of Hay, was brought to the King, who, assembling a Parliament at Scone, gave to the said Hay and his sons, as a just reward for their valour, so much land on the river Fay, in the district of Gowrie, as a falcon from a man's hand flew over till it settled; which being six miles in length, was afterwards called Errol; and the King being desirous to elevate Hay and his sons from their humble rank in life, to the order of nobility, his Majesty assigned them a coat of arms, which was, argent, three escutcheons, gules, to intimate that the father and two sons had been the three fortunate shields of Scotland. So much for tradition. But the incontrovertible fact is, that the noble houses of Tweeddale and Errol claim a common progenitor in

WILLIAM DE HAYE, who obtained a grant of the lands of Errol from WILLIAM the Lion, and was King's Butler in that Monarch's reign. He espoused Juliana, dau. of Ranulph de Soulis, Lord of Liddesdale, and had two sons, WILLIAM, his heir, and Robert, ancestor of the house of Tweeddale. The elder son,

SIR WILLIAM DE HAYA, was father of

DAVID DE HAYA, who wedded Helen, dau. of Gilbert, Earl of Strathern, and had two sons, viz.

GILBERT, his heir.

WILLIAM, from whom spring the HAYS of LEYS, of PITFOUR, SEGGIEDEN, &c. (See BURKE'S History of the Commons.)

From the elder son, GILBERT, descended

SIR GILBERT DE HAYE, Lord of Errol, who, adhering to ROBERT I., obtained from that Prince a grant of diverse crown lands, and was created by charter, dated 12 Nov., 1315, HIGH-CONSTABLE OF SCOTLAND, to himself and his heirs for ever. Lineage.

THE HON. THOMAS ERSKINE, 3rd son of Henry-David, 5th Earl of Buchan (see that dignity), having served both in the Army and Navy, devoted, at length, his talents to the Bar, to which he was called in 1778. Gifted with the most powerful eloquence, Mr. Erskine attained, at once, the summit of his profession as an Advocate; in which capacity he continued until the year 1806, when he was appointed LORD-HIGH-CHANCELLOR OF GREAT BRITAIN, and elevated to the Peerage 8 April, in the same year, as BARON ERSKINE, of Restormel Castle. - viii. Mary, m. in 1805, to David Morris, Esq. who d. in Lord Erskine m. 2ndly, Miss Sarah Buck, by whom he also left issue. The success of this eminent lawyer is probably the most remarkable upon record, as to promptitude: for almost immediately after he was called to the Bar he was fortunate enough to find an opportunity for the display of his extraordinary powers. Capt. Baillie, who had been removed from the superintendence of Greenwich Hospital, by the Earl of Sandwich, was proceeded against by that nobleman, for the publication of a libel, and the Attorney General, having to move the Court of King's Bench for his Lordship upon the subject, Mr. Erskine was retained by Capt. Baillie to oppose the motion. Upon which he displayed so much eloquence and spirit, that he received, when leaving the Court, no less than thirty retainers from attorneys who happened to be present. But of all Erskine's cases, those which raised the Advocate's reputation the highest were his splendid defences of Lord George Gordon, and of Admiral Keppel. He was likewise distinguished in an eminent degree for the prisoners in the memorable state prosecutions against JOHN HORNE TOOKER, Hardy, &c. His Lordship died of an inflammation of the chest, 17 Nov., 1823, at Almondell, near Edinburgh, the seat of his nephew, the Hon. Henry Erskine.

Lineage.

This family flourished originally in the Co. Salop, at a place now called Evelyn, but formerly written Avelyn and Ivelyn. From Shropshire it removed to Long Ditton, in Surrey; thence to Harrow-on-the-Hill, Co. Middlesex, temp. HENRY IV.; and to Kingston, in Surrey, in the reign of HENRY VIII.

GEORGE EVELYN, Esq., the founder of this branch of the Evelyns, in Surrey, was the first person to bring the art of making gunpowder to perfection in England; and, for the convenience of his works in the neighbourhood, purchased the estate at Wotton. This gentleman left, at his decease, six sons and two daughters. Thomas, the eldest son, was father of Edward, of Long Ditton, who was created a Bart. in 1682, but, dying without issue in 1692, the dignity expired. John, the 2nd son, was father of John, of Gadstone, who was created a Bart. in 1690, but, dying without issue, the honor ceased. He (John, the 2nd son) was also father of

GEORGE EVELYN, Esq. who d. in 1603, and was s. by his only surviving son,

RICHARD EVELYN, Esq., who m. Eleanor, only dau. and heir of John Stanfield, Esq. of Lewes, Co. Sussex, and, dying in 1640, was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN EVELYN, Esq., the elegant and distinguished author of "Silva," and other celebrated literary works. Mr. Evelyn visiting, in 1647, the French capital, and being recommended to Sir Richard Browne, Bart., the King's minister there, m. the only dau. of that gentleman, and, in her right, became possessed of Saye's Court, near Deptford, in Kent. After the Restoration, Mr. Evelyn was most graciously received at Court, and upon the establishment of the Royal Society, about the close of the year 1662, he was appointed one of the first Fellows and Council thereof. In 1682, he was honored with the degree of Doctor of Civil Laws, by the University of Oxford. After the Revolution, he was Treasurer of Greenwich Hospital, and, though far advanced in years, wrote some pieces, and translated others, which will confer imperishable fame upon himself and his country. The period of this learned person's life and labours terminated almost together; as he died soon after he had prepared the 4th edition of his "Silva" for the press, in the 86th year of his age, 27 Feb., 1703-4. Bishop Burnet styles him a most ingenious and virtuous gentleman; and informs us that he was not satisfied to have advanced the knowledge of his age, by his most useful labours, about planting and divers other ways; but he was ready to contribute every thing in his power to perfect other men's endeavours. Mr. Evelyn was s. by his only surviving grandson,

I. JOHN EVELYN, Esq., who was created a Bart., 6 Aug., 1713. Sir John was one of the Commissioners of Customs, and a Fellow of the Royal Society. He m. in 1706, Anne, dau. of Edward Boscawen, Esq., and had, with other issue, EXETER.

I. WILLIAM-ALLEYNE, Lord Burghley, b. 30 April, 1825.

II. Brownlow-Thomas-Montague, b. 27 Feb., 1827.

III. Mary-Frances.

His Lordship officiated as Grand-Almoner at the Coronation of his Majesty, GEORGE IV.

Lineage.

The surname of this noble family has been spelt at different periods Sitsilt, Sicell, Seycil, Cysel, and Cecil.

WILLIAM CECIL, b. at Bourne, in Lincolnshire, 18 Sept., 1520 (son and heir of Richard Cysel, an Officer of the Court, in attendance upon HENRY VIII., particularly at the celebrated interview between that Monarch and Francis King of France, upon the Field of the Cloth of Gold), having attracted the attention and attained the subsequent favor of his sovereign, by a successful disputation with two intemperate chaplains of O'Neale, the Irish Chieftain, on the power of the Roman Pontiff, the King granted him a reversion of the office of Custos-brevium; and from that period he resolved to pursue a political, rather than a forensic, course, which latter he had originally intended to adopt, having entered himself at Gray's Inn, in 1541. In the reign of EDWARD VI., Mr. Cecil was appointed Secretary of State, when he received the honor of Knighthood, and was sworn of the Privy-Council. Under the rule of MARY, although a zealous reformist, previously, Sir William, with the tact of the renowned churchman of Bray, doffed his protestant mantle, and conformed to the ancient faith: outwardly, saith his recent Biographer, Dr. Nares; but certainly so far as engaging a Catholic domestic chaplain, humbling himself at the confessional, and kneeling before the altar of the Real Presence, constitute such a conformation. This outward demonstration proved not to have been assumed in vain, for we find the wily politician enjoying again the sunshine of royal favor, and actually nominated with Lord Paget and Sir Edward Hastings, to conduct Cardinal Pole, then invested with a legatine commission, into England. In this reign Cecil represented the Co. of Lincoln in Parliament. Immediately upon the accession of Elizabeth, however (once more a staunch denouncer of Popish errors), the star of his fortune arose, and few statesmen have been guided through a more brilliant course. His first official employment was the resumption of the Secretary-of-State'ship, and in that, so sensible was his Royal Mistress of his important services, that she elevated him to the Peerage, by the title of Baron Burghley, in 1571, although at this period his private fortune does not appear to have been much advanced, for, by a letter written by himself, just after his elevation, he says, "that he is the poorest Lord in England." A conspiracy was soon afterwards discovered against his life, and the two assassins, Barney and Matter, declared, at their execution, that they were instigated by the Spanish Ambassador; for which, and other offences, his Excellency was ordered to depart the kingdom. As a consolation for these perils, the Secretary was honored with the Order of the Garter, in June, 1572; and in the Sept. following, at the decease of the Marquess of Winchester, appointed Lord High Treasurer. His Lordship m. 1st, in 1561, Mary, sister of Sir John Cheke, tutor to Edw. VI., by whom he had an only son,

THOMAS, his successor.

His first Lady dying after a short period, he m. 2ndly, in 1546, Mildred, dau. of Sir Anthony Coke, Knt. of Giddy Hall, Co. Essex, by whom he had surviving issue,

ROBERT, who was created Earl of Salisbury. (See Marquess of Salisbury.)

Anne, Countess of Oxford.

Elizabeth, m. to William, eldest son of Lord Wentworth.

The last memorable act of the Lord-Treasurer's life was an attempt to bring about a peace with Spain, in which he was vehemently opposed by Essex, then in the fire of youth. The young soldier becoming heated in the debate, the venerable Minister was induced to pull out a Prayer-Book, and point to the words "Men of blood shall not live out half their lives." Burghley has been universally condemned for his participation in the destruction of the unhappy MARY of Scotland—and justly. The whole reign of MARY of England, darkly as it has been depicted, is not stained with a more atrocious deed than the murder of that interesting, lovely, and unfortunate woman. Of the manner of living adopted by this eminent person, we are informed that, suitable to his rank and the custom of the times, he kept up an extraordinary degree of splendour in his houses and gardens, and every thing belonging to him. He had four places of residence; his lodgings at Court; his house in the Strand; his family seat at Burghley; and his own favourite seat at Theobalds. At his house in London, he had fourscore persons in family, exclusively of those who attended him at Court. His expenses there, as we have it from a person who lived many years in his family, were £30 a-week in his absence, and between £40 and £50 when present. At Theobalds he had thirty persons in his family; and, besides a constant allowance in charity, he directed £10 a-week to be laid out in keeping the poor at work in his gardens, &c. The expenses of his stables were a thousand marks a-year. He kept a standing table for gentlemen, and two other tables for persons of meaner condition, which were always served alike, whether he were in or out of town. Twelve times he entertained the Queen at his house for several weeks together, at the expense of two or three thousand pounds each visit. At his decease he left about £4000 a-year in land, £11,000 in money, and in valuable effects about £14,000. His Lordship d. 4 Aug., 1598, and was s. by his elder son,

THOMAS, 2nd Baron, who was created Earl of Exeter, 4 May, 1605, and installed a Knight of the Garter. His Lordship m. 1st, Dorothy, dau. and co-heir of John Nevil, Lord Latimer, and had (besides dau.)

FREDERICK, 2nd Baron. This nobleman, at the beginning of the Civil War, was the Parliamentary General for York, and became eminently distinguished. After defeating the Earl of Newcastle, in 1642, Lord Byron, in 1643, and Col. Bellasis, whom he took prisoner, in April, 1644, at Selby, he had the chief command at the battle of Marston Moor, in the July of the same year, and there, defeating the royal army under Prince Rupert, he took possession of the city of York, as Governor. His Lordship m. 1st, Lady Mary Sheffield, dau. of Edmund, 1st Earl of Mulgrave; and, 2ndly, Rhoda, dau. and co-heir of Thomas Chapman, Esq. of London, by the former of whom he had three sons and six daus.,* and was s. at his decease, in 1647, by his eldest son and companion in arms.

THOMAS, 3rd Baron, who had distinguished himself as a Republican military leader, under the name of "Sir Thomas Fairfax." He was a participator in the victory obtained by his father at Selby, and he commanded the right wing of the Parliamentarians at Marston Moor. In the 34th year of his age, he was appointed General-in-Chief of the Parliament's armies, and soon after routed the King at Naseby, retook Leicester, beat Col. Goring, took Bridgewater, Dartmouth, Bristol, defeated Lord Hopton, forced the Prince of Wales to retire into France, and then, reducing the entire of the West, drove the King from Oxford, in May, 1646; in which year he was made Governor of the Tower of London. After succeeding to the Barony, he reduced Colchester; but he took no part in the subsequent proceedings of the Independents, and was entirely free of any participation in the death of the King. In 1650, he resigned the command of the army to CROMWELL; and, nine years afterwards, his Lordship, coalescing with Monk, assisted zealously in restoring the monarchy, and was one of the Commissioners deputed, upon that occasion, to the King. Soon after this event, Lord Fairfax represented the Co. of York in Parliament; but he passed the latter end of his life in rural retirement. His Lordship m. Anne, dau. and co-heir of Sir Horatio Vere, Lord Vere of Tilbury, by whom he had an only child, Mary, who m. George Villiers, 2nd Duke of Buckingham. BRYAN, a Clergyman, s. as 8th and present Baron.

His Lordship d. in 1685, and was s. by the elder,

The Baron was s. in 1710, by his eldest son,

* Dorothy, one of the daus., m. Richard Hutton, Esq. of Popleton, Yorkshire.

his mother, a splendid fortune, consisting of several manors in Kent., estates in the Isle of Wight, and a tract of land in Virginia, called the Northernneck, comprised within the boundaries of the rivers Potowmack and Rappahanock, containing, by estimation, 5,700,000 acres. From his father he inherited Denton Hall, and other property in Yorkshire, but he was obliged by his mother and grandmother to dispose of those, in order to redeem the Colepepper manors. His Lordship had a Commission in the Horse Guards, but visiting his American estates about the year 1739, he was so captivated with the soil, climate, and beauties of Virginia, that he resolved to spend the remainder of his life there; and he soon after erected two mansions, Belvoir and Greenway Court: where he continued ever afterwards to reside in a state of baronial hospitality. His dress was plain and simple, his manners modest and unaffected, and his style of living magnificent. Such was his generosity that he gave up his English estates to his Brother Robert, and the surplus of his American income was distributed among his poor neighbours. His principal amusement was hunting; and after the chase he was wont to invite the whole field to partake his hospitality. He had been educated in revolutionary principles, and had imbibed high notions of republican liberty. He was Lieut. and Custos-Rotulorum of Frederick county, and presided at the Provincial Courts at Winchester, where, during the session, he kept an open table. His Lordship d. unm., at Greenway Court, in 1782, when the title devolved upon his only surviving brother,

A SON AND HEIR, b. 24 Nov., 1831.

His Lordship was created an English Peer 16 May, 1832.

Lineage.

For the early descent of the Cary family, refer to BURKE'S Commoners, Vol. II. p. 33.

SIR JOHN CARY, Knt. of Cockington, Co. Devon, a Baron of the Exchequer in the reign of RICHARD II., left issue, JOHN, Bishop of Exeter in 1419, and an elder son, his heir,

SIR ROBERT CARY, Knt., who, among other feats of arms, vanquished an Arragonian Knight in Smithfield, and, as a reward for his valour received the honor of Knighthood, and the permission to adopt the armorial ensigns of his defeated rival, namely, on a bend, three roses. The gallant gentleman m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Philip Courtenay; of Powderham, Co. Devon, and was s. by his son,

SIR PHILIP CARY, of Cockington, who m. Christian, dau. of William Orchard, Esq., and was father of

SIR WILLIAM CARY, Knt. of Cockington, who, fighting for the House of Lancaster, at the battle of Tewkesbury, was taken prisoner in a church whither he had fled for sanctuary, and, notwithstanding a promise of pardon, suffered decapitation. Sir William m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir William Paulet, and had a son, ROBERT, of Cockington, ancestor of the CARYS of Torr Abbey, in Devon, now represented by HENRY GEORGE CARY, Esq., and of the CARYS of Follaton House, now represented by GEORGE STANLEY CARY.

By his 2nd wife, Alice, dau. of Sir Baldwin Fulford, Knt. of Fulford, Sir William left another son,

THOMAS CARRY, Esq., who m. Margaret, 2nd dau. and co-heir of Sir Robert Spencer, by Eleanor, his wife, dau. of Edmund Beaufort, Duke of Somerset; by her he had two sons,

JOHN.

WILLIAM, who m. Mary Bullen, sister of the unfortunate Queen Anne Bullen, and was ancestor of the Careys, Lords Hunsden, and Earls of Dover; and of the Careys Earls of Monmouth, for an account of whom, see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.

The elder son,

SIR JOHN CARY, Knt., m. Joice, sister of Sir Anthony Denny, Knt., and left issue,

SIR EDWARD CARY, Knt. of Berkhamstead, Master of the Jewel Office to ELIZABETH, and JAMES I. This gentleman m. Catherine, dau. of Sir Henry Knaves, and widow of Henry, Lord Paget, by whom he had an only son,

SIR HENRY CARY, K.B., who was elevated to the Peerage of Scotland 19 Nov., 1620, as VISCOUNT FALKLAND. His Lordship was constituted LORD-LIEUTENANT OF IRELAND, in 1622, and continued in office for seven years. He m. Elizabeth, only dau. and heir of Sir Laurence Tanfield, Chief Baron of the Exchequer, and had issue, HENRY, his successor.

Lawrence, killed fighting under Sir Charles Coote, when he defeated the Irish, at Swords, in 1642.

Anne, m. to James, 2nd Earl of Home.

Amongst the papers of the Viscount, who was a man of letters, was found, and printed in 1680, 'The History of the most unfortunate Prince, EDWARD II., with choice political observations on him, and his unhappy favorites, Gaveston and Spencer.' His Lordship is remarkable for an invention to prevent the counterfeit of his signature—that of artfully concealing within the writing the successive years of his age. He d. in 1633, and was s. by his elder son,

HENRY, 2nd Viscount. This eminent person was born at Burford, about the year 1610, and carried by his father into Ireland, when that nobleman was appointed Lord-Deputy, in 1602, where he received part of his education at Trinity College, Dublin; he was afterwards of St. John's College, Cambridge. At the age of nineteen, he inherited the fortune of his maternal grandfather, and thus became possessed of a landed estate of about £2000 per annum, with considerable personal property. His Lordship, after the decease of his father, retired to his seat at Great Tew, and devoted himself entirely to literature. Previously to the breaking out of the Civil Wars, he was Member of Parliament for Newport, and a strenuous opponent of the Court; but so soon as actual rebellion commenced he as strenuously supported the Royal Cause. He attended the King at Edgehill, at Oxford, and at the siege of Gloucester. But a view of the calamities brought upon his country, and the still greater impending evils, entirely broke down his Lordship's spirits, and, though no military man, he sought death as a relief, in the field of battle. Frequently, when sitting amongst his friends, after a long silence and deep sighs, he would cry out with a shrill voice "PEACE," declaring himself incapable of living in such a state of perpetual grief and anxiety. This extreme uneasiness seems to have hurried him on to destruction. Putting himself into the first rank of Lord Byron's regiment, at Newbury, 20 Sept., 1643, he received a musket-shot wound, and, falling from his horse, his body was not found until the next morning. "Thus Falkland died the generous and the just." Lord Clarendon, speaking of Falkland, says that he was a person of such prodigious parts, of learning and knowledge, and of that inimitable sweetness and delight in conversation, and of so flowing and obliging a humanity and goodness to mankind, and of that primitive simplicity and integrity of life, that, if there were no other brand upon the odious and accursed Civil War, than that single loss, it must be most infamous to all posterity.

"War, civil war, was raging like a flood,
England lay weltering in her own heart's blood;
Brother with brother waged unnatural strife,
Sever'd were all the charities of life;
Two passions—virtues they assumed to be—
Virtues they were—romantic loyalty,
And stern unyielding patriotism, possess'd
Divided empire in the nation's breast,
As though two hearts should in one body reign,
And urge conflicting streams from vein to vein;
On either side the noblest spirits fought,
And highest deeds on either side were wrought;
Hampden in battle yesterday hath bled,
To-morrow Falkland joins the immortal dead;
The one for freedom perish'd—not in vain;
The other falls—a courtier without stain."

His Lordship at one time filled the office of Secretary of State to CHARLES I. He m. Letitia, dau. of Richard Morrison, Esq. of Tooley Park, Co. Leicester, and was s. by his only son,

HENRY, 3rd Viscount. His Lordship represented, after the Restoration, Arundel in Parliament, and was nominated Lord-Lieutenant of the Co. Oxford. He was committed to the Tower during the usurpation, upon suspicion of being concerned in Sir George Booth's rising for the Restoration of CHARLES II. Lord Falkland was author of the "Marriage Night," a comedy. He espoused Margaret, dau. of Anthony Hungerford, Esq., and dying in 1653, was s. by his only son,

ANTHONY, 4th Viscount. This nobleman filled some high official situations, during the reigns of CHARLES II. and WILLIAM III., but incurred the displeasure of the House of Commons, which resolved, 17 Jan., 1693-4, that Viscount Falkland, one of its members, by begging and receiving £9000 from his Majesty, contrary to the ordinary method of issuing and bestowing the King's money, was guilty of a high misdemeanor and breach of trust, and that he be committed to the Tower. His Lordship m. Rebecca, dau. of Sir Rowland Lytton, of Knebworth, Herts, and, dying in 1694, left issue, a dau., Frances, m. to John Villiers, 1st Earl of Grandison, and a son and successor,

Lineage.

The very ancient and honorable family of Shirley has had the good fortune to have been illustrated by an historical narrative, compiled by a distinguished member of its own house. Sir Thomas Shirley, of Botolph's Bridge, Co. Huntingdon, composed three distinct MS. histories of the Shirleys, all of which are preserved in the British Museum.

SIR RALPH DE SHIRLEY, in the 7th year of EDW. I. held the manor of Eatendon, Co. Warwick, of Edmund, Earl of Lancaster, the King's brother, by the service of two knights' fees. In the 28th of the same reign, he had the custodies of the Cos. Salop and Stafford, with the Castle of Shrewsbury committed to his charge, and was Sheriff of the Cos. Derby and Nottingham, in the 27th, 28th, and 30th, of the same King. In the 3rd EDWARD II. he was constituted one of the Justices of the Co. Warwick for the gaol delivery, and in two years afterwards was elected to Parliament for that County. He m. Margaret, dau. and co-heir of Walter de Waldenhele, of Fulfield, Co. Derby, cup-bearer to EDWARD II.; and dying in 1327, was s. by his son,

SIR THOMAS SHIRLEY, Knt. M.P. for the Co. Warwick, in the 14th year of EDWARD III. This Sir Thomas is said to be "the great founder of the family of Shirleys, famous in his time for his valor, and for the many services, &c. rendered to the Kings of England against the French." He m. Isabel, grandaun. of Ralph, Lord Basset, of Drayton, and eventually heir of her brother Ralph, the last Lord Basset, of that line (since whose decease that Barony has been in abeyance,—see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage), and, dying in 1363, was s. by his son,

SIR HUGH SHIRLEY, Knt., who s. also to the estates of his uncle, Lord Basset, of Drayton. This gentleman was made Grand Falconer to HENRY IV., in 1400, and he was killed fighting on the side of the same monarch, at the battle of Shrewsbury, being one of those who was habited as the King, and taken for him by the opposite party. He m. Beatrix, sister and heir of John de Braose, of West Newton, Co. Sussex, and was s. by his son,

SIR RALPH SHIRLEY, who was one of the chief commanders under HENRY V., at the battle of Agincourt, and took a distinguished part in the subsequent French wars of the same monarch. He m. Joan, dau. and heir of Thomas Basset, of Brailsford, Co. Derby, and was s. by his only son,

RALPH SHIRLEY, Constable of Melbourne Castle, and of the Castle in the Peak of Derbyshire: m. 1st, Margaret, dau. and sole heir of John de Staunton, of Staunton Harold, Co. Leicester, by whom he had an only son, JOHN, his successor. He espoused, 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Blount, Knt., and sister of Walter Blount, Lord Mountjoy, by whom he had Ralph Shirley, Esquire of the Body to HENRY VII. He m. 3rdly, Lucia, dau. of Sir John Aston, of Atherton, widow of Sir John Byron, and of Sir Barton Entwistle. He was s. by his elder son,

JOHN SHIRLEY, who m. Eleanor, dau. of Sir Hugh Willoughby, of Wollaton, Co. Notts, and, dying in 1485, was s. by his son,

SIR RALPH SHIRLEY, who was made a Knight-Banneret, for the valour he had displayed at the battle of Stoke, 16 June, 1487. He m. four times, and had issue by his 2nd wife, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Thomas Walsh, Esq. of Wanley, Co. Leicester, an only dau., Anne, heir to her mother, m. to Sir Thomas Pultney, of Miskerton, Co. Leicester; and, by his last wife, Jane, dau. of Sir Robert Sheffield, Knt., an only son, his successor, in 1517.

FRANCIS SHIRLEY, Esq., Sheriff of the Cos. of Warwick and Leicester, in the 4th year of PHILIP and MARY. This gentleman m. Dorothy, dau. of Sir John Gifford, of Chilmington, Co. Stafford, and widow of John Congreve, Esq. He d. in 1571, and was s. by his grandson,

Sir Henry d. in 1639, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR CHARLES, then in his ninth year. This gentleman d. unm. in 1646, when the title devolved upon his brother,

SIR SEYMOUR, s. to the title, and m. Diana, dau. of Robert, Earl of Aylesbury, by whom he left an only son, who s. as 6th Bart., but survived his father a short period, when the title reverted to

SIR ROBERT (Sir Seymour's brother), who had been previously knighted. This gentleman being grandson and heir of Lady Dorothy Devereux, the younger of the two sisters and heirs of Robert Devereux, last Earl of Essex, of that family, and the issue of the elder sister becoming extinct, his Majesty CHARLES II. was graciously pleased, 14 Dec., 1677, to terminate the abeyance of the ancient Baronies of Ferrers of Chartley, Bouchier, and Lovaine, in his favour; these Baronies being so situated since the decease of the abovementioned Robert, last Earl of Essex. Sir Robert Shirley became thus Lord Ferrers, of Chartley, &c. His Lordship was of the Privy-Councils of King WILLIAM and Queen ANNE, and was created, by the latter Sovereign, 3 Sept., 1711, Viscount Tamworth, and EARL FRANKS. Lineage.

This family is of Saxon origin, and was seated at Fetherston, in Northumberland, before the Conquest; that part of the county having been allotted to its progenitor, a Saxon officer, for his gallant conduct against the Britons.

The surname is said to have been thus derived: The house in which the family resided was formerly upon a hill (where were two stones, called fether stones), and was moated round as a barrier against the Scots; but, upon being destroyed, a new edifice was erected in the holme or valley under the hill, which valley was locally denominated a haugh, and thence the appellation of "Fetherstonhaugh."

The family of Fetherstonhaugh was first raised to the dignity of Bart. in 1600, in the person of HENRAGE, grandson of CUTHBERT FETHERSTONE, of Hathery Clough, in the parish of Stanhope, Co. Durham, who settled in London towards the latter end of the 16th century. The honor, however, expired with his last surviving son and heir,

SIR HENRY FETHERSTONHAUGH, who enjoined his heir-at-law to obtain a revival of the same, which heir, FIFE, EARL OF (James Duff, K.T., G.C.H.), Viscount Macduff and Baron Braco, of Kilbryde, Co. Cavan, in the Peerage of Ireland; Baron Fife, in the Peerage of the United Kingdom; Lord-Lieut. of the Co. Banff; a Lord of the Bedchamber; Knight of the Spanish Order of St. Ferdinand; s. to the Irish honors, as 4th Earl, upon the demise of his father, 17 April, 1811, and obtained the Barony of the Empire by patent of creation, dated, 27 April, 1827. The Earl distinguished himself during the Peninsular war, having Volunteered his services, and obtained the rank of Major-Gen., in the Spanish Patriotic Army: he was wounded at the battle of Talavera, and again at the storming of Fort Matagorda, near Cadiz.

Lineage.

This noble family derives from FYFE MACDUFF, a Chieftain of great wealth and power, who lived about the year 834, and who afforded to KENNETH II., King of Scotland, strong aid against his enemies, the Picts. In reward of these services, Macduff received from the monarch a grant of all the lands then called Othellinia, which he himself had conquered from the Picts, and which extended from Fifeness to Clackmannan, from east to west, and from the river Forth on the south, to the rivers Tay and Erne on the north. Of this tract of land, which he called Fife, Macduff was appointed Hereditary Thane. The 8th in descent from him was the

MACDUFF with whom the genius of Shakspeare has made the world familiar. This powerful Thane, having mainly contributed to the destruction of the usurper MACBETH, and to the restoration of MALCOLM CANN-MORR, the latter King confirmed to him his Co. of Fife, of which he created him Earl, in 1061. The 13th Earl,

DUNCAN, dying, in 1353, without issue male, the Earldom became extinct. His descendant, however, DAVID DUFF, received, in 1401, from ROBERT III., a grant of considerable lands, and of the Barony of Muldavit, which continued to be one of the chief titles of the family, until alienated in the beginning of the reign of CHARLES II. The descendant of David Duff,

WILLIAM DUFF, Esq., was elevated to the Peerage of Ireland, by the Queen Regent CAROLINE, as Baron Braco, of Kilbryde, 28 July, 1735; and advanced to a Viscounty and Earldom, 26 April, 1759, by the titles of Viscount Mac Duff, and EARL OF FIFE. His Lordship s. to the Irish honors, as 8th Earl, at the decease of his father, 21 Aug., 1793, and obtained the Barony of the Empire by creation, 16 June, 1831.

Lineage.

This noble family is of Danish origin, but its settlement in Ireland is so remote that nothing certain can be ascertained as to the precise period. So early as the 11th century, we find

JOHN PLUNKET was seated at Beaulieu, or Bewley, Co. Meath, the constant residence of the elder branch of his descendants. The successor, at Bewley, in the beginning of the 13th century,

JOHN PLUNKET, living temp. HENRY III., had two sons, John, ancestor of the Lords Louth, and

RICHARD PLUNKET, of Rathregan, Co. Meath, who, with his son and heir, RICHARD PLUNKET, by Royal Writs of Parliamentary Summons, was summoned to, and sat in, the Parliaments and great Council of 1374, the one as a Baron, and the other "de Consilio regis." To the same parliament and council was also summoned as a Baron, "Waltero de Cusake Militi," Lord of Killeen, whose heir general afterwards, as wife of Lord Christopher Plunket, was heretofore thought to have first brought the dignity of a Parliamentary Barony into this branch of the Plunket family, but how erroneously, may best be seen by reference to the writs of summons* of the 48th of EDWARD III., before alluded to. The younger Richard Plunket, was father of

SIR CHRISTOPHER PLUNKET, Knt. This gentleman, as a recompense for the services he had rendered in the wars of Ireland, and an indemnity for the expenses he had incurred, had a grant of a sum of money from HENRY VI., in 1496; before which time he was Sheriff of Meath, and in 1432, was Deputy to Sir Thomas Stanley, Knt., Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland. Sir Christopher m. in 1403, Joan, only dau. and heir of Sir Lucas Cusac, Knt., Lord of Killeen, Dunsany, and Gerardston, Co. Meath, and became in her right, proprietor of the Barony of Killeen. He d. in 1445, and was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN PLUNKET, 2nd Lord of Killeen, who was s. by his son,

SIR CHRISTOPHER PLUNKET, (who in an Act of Parliament, 27th HENRY VI. is called "Christofre Plunket le puisne Seigneur de Killeen") 3rd Lord of Killeen. This feudal Lord m. twice: 1st Genet, dau. of — Bellew, of Bellewstown, by whom he had two sons: the younger of whom, Broughton, fell at the battle of Stoke, in 1487, fighting for Lambert Simnel: Sir Christopher espoused, 2ndly, Elizabeth dau. of Sir William Wells, Lord-Chancellor of Ireland, by his wife, a dau. of Barnwall of Crickston, by whom (who was m. 2ndly, to John Fleming of Newcastle, Lord Slane) he had dau., who m. Nicholas, 16th Baron of Howth, and two sons. Sir Christopher d. in 1487, and was s. by his elder son,

CHRISTOPHER PLUNKET, 4th Lord of Killeen, who had summons to Parliament in 1463, and is called in a statute of that year, "Christofre Plunket, Esquier, Fitz and Heire de Christofre Plunket, Chevalier, Jadets Seigneur de Killeen." He d. without issue, and was s. by his brother and heir male,

EDMUND, Lord of Killeen, whose titles and descent are set forth in a statute of the year 1470, and who is styled in the Roll bearing date 1481, as Edmundus Plunket, Dominus de Killeen. He had issue, a son and heir,

SIR JOHN PLUNKET, Lord of Killeen, who was sworn of the Privy Council to HENRY VIII., and was found by inquisition to have had four sons:

- Patrick, his heir, who d. s. p.
- CHRISTOPHER, who was heir to his brother.
- Henry, who d. s. p.
- James.

The second son,

LORD CHRISTOPHER PLUNKET, who s. to the titles and estates, as heir to his brother Patrick, was an active and gallant nobleman, who discharged many high functions and commissions under the royal authority. He sat in the Parliament of 1509, and having married the grandaun. of the Baron of Slane, left issue, three daus., his co-heirs,

- Maude, m. to the Baron of Louth.
- Catherine, m. to David Sutton, Esq.
- Margaret, m. to Nicholas Aylmer, of Dullardston, Esq.

Lord Christopher was s. by his brother, and heir male,

JAMES PLUNKET, Lord Killeen, whose inheritance of the ancient family dignity was not opposed or questioned by the daus., co-heirs of his deceased brother, and he took his place in the House of Peers in the year 1585. On the 15 April, 1589, he enfeoffed trustees in his family estates, and was s. at his decease by his son and heir,

CHRISTOPHER PLUNKET, Baron of Killeen, when aged 31, who sat in the Parliament of 1613, and dying soon after, was s. by his eldest son,

LUCAS, the 10th Lord, styled Lucas More. This nobleman had a large grant of territory, in 1613, and was created

* The writs of summons as taken from the ancient close rolls in Ireland will be found in a recent legal work on Irish titles "Case illustrative of the Law and Usage of the Prescriptive Baronies of Ireland, as distinguished from the law of Baronies by writ peculiar to England," by William Lynch, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, London. Sweet, Chancery Lane, 1835.

EARL OF FINGAL, 26 Sept., 1698, JAMES I. precluding the honor by a most flattering letter, dated Westminster, 28 June, in that year, beginning thus:—"That having received good testimonies of the virtuous and many good parts of his right trusty and well-beloved subject, the Lord Baron Killeen, being one of the ancient nobility of Ireland, his Majesty was pleased," &c. &c. His Lordship m. four times, and had issue by his 2nd marriage with Susannah, 8th dau. of Edward, Lord Brabazon (only), of which,

CHRISTOPHER, the eldest son, succeeded to the honors. George, the 4th son, a Captain of Foot, at the siege of Drogheda, in 1641, and afterwards Colonel in the Rebel army. He m. Cicely, dau. of Sir William Hill, of Allenston, Co. Meath, and had

JAMES, who m. 1st, Catherine, dau. of Edward Plunket, of Loughcrew, and niece of Oliver Plunket, Titular Primate of all Ireland, in 1681, a clergyman of great virtues and ability, who fell a victim to the times in which he lived, being most unjustly executed in 1681, as one of the conspirators in the pretended Popish plot. By this lady he had a dau., Mary, m. to William O'Mara. He m. 2ndly, Mary, dau. of Robert Cusack, Esq. of Jerriestown, Co. Meath, and had with other issue,

ROBERT, who s. as 6th Earl.

His Lordship d. in 1637, and was s. by his eldest son,

CHRISTOPHER, 2nd Earl. This nobleman, having been made prisoner at the battle of Rathmines, d. in the Castle of Dublin fourteen days afterwards, A.D. 1649, and was s. by his son, (by Mabel, dau. of Nicholas, Viscount Kingsland),

LUKE, 3rd Earl, who was restored to his estates and honors, by the Court of Claims, and was s. at his decease by his only son,

PETER, 4th Earl. This nobleman was outlawed, by the name of Luke, in 1691, for his loyalty to his legitimate sovereign JAMES II., but the outlawry was reversed in six years afterwards, A.D. 1697. His Lordship m. Frances, 3rd dau. of Sir Edward Hales, Bart., and, dying 24 Jan., 1717, left issue,

Margaret, m. to J. Nugent, of Coolamber, Esq.

Emilia, m. to Robert, Earl Nugent.

Mary, m. to Maurice O'Connor, Esq. of Mount Pleasant, King's Co.

His Lordship was s. by his only son,

JUSTIN, 5th Earl, who d. in 1733, without issue, and intestate, and was s. in his titles and estates by his cousin and heir male,

ROBERT, 6th Earl, (refer to George, 2nd son of Lucas, 1st Earl), who enjoyed the honors without opposition or question, on the part of the three daus. and heirs lineal of Peter, 4th Earl. In about a century afterwards, however, the grandson of the youngest dau., Maurice O'Connor, Esq., made claim to the Barony of Killeen, as a Barony created by writ, and as such inheritable through females. Like all other claims of the same nature, it has been unsuccessful, though brought forward at a time when the feelings of the Irish Government were violently excited against the Earl of Fingall. Robert, 6th Earl of Fingall, was a Captain in Berwick's regiment, in the service of France. He m. Mary, dau. of Roger Magenis, Esq., and dying in 1738, was s. by his eldest son,

ARTHUR-JAMES, 7th Earl, then in his seventh year. His Lordship m. in 1755, Henrietta-Maria, only dau. and heir of William Woolascot,* Esq. of Wolhampton, Co. Berks, by whom (who d. 12 March, 1806) he had issue,

Lineage.

In 1565, Hugh Fitz William, Esq. of Sprotburgh, Co. York, collected the records of his family, and from these records the following particulars are partly deduced.

SIR WILLIAM FITZ GODRIC, cousin to King EDWARD the Confessor, left a son and heir,

SIR WILLIAM FITZWILLIAM, who, being Ambassador at the Court of WILLIAM, Duke of Normandy, attended that Prince in his victorious expedition against England, as Marshal of the Army, A.D. 1066; and for his valor at the battle of Hastings, the Conqueror presented him with a scarf from his own arm. This Sir William was father of

SIR WILLIAM FITZWILLIAM, Knt., who m. Eleanor, dau. and heir of Sir John Elmley, of Elmley and Sprotburgh, by which marriage the Fitzwilliams obtained the lordships of Elmley and Sprotborough, which continued with them until the reign of HENRY VIII., when those lordships were carried, by co-heirs, into the families of Suthill and Copley. Sir William was s. by his son,

SIR WILLIAM FITZWILLIAM, Lord of Elmley and Sprotburgh, living in 1117, as appears from a grant made by him of a piece of the wood in Elmley to the Monks of Piland. To this grant, in a round seal, is represented a man on horseback, completely armed, and circumscribed, S. Willmi Fitiij Willmi Dni de Emmalaia; and on the reverse, the arms of Fitzwilliam, viz. Lozenge. This Sir William, or one of his descendants, caused a cross to be set up in the high street of Sprotborough, with these words engraven on brass:—

"Whoso is hungry, and list, will eate,
Let him come to Sprotburgh to his meate;
And for a night, and for a day,
His horse shall have both corn and hay,
And no man shall ask him where he goeth away."

Which cross was pulled down in 1520. From this Sir William we pass to his descendant,

SIR JOHN FITZWILLIAM, who founded, in 1372, the Chantry of St. Edward, in the Church of Sprotburgh; and, having m. Elizabeth, dau. of William, Lord Clinton, had three sons, the eldest of whom,

SIR WILLIAM FITZWILLIAM, m. Maud, dau. of Ralph, Lord Cromwell, of Tattershall, and co-heir of the Lord-Treasurer Cromwell, by whom he had one son and two daus., and was s. by the former,

SIR JOHN FITZWILLIAM, who m. Eleanor, dau. of Sir Henry Green, of Drayton, and had six sons and a dau. The youngest son,

JOHN FITZWILLIAM, Esq. of Milton and Green's-Norton, in Northamptonshire, m. Eleanor, dau. of William Villers, Esq. of Brokesby, Co. Leicester, by whom he had three sons and two daus., and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR WILLIAM FITZWILLIAM, of Milton, of Gainspark, Co. Essex, and also of the city of London, of which he was Sheriff, in 1506, and subsequently Alderman of Bread-street Ward. He had been for some time in the train of Cardinal Wolsey, and retiring afterwards to his house at Milton, there gave his old master, the Cardinal, in the hour of his disgrace, a kind reception; for which conduct, being brought to task by King HENRY, he replied, that he had not acted in contemptuous disobedience of his Highness's orders, but in gratitude to the fallen minister, who had been his master, and partly the founder of his good fortune: at which answer the King was so pleased, that he immediately knighted Mr. Fitzwilliam, and made him one of his Privy-Council. Sir William m. 1st, Anne, dau. of Sir John Hawes, Knt. of the city of London, and had WILLIAM, his heir, with another son and dau. He espoused, 2ndly, Mildred, dau. of Richard Sackville, of Buckhurst, Co. Sussex, and had three sons and two daus. He d. in 1534, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR WILLIAM FITZWILLIAM, Knt., who m. Anne, dau. of Sir Richard Sapcote, of Elton, Co. Huntingdon, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR WILLIAM FITZWILLIAM, who was Lord-Deputy and Lord-Justice of Ireland, from 1560 to 1594. This eminent person is thus noticed by Fuller in his Worthies of England:—"Sir William Fitzwilliam was five times Lord-Deputy of Ireland, a sufficient evidence of his honesty and ability. Queen ELIZABETH never trusting twice, where she was once deceived, in a Minister of State. And she also preserved him in the power of his place, that sending over Walter, Earl of Essex, to be Governor of Ulster, the Earl was ordered to take his commission from the Lord-Deputy." Sir William m. Anne, dau. of Sir William Sydney, and aunt of the 1st Earl of Leicester, and, dying in 1599, was s. by the elder of two sons, Donegal*. His Lordship m. Catherine, dau. of William Hyde, Esq. of South Denchworth, Co. Berks, and, dying 6 Jan., 1643-4, was s. by his elder son,

JOHN, 2nd Earl, who m. Anne, dau. and sole heir of John Stringer, Esq. of Sutton-upon-Lound, Co. Nottingham, and, dying 28 Aug., 1728, was succeeded by his only son, WILLIAM, 3rd Earl. His Lordship was enrolled amongst the Peers of Great Britain, by GEORGE II., 19 April, 1742, in the dignity of Lord Fitzwilliam, Baron Milton, Co. Northampton; and advanced 6 Sept., 1746, to an English Viscounty and Earldom, as Viscount Milton, and EARL FITZWILLIAM, of Norborough, in the same County. * The 13th Lord left two daus., Jean m. to James Dundas, of Dundas, and Elizabeth, m. to John Gregory, M.D.

FOR Lineage.

This is a branch of the noble House of Forbes, Lords Forbes, springing from

THE HON. PATRICK FORBES, of Corse, (Armour-Bearer, by charter, dated 13 Oct., 1482, to JAMES III.) 3rd son of James, 2nd Lord Forbes, by Lady Egidia Keith, dau. of William, 1st Earl Marischal. This Patrick was father of

DAVID FORBES, Esq., Laird of Corse, whose great grandson,

THE RT. REV. PATRICK FORBES, of Corse, was, for 17 years, Bishop of Aberdeen, and a distinguished ornament of the Reformed Church. His Lordship d. 1635, and his male line failing with his grand-children, the representation of the family reverted to the descendants of his brother,

WILLIAM FORBES, Esq. This gentleman having realised a large fortune by commercial pursuits at Dantzic, purchased the unfinished Castle of Craigyvar, from the family of Mortimer, and having completed the structure in a splendid manner, furnished it after the most sumptuous fashion of the period, A.D. 1626, and took his designation therefrom. The castle is seven stories high, and though not inhabited, is still kept in good repair. The name of Craigyvar, or in Gaelic, "Creg a Mhar," means the rock of Mer; and the place, from tradition, derives considerable interest. In its immediate vicinity are two or three long trenches on the top of the hill of Corse, supposed to be a camp or fortification of Macbeth; and near this, there are a great number of small tumuli, now overgrown with short heath, the last memorials of those who fell, "when Birnim wood came to Dunsinane." At a small distance from these, and upon the same hill, the spot is shown where Macduff killed Macbeth; and there is still a large cairn called Macbeth's, in which ancient arms were found some years ago. This William Forbes m. Margaret Udward, dau. of the Lord-Provost of Edinburgh, and was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

I. WILLIAM FORBES, Esq. of Craigyvar, who was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, 20 April, 1639. Sir William appears to have engaged on the side of the Parliamentarians during the Civil Commotions. In 1641, he was appointed, by the Republicans, one of the Commissioners for planting kirks; in 1645, one of the Committee of Estates; in 1646, one of the Commissioners for selling Malignants' Estates; and in 1647, Sheriff of Aberdeen. He m. Bethia, dau. of Sir Archibald Murray, of Blackbarony, and was s. by his eldest son,

II. SIR JOHN, who m. Margaret Young, dau. of the Laird of Auldhur, and was s. by his eldest son,

V. SIR WILLIAM, who m. the Hon. Sarah Semphill, eldest dau. of John, 12th Lord Semphill, by whom he had, with seven daus., (of whom the 2nd, Margaret, was m. to Robert Wallace, Esq. of Kelly, Ayrshire,) two sons,

Sir William was indeed a person of more than ordinary accomplishments, of the most fascinating manners, and of considerable literary abilities, as his "Life of Beattie" sufficiently attests. He m. Lineage.

This noble family deduces its origin from Sir Richard le Forte, a distinguished soldier in the invading army of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, who protected his royal master, at the celebrated battle of Hastings, by bearing a strong shield before him; from which event, the French word "escue," (a shield) was added to the original surname of "Forte," and thus Fortescue produced. The son of this gallant warrior,

SIR ADAM FORTESCUE, Knt., being also a Commanding

Officer in the same conflict, obtained, from the successful monarch, a grant of Wimondeston, or, as it is now written, Winston, Co. Devon, of which he became Lord. The descendant of this Sir Adam,

WILLIAM FORTESCUE, m. Elizabeth, sister and co-heir of Thomas Beauchamp, of Ryme, Co. Dorset, and widow of Richard Branscomb, by whom he left two sons,

Sir John was esteemed a very eminent Lawyer, and was the author of a celebrated treatise entitled "De Laudibus Legum Angliæ," in which he calls himself Cancellarius Angliæ. IV. Jane.

Sir James s. to the honors of the family upon the demise of his kinsman, Sir James Foulis, in 1825, and is the 7th Bart. of Colinton.

Lineage.

It is universally admitted, that the surname of Foulis is of Norman Origin. The progenitor of the family came into England either at, or before the Conquest, and his armorial bearings being three leaves, called Feuilles, in the old Norman, it is certain that the name was either given to the family whilst residing in South Britain, or else assumed by the individual who first took up his abode in Scotland, in the reign of MALCOLM CAN-MOHR, when surnames were for the first time adopted.

JAMES FOULIS, Esq. of Colinton, living temp. Queen MARY, and JAMES VI., of Scotland, m. Agnes Heriot, heir of Lumphoy, and had four sons,

JAMES, his successor.

George, progenitor of the Ravelston family.

David, progenitor of the English Baronets Foulis, of Ingleby Manor, Co. York.

John, of Leadhills; whose grandau., Anne, heir of Leadhills, m. Sir James Hope, of Hopetoun, from whom the Earls of Hopetoun descend.

This James Foulis was s. at his decease, by his eldest son, SIR JAMES FOULIS, Knt. This gentleman m. Mary, dau. of Sir John Lauder, of Hatton, and was s. by his only son,

I. ALEXANDER FOULIS, Esq., who was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, with remainder to his heirs male whatsoever, 7 June, 1634. Sir Alexander m. Elizabeth, dau. of Robert Hepburn, Esq. of Ford, great-grandau. of the Earl of Bothwell, and relict of the great Sheriff of Bute; (by whom she had a son, the progenitor of the Marquess of Bute). By this lady, Sir Alexander had one dau., who was m. to the first Earl of Haddington, and an only son, his successor.

II. SIR JAMES. This gentleman had the honor of knighthood conferred upon him during the lifetime of his father, and was actively engaged in the unfortunate warfare which ravaged Scotland after the death of King CHARLES I. Having, along with others, attended a Convention of the Committee of Estates, at Elliot, in Angus, he was betrayed into the hands of the English, and, with his companions, the Earls of Leven, Crawford, Marischal, Lord Ogilvy, and several gentlemen of rank, surprised on Thursday morning, 28 Aug., 1631, by a squadron of Dragoons, commanded by Col. Aldridge, who carried the whole party to Brugty, and consigned them thence in a vessel to London. After the restoration of the Monarchy, Sir James was constituted, in 1661, one of the Senators of the College of Justice; and, in 1684, appointed Lord-Chief-justice Clerk, which high offices he held under the titular designation of Lord Colinton. His Lordship m. Barbara, dau. of Alexander Ainsley, Esq. of Dolphington, by whom he had two sons. He d. 19 Jan., 1618, and was s. by the elder,

III. SIR JAMES, a Lord of Session, Privy-Councillor, and Member of the last Scottish Parliament, in 1706, at which time he joined the Duke of Hamilton, and Atholl, and many others of the nobility and gentry, in their celebrated protest, made by Lord Errol, the Earl Marischal, respecting the most constitutional military defence of the House of Legislature. He also joined in the protest which declared that an incorporating union of the two nations was inconsistent with the honor of Scotland. Sir James had, subsequently a seat in the first British Parliament. He m. Sir James d. in 1711, and was s. by his eldest son,

IV. SIR JAMES; at whose decease, nam., in 1742, the title devolved upon his nephew,

V. SIR JAMES, eldest and only surviving son of Henry Foulis, Esq. (third son of Sir James, the 3rd Bart.,) by Jean, dau. of James Foulis, Esq., Merchant, in Edinburgh, and niece of Sir John Foulis, of Kavelston, Bart., (so created in 1661.) This gentleman m. Mary, dau. of Archibald Wightman, by whom he had two sons and three daus., and was s. at his decease in Jan., 1791, by his only surviving son,

The present Sir James represents, therefore, the house of Colinton, Woodhall and Ravelston. The second Bart. of Ravelston, (who was son of the 1st Baronet's eldest son, George-Primrose Foulis, Esq., by whom the lands of Dunhaec were inherited in right of his mother, Margaret, dowager of Sir Archibald-Primrose and mother of the first Earl of Rosebury), bore the designation of Sir Archibald, Primrose, of Ravelston; which Sir Archibald m. his cousin, Lady Mary Primrose, dau. of the 1st Earl of Rosebery, and had an only son, Archibald, who d. in early life, issueless. Lineage.

The noble and ancient family of Morres, or Morris, descended from the ducal House of Montmorency, (of which this is a branch,) came into England with the Norman Conqueror, and having obtained a grant of lands in the principality of Wales, soon after settled in the Isle of Anglesey.

HERVEY DE MONTE MARISCOE, the nephew of Richard,

Earl Strongbow, accompanied his uncle in the expedition to Ireland, and obtained considerable territorial grants in the counties of Wexford, Tipperary, and Kerry, some of which still remain in the possession of the family, but the great part has been carried by intermarriages into the Houses of Leinster and Ormonde. From this Hervey descended

SIR JOHN MORRES, Bart., of Knockagh, Co. Tipperary, whose grandson,

HERVEY MORRES, Esq., settled in the Co. Kilkenny, upon lands obtained from CROMWELL, and through his influence with the usurper (into whose service he had entered,) preserved the property of his elder brother from confiscation. After the Restoration, Mr. Morres had the Cromwellian grant confirmed by CHARLES II., and erected into the manor of Castlemorres, with ample privileges attached. Lineage.

This family is undoubtedly of great antiquity in the Co. of York, where it is probable it first settled at the time of the Conquest: soon after that event, we find the Norman names of Julian, Sigga, Gilbert, William, and Robert Frankland or Franckland attached to grants of lands to the Abbies and Priories of Coutin-North, Carleton, near Thirsk, and to several other places in the Co. of York. WILLIAM FRANKLAND, of Rye, in Hertfordshire, acquired a considerable fortune in trade as a Clothworker, and was one of the principal persons who, in 1530, obtained a charter for the incorporation of the Clothiers' Company; he died in 1570, leaving all his wealth to his brother,

In consequence, with real, or pretended fury, they plundered and slew Mr. Frankland, and every other European they could find.

F R A FRASER.

FRASER, SIR WILLIAM-AUGUSTUS, of Ledecune, Co. Inverness, b. in 1825; s. to the title, as 4th Bart., upon the demise of his father, 5 June, 1834.

Lineage.

The founder of the family of Fraser is said to have been one Pierre, a Frenchman (See Lord Saltoun), who arrived in Scotland in the reign of ACHATUS, when the famous league was entered into with France. The posterity of this individual became Thanes of the Isle of Man, and afterwards settling in Tweeddale, generally adopted the surname of Fraser, when such designations came into use.

I. WILLIAM FRASER, Esq. (directly descended from Hugh Fraser, first Lord Lovat,* through Alexander, his second son), was created a Baronet, 27 Nov., 1806. - IV. Elizabeth-Maria.
- V. Anna-Maria.

Lineage.

The family of Gage, which is of Norman extraction, derives its descent from De Gaga, Guage, or Gage, who accompanied WILLIAM the CONQUEROR into England, and was rewarded with large grants of land in the Forest of Dean, and the Co. Gloucester; adjacent to which Forest he fixed his abode, and erected a seat at Clerenwell, otherwise Clurewell; he also built a large mansion-house in the town of Cirencester, where he died, and was buried in the Abbey there. The ancestor of the present Lord Gage,

JOHN GAGE, whose name is found in deeds temp. HENRY IV., and who was lineally descended from the Norman, left a son,

JOHN GAGE, who m. Joan, dau. and co-heir of John Sudgrove, of Sudgrove, Co. Gloucester. The son and successor of this John,

SIR JOHN GAGE, Knt. made great additions to his Estate, by purchases, and, further, by marrying Eleanor, dau. and heir of Thomas St. Clare, Esq., Lord of the Manor of Aston Clinton, Co. Bucks. The grandson of Sir John, another

SIR JOHN GAGE, Knt., was a distinguished soldier and statesman, in the reigns of HENRY VIII., EDWARD VI., and QUEEN MARY, and his services are thus detailed in an ancient MS. written by his 3rd son, Robert Gage, of Haling, Co. Surrey:

"Sir John Gage, Knt., who was, after his father's death, in ward to W. Stafford, Duke of Buckingham: and after his marriage to my mother, dau. of Sir Richard Gulde-ford, was preferred by the said Duke to HENRY VIII.'s service, and distinguishing himself at the siege of Trevon, was thereupon made Captain of the Castle of Calais (usually called Guynes), shortly after was sent for home, and Knighted, and made of the Privy-Council, Vice-Chamberlain, and Captain of the Guards; few years after, for services done on the borders of Scotland, at his return, was made Comptroller of the Household, and Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, in one day. In a few days after, he was made Constable of the Tower of London, and, the next St. George's Feast, Knight of the most noble Order of the Garter; at the winning of Bullogne, (36th HENRY VIII.), he was in joint commission with Charles, Duke of Suffolk, Lord-Lieutenant of His Majesty's Camp, and for sundry services there with Sir Anthony Brown, Knt., Master of the Horse, was made General Captain of the Bands of Horsemen. After the death of our Sovereign Lord, EDWARD VI., at the coming of Queen Mary, was made her Lord-Chamberlain. Thus, having served in all these rooms and offices, truly, faithfully, and painfully, from the 1st year of our Sovereign Lord, HENRY VIII., of famous memory, unto the 5th year of QUEEN MARY, untouched with any reproach, or unfaithful service, at this time, being seventy-seven years of age, he ended his life, in favour with his Prince, at his own house, at Firie, in Sussex."

Lineage.

This very ancient family springs from a common ancestor with the Dukes of Leinster, in Ireland, and the Earls of Plymouth in England, namely:

OTHO, or OTHER, a rich and powerful Lord, temp. King ALFRED, descended from the Dukes of Tuscany. According to Sir William Dugdale, this Otho was a Baron of England in the 10th of EDWARD the Confessor, and was father of

WALTER FITZOTHO, or FITZOTHER, who, at the General Survey of the kingdom, in 1078, was Castellan of Windsor, and appointed by WILLIAM the Conqueror, Warden of the Forests in Berkshire. This Walter left three sons:—Robert, the 2nd son, was Baron of Eston, or Estaines in Essex, which Barony continued with his descendants until purchased by Sir Henry Maynard, temp. Queen ELIZABETH, and it now gives title to Sir Henry's descendant, Lord Maynard, of Estaines. William, the youngest son, was ancestor of the Lords Windsor; from which Lords descended the Earls of Plymouth; and the eldest son,

GERALD or GERARD, generally surnamed Fitzwalter, having m. Nesta, dau. of Rees, son of Theodore the Great, Prince of South Wales, had three sons, viz.,

(11 April, 1807,) summoned to Parliament in his father's Barony of Gordon, of Huntly. His Grace m. 11 Dec., 1813, Elizabeth, dau. of the late Alexander Brodie, Esq. of Arn Hall.

Lineage.

Although there are numerous histories of this illustrious family extant, yet the historians do not coincide as to its origin and first settlement in Great Britain. Some bring the Gordons from Greece to Gaul, and thence into Scotland, at least a thousand years ago; while others convey them from Spain, Flanders, &c. The most probable conjecture, however, is that some of those Gordons came into England with WILLIAM, Duke of Normandy, and into Scotland with King MALCOLM CANMORE. Indeed, there is a tradition in North Britain that the first of the name who crossed the Tweed was a valiant Knight, a favourite of MALCOLM's, who, having killed a wild boar which greatly infested the borders, obtained a grant of lands in the Merse, or Berwickshire, which he called Gordon, after his own surname; and, settling there, assumed the boar's head for his armorial bearing, in commemoration of the exploit. Be the early origin, however, what it may, and there is no doubt that it was distinguished, the ducal family of which we are about to treat deduces its direct maternal descent from

SIR JOHN DE GORDON, Knt., who obtained, in the 28th year of DAVID II., a charter, dated 20 March, 1357-8, confirming the donation which ROBERT I. had made to his grandfather, Sir Adam de Gordon, of the lands of Strathbogie, and was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN DE GORDON, who obtained a confirmatory charter of the same lands from ROBERT II., dated 16 June, 1376. In the next year, the Earl of March having attacked and burned the town of Roxburgh, the English borderers retaliated on the lands of Sir John Gordon, who, passing the border, encountered Sir John de Lilburn, and, after a desperate affray, defeated him at Carham. Sir John Gordon had also a chief hand in the defeat and capture of Sir Thomas de Musgrave, Governor of Berwick, in 1378, after a severe conflict. Sir John fell, eventually, at the battle of Otterburn, in Aug., 1388, leaving a son,

SIR ADAM GORDON, Knt., of Huntly, who was slain in 1402, at the battle of Homildon, and was s. in his estates by his only dau. (by his wife, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir William de Keith, great-marshal of Scotland).

ELIZABETH GORDON, who m. Alexander Seton (2nd son of Sir William Seton, of Seton), and obtained, in conjunction with her husband, from Robert, Duke of Albany, a charter, dated 20 July, 1408, to their joint heirs, and, in default, to the heirs of the said Elizabeth, of the Baronies of Gourdon and Huntly, &c., and thenceforward the said Alexander was styled Lord of Gordon and Huntly. Of this marriage there were two sons and a dau.,

ALEXANDER.

William, ancestor of the Setons of Meldrum.

Elizabeth, m. to Alexander, Earl of Ross.

The eldest son,

ALEXANDER SETON, Lord of Gordon and Huntly, was created, 29 Jan., 1449-50, Earl of Huntly, with limitation to his heirs male by his 3rd wife, Elizabeth, dau. of William, Lord Crichton, Chancellor of Scotland, such heirs assuming the surname and bearing the arms of Gordon. His Lordship m. thrice: 1st, Jane, dau. of Robert, son and heir of William, 1st Earl-Marshall, by whom he acquired a great estate, but had no issue; 2ndly, Egidia, dau. and heir of Sir John Hay, of Tullibody, by whom he had a son, Sir Alexander Seton, who s. to his mother's estates, and was progenitor of the Setons, of Touch; the Earl m. 3rdly, Elizabeth, dau. of Lord Crichton, by whom he had (with other children) his successor,

GEORGE, 2nd Earl of Huntly, who m. 1st, Princess Annabella, dau. of JAMES I. of Scotland, and relict of James, Earl of Angus, by whom he had

ALEXANDER, his successor.

Adam, Lord of Aboyne, who, marrying Elizabeth, Countess of Sutherland, became Earl of Sutherland, in her right.

William, (Sir) ancestor of the Gordons of Gight, fell at Flodden.

James, (Sir) of Letterfourie, Admiral of Scotland in 1513.

And six daus.

Lord Huntly m. 2ndly, Elizabeth, eldest dau. of William, 1st Earl of Errol, and relict of Patrick, master of Grey, and, dying in 1470, was s. by his eldest son, ALEXANDER, 3rd Earl, who m. 1st, Lady Johanna Stewart, eldest dau. of John, Earl of Atholl, by whom he had four sons* and two daus.; the (second, but) eldest son at maturity, John, Lord Gordon, m. Margaret, natural dau. of JAMES IV. and, dying in 1517, left two sons, the elder of whom s. to the honors, at the decease of his grandfather. The Earl m. 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Andrew, Lord Gray, and relict of John, 6th Lord Glamis. He d. in 1523, and was s. by his grandson,

GEORGE, 4th Earl, who was constituted LORD-CHANCELLOR OF SCOTLAND, and had the great seal delivered to him 10 June, 1540. His Lordship took an active part in the political affairs of his country, during the reign of King JAMES V., the Regency of that Monarch's Dowager, and the reign of the unfortunate MARY, his daughter; and having taken up arms in the feuds which then agitated Scotland, he was defeated by his rival, the Earl of Moray, at Corrichie, near Aberdeen. The consequences of the loss of this battle were most disastrous to the family of Huntly. The Earl himself, thrown from his horse, and too unweildy to rise from the ground, was smothered in the retreat, 28 Oct., 1562, and his body brought to town on a pair of paniers, was afterwards produced in Parliament, when a doom of forfeiture was pronounced against him and his family, which was not reversed until 19 April, 1567. His son, Sir John Gordon, condemned to be beheaded, was butchered at Aberdeen by an unskilful executioner. The Earl was s. by his eldest surviving son (by Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Robert, Lord Keith, and sister of William, 4th Earl Marischal),

GEORGE, 5th Earl. This nobleman, after the unhappy death of his father, was tried for High Treason in 1563, sentenced to be hanged, drawn, and quartered. He was, however, pardoned by the QUEEN, and appointed LORD-CHANCELLOR OF SCOTLAND in 1563. His Lordship m. Lady Anne Hamilton, dau. of James, Earl of Arran, Duke of Chatelherault, Regent of Scotland, and, dying in May, 1576, was s. by his only son,

GEORGE, 6th Earl, who had been created 17 April, 1599, Baron of Badenoch, Lochabar, Strathaven, Achindown, Balmora, Garthie, and Kincardine, Viscount Inverness, Earl of Enzie, and MARQUESS OF HUNTLY. His Lordship m. Lady Henrietta Stewart, eldest dau. of Esme, Duke of Lennox, by whom he had a numerous family. This nobleman was heard to say "that he never drew a sword in his own quarrel. In his youth, a prodigal spender; in his old age, more wise and worldly; yet never counted for cost in matters of credit and honor; a great householder, a terror to his enemies, whom he ever with his prideful ken held under subjection and obedience; just in all his bargains, and never heard for his true debt; he was mightily envied by the kirk for his religion, and by others for his greatness, and thereby had much trouble." His master, King JAMES, loved him dearly, and he was a good and loyal subject to that prince. He d. 16 June, 1636, and was s. by his eldest son,

GEORGE, 2nd Marquess. His Lordship was a staunch adherent of the unfortunate CHARLES I., and was beheaded,

* From the third son, Alexander, descended the Gordons of Clunie, Brismore, &c., and Gen. Gordon, Governor of Pennsylvania, whose dau., Philadelphia, m. Col. Abraham Taylor, and was great grandmother of the present DR. TAYLOR of Clifton. (See BURKE'S Commoners, Vol. iv.)

in consequence, 30 March, 1649. He m. Lady Anne Campbell, dau. of Archibald, 7th Earl of Argyll, and had (with daughters),

This nobleman joined the banner of Montrose during the Civil Wars, but was eventually obliged to fly into France, where he died of grief upon hearing of the melancholy fate of CHARLES I., in 1649; dying mem., the Viscounty expired.

LEWIS, successor to his father.

Charles, created Lord Gordon, of Strathaven, and EARL OF ABOYNE in 1660. (See Earl of Aboyne).

The Marquess was s. by his eldest surviving son,

LEWIS, 3rd Marquess, who was restored to his honors and estates by CHARLES II. His Lordship m. Isabel, dau. of Sir James Grant, of Grant, and was s. in 1653, by his only son,

GEORGE, 4th Marquess. His Lordship was elevated to a Dukedom, as DUKE OF GORDON, 1 Nov., 1684. His Grace m. Lady Elizabeth Howard, 2nd dau. of Henry, Duke of Norfolk, and EARL OF NORWICH, by whom he had a son and a dau., Jane, m. to James Drummond, son of James, 4th Earl of Perth. The Duchess retiring to a convent in Flanders, the Duke instituted a process of adherence in 1697. In 1711, her Grace excited no small attention, by sending to the Dean and Faculty of Advocates a silver medal, with the head of the Chevalier on one side, and on the other the British isles, with the word Reddite. The Dean having presented the medal to the Faculty at their next meeting, a debate ensued about the propriety of admitting it into their repositories, when the affirmative was carried, and a vote passed, to return thanks to the Duchess for her present. Two Advocates, delegated for that purpose, waited upon her Grace, and expressed their hopes that she would soon have an opportunity to compliment the Faculty with a second medal on the Restoration. The Duke was bred up in the Catholic religion, which his family always professed. He was a military character, and served under Turenne at the battle of Strasburg. In 1675, he went over to Flanders, and made a campaign in the Army of the Prince of Orange. He d. 7 Dec., 1716, and was s. by his only son,

Lineage.

This very ancient family deduces its descent from

RAYMOND FITZWILLIAM, of LE GRON, 2nd son of William Fitzgerald, or de Carew, who was eldest son of Gerald Fitzwalter, or de Windsor, 3rd son of Baron Walter Fitz-Other, Governor of Windsor Castle, in 1080.

This Raymond was one of the most powerful Barons, who, with Richard de Clare, surnamed Strongbow, achieved the Conquest of Ireland, of which kingdom, he, the said Raymond, became Viceroy, in 1176, and Commander of the English Forces there. By his marriage with Basilia, dau. of Gilbert de Clare, Earl of Pembroke, and sister of Earl Strongbow, he acquired the extensive district in the Co. From the 2nd son of this marriage, Maurice Fitz-Raymond, Lord of Lixnau and Clanmaurice, the noble house of Fitzmaurice derives, while from the eldest,

Sir Robert is one of the claimants to the Earldom of Annandale and Hartfell, as descendant of Sir George Graham and Lady Mary Johnston (see note).

Lineage.

This family claims descent from the renowned GRAEME, who, anno 404, commanded King Fergus the Second's Army, and was Governor of Scotland in the minority of his grandchild, EUGENE II. In the year 420, this gallant person made a breach in the mighty wall, which the Emperor Severus had erected between the rivers Forth and Clyde, which has ever since borne the name of GRAEME'S DYKE. From the time of this eminent man, the GRAEMES are to be found in the records of Scotland, enjoying the very highest influence: but our limits prohibit individual detail; we therefore pass to

SIR DAVID GRAHAM, of Montrose: who was taken prisoner with King DAVID BRUCE, at the battle of Durham, in 1346, and whose son,

SIR PATRICK GRAHAM, Lord of Dundaff and Kincardine, was appointed one of the hostages for the said King DAVID's ransom, in 1357. This Sir Patrick m. twice: from his 1st marriage descend the Dukes of Montrose; and of the 2nd, (with Eupheme, dau. of Sir John Stewart, of Railston, brother to King ROBERT II.) there was a son,

MALISE, Earl of Strathern, who changed the title to Menteth, that of Strathern being annexed to the Royal House by King ROBERT II. This nobleman m. Anne, dau. of Henry Vere, Earl of Oxford, and had three sons and two daus., the 2nd of which sons,

THE HON. SIR JOHN GRAHAM, of Kilbride, called "John with the bright sword," left

RICHARD GRAHAM, from whom are lineally descended the Grahams of the borders, both of the English and Scottish side, but chiefly the Houses of Netherby and Plomp, Co. Cumberland,

FERGUS GRAHAM, Esq., of Plomp; m. Sibill, dau. of William Bell, Esq. of God's Brigg, in North Britain, and had four sons, the 2nd of whom,

1. RICHARD GRAHAM, Esq., Gentleman of the Horse to JAMES I., was created a Bart., 20 March, 1629, by the style of Sir Richard Graham, of Esk, Co. Cumberland. This gentleman purchased Netherby, and the Barony of Liddell, in the same County, of Francis, Earl of Cumberland. Sir Robert subsequently distinguished himself under the Royal Banner, particularly at Edge-Hill, where he was severely wounded, and lay amongst the slain for an entire night. He m. Catherine, dau. and co-heir of Sir Thomas Musgrave, of Cumcatch, Cumberland, and was s. in 1653, by his elder son, (the younger, Richard, was created a Bart., in 1652, see GRAHAM, of NORTON-CONYERS),

Sir George d. in 1687, and was s. by his eldest son,

III. SIR RICHARD, who was advanced, in 1680, to the Peerage of Scotland, as Viscount Preston, and took his seat in the Scottish Parliament in that dignity. His Lordship was British Ambassador to the Court of France for many years, and subsequently Secretary-of-State to JAMES II. Upon the revolution, the Viscount was committed to the Tower, but soon released from imprisonment. Being afterwards, however, apprehended in an attempt to escape to his old master, in France, he was sent to Newgate, arraigned for high-treason, and condemned, but pardoned through the intercession of his friends, under the sign-manual, in June, 1691. He m. Anne, 2nd dau. of Charles Howard, 1st Earl of Carlisle, by whom he had (with two daus.) his successor, in 1695,

Lineage.

"The ancient and powerful family of Graham," says Sir Walter Scott, in the Lady of the Lake, "held extensive possessions in the counties of Dumbarton and Stirling. Few families can boast of more historical renown, having claim to three of the most remarkable characters in the Scottish annals; Sir John Græme, the faithful and undaunted partaker of the labours and patriotic warfare of Wallace, fell in the unfortunate field of Falkirk, in 1298. The celebrated Marquess of Montrose, in whom De Retz saw realized his abstract ideas of the heroes of antiquity, was the second of these worthies; and notwithstanding the severity of his temper, and the vigour with which he executed the oppressive mandates of the Punics, whom he served, I do not hesitate to name, as the third, John Graham, of Claverhouse, Viscount of Dundee, whose heroic death, in the arms of victory, may be allowed to cancel the memory of his cruelty to the non-conformists, during the reigns of CHARLES II. and JAMES II."

The Grahams, of Norton-Conyers, (of which we are about to treat), the Grahams of Esk, and the Grahams of Netherby, derive their descent from the same common ancestor, namely,

Lord Granard is a Lieut.-Gen. in the Army, and Clerk of the Crown and Hanaper in Ireland.

Lineage.

The surname of Forbes is said to be a corruption of "Forbeast" which was originally assumed by the founder of the family in Scotland, to commemorate the achievement of having destroyed a ferocious bear, which had infested the country.

SIR ARTHUR FORBES, Knt., (directly descended from the Hon. Patrick Forbes, of Corse, younger son of James 2nd Lord Forbes, of Scotland, and Egidia, his wife, dau. of William Keith, Earl Marshal of the same Kingdom), settled in Ireland in 1620, and was made by patent, dated at Dublin, in 1622, a free Denizen of that Kingdom. In 1628, Sir Arthur was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia; and having, by petition to the king, made discovery that several royal fishings in the province of Ulster belonged to the Crown, an inquiry was thereupon instituted, and Sir Arthur, eventually, rewarded by a grant of such proportion of the said fisheries as he thought proper to demand, besides the sum of £300 from the first profits of the remainder. He had previously obtained extensive territorial possessions from the Crown, particularly a grant of sundry lands in the Co. of Longford, in all 1200 acres, which were erected into the manor of Castle Forbes, with the usual manorial privileges. Sir Arthur m. Jane, dau. of — Lowther, Esq., and falling in a duel at Hamburg, in 1632, where he had accompanied his regiment (he was Lieut.-Col. in the Army) to assist Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden, was s. by his eldest son,

This gentleman, who zealously espoused the Royal Cause, in Scotland, was rewarded, after the Restoration, by being sworn of the Privy-Council in Ireland, (A.D. 1670,) and appointed Marshal of the Army in that Kingdom. In 1671, Sir Arthur was constituted one of the Lord's Justices, and again, in 1673, when he was elevated to the Peerage (by patent, dated 22 Nov.), as Baron Clanehugh and Viscount Granard. About the end of the 17th century, he purchased the Estate of Monymusk, from the ancestor of the present Sir John Stuart Forbes, Bart. of Pitsligo, in 1703, he was raised to the dignity of a Bart. of Nova Scotia by Queen ANNE, and 17 May, 1720, he received a special warrant under the hand of his Majesty GEORGE I., granting him the unusual armorial addition of a Bordure Ermine, as a testimony of his Sovereign's favor, and a memorial of his Judicial eminence,—together with Two Angels as Supporters, the motto "Suum cuique," on a scroll above, and the motto "Jehovah Jireh," on a scroll below,—the only instance in Scottish Heraldry of a Hebrew motto. He early foresaw the important advantages that would accrue to Scotland from a union with England; and to this great measure he gave his zealous and influential support. Lineage.

This family is descended from a common progenitor, with the extinct Ducal houses of Suffolk and Kent, the Baronial houses of Gray and Warwick, and the existing houses of Dorset, Tankerville, and Stamford; namely, Anchetit de Croy, one of the companions in arms of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, who obtained large grants of land in the Co. Oxford and other places. From this person sprang

SIR ANDREW GRAY, of Chillingham, Co. Northumberland, who, in reward for his good and faithful services, obtained from King ROBERT BRUCE, in 1306, the Manor of Longforgund, Co. Perth, with other lands in the Co. Forfar, and the lands of Browfield and Broxmouth. From this Sir Andrew directly descended

SIR ANDREW GRAY, of Broxmouth, who was created a Lord of Parliament before 9 Oct., 1437, by the title of LORD GRAY, of Gray. (There is a doubt, however, whether this was the 1st Lord, as the precise date of creation is not ascertained,—see Creation, at foot.) His Lordship m. 1st, Janet, dau. of Sir Roger de Mortimer, with whom he obtained the Barony of Foulis, and by her had a son, Andrew, and six daughters. His Lordship m. Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Sir John Wemyss, of Rires, and was s. by his grandson,

He m. 1st, Janet, only dau. of John, Lord Keith, son of William, Earl Marischal, by whom he had PATRICK, his successor, and two daughters. He resigned the Heritable Sheriffship of Forfarshire to CHARLES I., for which he got his Majesty's bond for 50,000 marks, which was never paid. He was banished the kingdom by the Parliament for being with Montrose, in 1645, but this sentence does not appear to have been carried into effect. He was excommunicated by commission of the General Assembly, in 1649, on account of his being a Roman Catholic; and had a fine of £1,500 imposed upon him by CROMWELL's act of grace and pardon, in 1654. He was prevailed upon by CHARLES II. and the Duke of York, then in exile, to resign the Lieutenancy of the Gens d'Armes in France, in favour of Mareschal Schomberg, which office had long been enjoyed by Scotsmen, and never afterwards could be recovered. Lineage.

This family, which is of Norman extraction, traces its descent from Malahulcius, uncle to Rolo, Duke of Normandy, the renowned ancestor of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR.

NIGELL, younger son of Roger de Toeny, standard-bearer of Normandy, son of the said Malahulcius, arrived in England with an elder brother, Robert, (ancestor of the noble race of the Staffords) in the train of William; and, at the time of the survey, held extensive possessions in the Cos. of Derby and Stafford, of which Graseleor Gresley in the former, where he fixed his abode, was one. This Nigell left a son,

WILLIAM FITZ NIGELL, surnamed 'de Griesley,' who was founder of the Castle and Monastery of Gresley, in honor of St. George, and left a son,

ROBERT DE GRESLEY, who, in 1134, founded an Abbey of Cistercian Monks, at Swineshead, in Lincolnshire. From this person lineally descended through a long line of distinguished individuals,

SIR WILLIAM GRESLEY, Knt. (eldest son and heir of Sir George Gresley, created a Knt. of the Bath at the Coronation of Queen ANNE BULLEN, in 1533.) who served the office of High-Sheriff for the Co. of Stafford, in the 4th year of Queen ELIZABETH, and was s. by his eldest son, GREY.

GREY DE RUTHYN, BARONESS (Barbara-Rawdon-Hastings), Baroness Hastings, of Ashley-Weyford and Valence; b. 20 May, 1810; s. to the honors in the same year as 2nd Baroness, (29 Oct., 1810), upon the demise of her father, Henry, 19th Lord Grey de Ruthyn, m. 1 Aug., 1831, to George, present MARQUESS OF HASTINGS.

Lineage.

The descent of this family is deduced by a French genealogist and antiquary, of great repute, (Francis de Belleforest, of Cominges), from Rollo, Chamberlain to Robert, Duke of Normandy, who obtained by grant, from his master, the Castle and Honor of Croy, in Picardy; whence the surname of De Croy, (changed into De Grey) is said to have originated. In the 6th year of RICHARD I., that Monarch conferred the manor of Thurrock, Co. Essex, afterwards called Thurrock-Grey, upon

HENRY DE GREY, which grant was confirmed by King JOHN, who vouchsafed, by especial charter, to permit the said Henry to hunt the hare and fox in any lands belonging to the crown, save the king's own demesne parks. Henry de Grey m. Isolda, niece and heir of Robert Bar-dolf, and had, with other issue,

SIR JOHN DE GREY, of Eaton, near Fenny Stratford, Bucks, who was Sheriff of the Counties of Buckingham and Bedford, 33rd HENRY III.; and afterwards had summons to attend the King in his Wars in France. In the 30th of the same Monarch, he was appointed Constable of the Castle of Gannock, in North Wales; in seven years afterwards, he was made Governor of Northampton Castle, and the next year, constituted Steward of all Gascoigne; but, in two years subsequently, being, according to Matthew Paris, "an aged Knight of much esteem, for his courtesy and valour, as also chief of the King's Council, and being weary of the vanities of the Court, he withdrew himself." This Sir John d. 50 HENRY III., and was s. by his only son,

REGINALD DE GREY, who was Justice of Chester, 2nd EDWARD I., and obtained from that Monarch, with other grants, the Castle of Ruthyn, Co. Denbigh. He m. Maud, dau. and heir of Henry de Longcamp, a great Baron, whose principal seat was at WILTON CASTLE, in Herefordshire, and, dying in 1307, was s. by his only son,

JOHN DE GREY, of Wilton, who, 4th EDWARD II., was summoned, with other noblemen, to be at London, to attend the General Council; and, in the 10th of the same Monarch, was appointed Justice of North Wales, and Governor of Caernarvon Castle. This nobleman m. for his 2nd wife, Maud, dau. of Ralph, Lord Bassett, of Drayton, by whom he had an only son, (by his 1st wife he had a son, HENRY, his successor, ancestor of the Greys, of Wilton.)

ROGER DE GREY, who had, with other considerable estates from his father, the Castle of RUTHYN. In 1319, he was summoned to meet the King at Winchester, the second Sunday in Lent, to confer with him before his departure into Aquitaine, and was called to the Parliament, held at York, in 1322, as LORD GREY DE RUTHYN. His Lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of John, Lord Hastings, of Heregavenny, and Isabel, his wife, dau. of William de Valence, and sister and co-heir of Aymer de Valence, Earl of Pembroke (whereby his posterity became heirs to the last John de Hastings, Earl of Pembroke, who was killed in a tournament at Woodstock, in Dec., 1330 (see BRUCE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage), and, dying 6 March, 1352-3, was s. by his only surviving son,

REGINALD, 2nd Baron, who d. in 1388, and was s. by his eldest son,

REGINALD, 3rd Baron, who, on the death of John de Hastings, Earl of Pembroke, was found to be his next heir. He had afterwards a great contest in the Court of Chivalry, with Sir Edward de Hastings, touching the title of Lord Hastings, and bearing the entire arms of the said John de Hastings, late Earl of Pembroke, which cause coming to a definitive sentence, 11th HENRY IV., the right and title to the said name and arms was adjudged to

Lord Grey and his heirs, as Lord Hastings; and Sir Edward de Hastings, thenceforth prohibited to bear them, was sentenced to pay such costs of suit as should be appointed by the Court. His Lordship m. Margaret, dau. of William, Lord Roos, and had an only son,

John, (Sir) who, dying in the life time of his father, left two sons, by his wife, Constance, dau. of John Holland, Duke of Exeter, and widow of Thomas, Lord Mowbray.

EDMUND, who s. his grandfather.

THOMAS, created BARON GREY, of Rouge-mont, but, being an active Lancastrian, was attainted 1st EDWARD IV., when his honors expired, and he d. s. p.

Lord Grey espoused, 2ndly, Joane, dau. and heir of William, Lord Astley, and had three sons, of whom, EDWARD, the eldest, m. the heir of Ferrers, of Groby, and was ancestor to the Duke of Suffolk and the present Earl of Stamford. His Lordship d. in 1440, and was s. by his grandson,

EDMUND, 4th Baron, created EARL OF KENT, 3 May, 1465, and appointed Lord-High-Treasurer of England, in which superior dignity (the Earldom of Kent) the Barony merged for one hundred and seventy-four years, until the Earldom became extinct at the demise of HENRY, 8th Earl and 11th Baron, without male issue, in 1632. His Lordship's great-great-grandfather, Henry Grey, 4th Earl and 7th Baron, never, owing to his poverty, assumed the family honors. Upon the demise of this 8th Earl of Kent, his nephew (the son of his Lordship's sister, Lady Susan Grey, who m. Sir Michael Longueville),

CHARLES LONGUEVILLE, claimed the Barony, and had his claim admitted, in 1640, as 12th Baron Grey de Ruthyn, in despite of the opposition of Anthony Grey, the then Earl of Kent, grounded upon the plea, that "when a Barony by writ was once involved in an Earldom, it should wait upon such Earldom, and might not be subsequently transferred to another family by a dau. and heir, so long as the Earldom continued in the male." The decision upon this case established the principle, that an Earldom, or other superior dignity, does not attract a Barony in fee. His Lordship, who m. Frances, dau. and co-heir of Edward Neville, Esq., d. in three years afterwards, and was s. by his only daughter,

SUSAN LONGUEVILLE, who then became Baroness Grey de Ruthyn. Her Ladyship m. Sir Henry Yelverton,* Bart.

* FAMILY OF YELVERTON.

The Yelvertons are of great antiquity in the Co. of Norfolk.

ROBERT YELVERTON, seated at Rackheath, near Norwich, temp. EDWARD III., m. Cecilia, dau. of Sir Thomas Bardolf, and was s. by his son,

JOHN YELVERTON, Esq. of Rackheath, whose second son,

SIR WILLIAM YELVERTON, was Burgess for Yarmouth, 14 HENRY VI., in the Parliament then held at Westminster, and by his abilities in the study of the common law, gained so great a reputation, that in the 18th HENRY VI., he was elected to the degree of Serjeant at Law, and, in four years afterwards, constituted one of the Judges of the King's Bench. He was continued in that employment by EDWARD IV., and was created a Knight of the Bath at that monarch's coronation. Nevertheless, when HENRY VI. recovered for a short interval the reins of government, Sir William was constituted one of the Judges of the Court of Common-Pleas, by patent, dated 4 Oct., 1740. From this learned and eminent person we pass to his lineal descendant,

WILLIAM YELVERTON, Esq. of Roughton, who m. Anne, dau. and heir of Sir Henry Fermor, of East Barham, Co. Norfolk, by whom he had five sons and four daus., of whom the eldest son,

HENRY, s. his father, and left a son,

WILLIAM, created a Bart., in 1620, a title that expired with his son,

SIR WILLIAM, 2nd Bart.

The third son,

SIR CHRISTOPHER YELVERTON, an eminent Lawyer,

SIR CHARLES YELVERTON, Bart., as 13th Baron, who d. unm., in 1679, when the Barony devolved upon his brother,

HENRY, 14th Baron, who bore the spurs at the coronation of JAMES II. and WILLIAM and MARY, and was created 21 April, 1690, Viscount Longueville. His Lordship m. Barbara, dau. of John Talbot, Esq. of Laycock, Co. Wilts, and was s. at his decease, 24 March, 1703-4, by his elder son,

TALBOT, 15th Baron and 2nd Viscount, who was advanced to an Earldom, as EARL OF SUSSEX, 26 Sept., 1717. His Lordship was appointed Deputy-Earl-Marshal of England, in 1725, and elected a Knight of the Bath upon the revival of that Order in the same year. The Earl officiated as Earl-Marshal at the coronation of GEORGE II. His Lordship m. Lucy, dau. of Henry Pelham, Esq. of Lewes, Co. Sussex, and niece of Thomas, Lord Pelham, by whom he had two sons. He d. 27 Oct., 1731, and was s. by the elder,

HENRY-EDWARD, successor to the Barony.

Barbara, d. unm.

Mary, m. to the Hon. and Rev. Frederick Powys, son of Lord Lilford, and has Frederick-Henry and other issue.

The Earl m. 2ndly, Mary, dau. of John Vaughan, Esq. of Bristol, by whom he had no child. His Lordship dying thus, in 1799, without male descendants, the Earldom of Sussex and the Viscounty of Longueville ceased, but the Barony of GREY DE RUTHYN devolved upon (the son of his deceased dau., Lady Barbara Gould) his grandson,

HENRY-EDWARD GOULD, Esq., who thus became 19th Baron Grey de Ruthyn, and assumed, in 1800, the name and arms of YELVERTON. His Lordship m. 21 June, 1809, Anna-Maria, dau. of Mr. William Kellam, of Ryton-upon-Dunsmore, Co. Warwick, by whom he left at his decease, in 1810, an only child and heir, BARBARA, the present was appointed Queen's Serjeant in the 31st ELIZABETH. He was afterwards chosen Speaker of the House of Commons, and constituted one of the Judges of the Queen's Bench, in the 44th of the same reign. Upon the accession of King JAMES, his patent as a Judge was renewed, and he received the honor of Knighthood. He d. at EASTON MAUDUIT, a seat in Northamptonshire which he had purchased, and was buried in the church there in 1607. His Lordship was s. by his elder son (by Margaret, dau. of Thomas Catesby, Esq. of Ecton, in Northamptonshire),

HENRY YELVERTON, Esq. of Easton Mauduit, Barrister-at-Law, Recorder of Northampton, and M.P. for that borough. In 1613, Mr. Yelverton was appointed Solicitor-General, when he received the honor of Knighthood. In four years afterwards, he was constituted Attorney-General; but, incurring the hostility of the favorite, Buckingham, he fell under the displeasure of the King, and suffered loss of place, fine, and imprisonment. He subsequently resumed his practice at the Bar, and, being reconciled to the favorite, was constituted one of the Justices of the Court of Common-Pleas. This venerable and learned person d. 24 Jan., 1629-30, and was s. by his eldest son (by Margaret, dau. of Robert Beale, Esq., Clerk of the Council to Queen ELIZABETH, the bearer of the warrant for the execution of the Queen of Scots to Fotheringay), GRIERSON.

GRIERSON, SIR ROBERT, of Lag, Co. Dumfries; s. to the title, as 5th Bart., upon the demise of his father, in 1813.

Lineage.

This family claims descent from Gilbert, second son of Malcolm, Lord of Macgregor, who died in 1374; but whether the claim be well founded or not, it is certain that the Griersons, of Lag, have been settled in that part of Scotland for a period exceeding four centuries.

THOMAS GRIERSON, Laird of Arde, obtained, 6 Dec., 1408, a charter from his cousin, John M'Rath de Lacha, conveying to him all right and claim which he, the said

John, had to the lands of Lag. From this Thomas lineally descended

SIR WILLIAM GRIERSON, Knt. of Lag, who was appointed, in 1623, the Keeper of certain Rolls. He m. in 1593, Miss Maxwell, sister of William, Lord Herries. Sir William d. about the year 1629, and from this time the family of Lag seem to have made an alteration in their surname, calling themselves "Grier," instead of "Grierson," for some generations. Sir William was s. by his son,

SIR ROBERT GRIER, Knt., M.P., in 1639. This gentleman m. in 1622, Margaret, eldest dau. of Sir James Murray, of Cockpool, by whom he had four sons and a dau. Sir Robert d. in 1634, and was s. by his eldest son, Sir John Grier, Knt., but his male issue failing, the line of descent is carried on by the posterity of the second son,

JAMES GRIERSON, Esq., who left a son,

I. ROBERT GRIERSON, Esq., who s. in 1669, to the estates of his cousin, Sir John Grierson, Knt. of Lag, and was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, 28 March, 1685. Sir Robert m. Henrietta, dau. of James, 2nd Earl of Queensberry, by whom he had four sons. This gentleman, who enjoyed a pension from the crown of £200 a-year, was s. at his decease, by his eldest son,

II. SIR WILLIAM, who m. Anne, dau. of Sir Richard Musgrave, of Hayton; but, dying without male issue, the title devolved upon his brother,

III. SIR GILBERT. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. of Col. Maitland, of the Coldstream Regt. of Guards, and, dying 7 Feb., 1766, was s. by his son,

IV. SIR ROBERT, who m. Margaret, eldest dau. of the Hon. Alexander Dalzell, of Glenae, by whom he had four sons and six daus., and, dying in 1813, was s. by his son, ROBERT, the present Bart.

Creation.—28 March, 1685.

Arms.—Gu. on a fesse or, between three quadrangular locks (or fetter-locks) ar. a mullet az.

Crest.—A lock, as in the arms.

Motto.—Hoc securior.

Lineage.

EDWARD NORTH was born about the year 1496, and brought up to the profession of the Law; in which he made so fair a progress that he was elected one of the Council for the City of London. In the 22nd HENRY VIII., Mr. North was appointed Joint Clerk of the Parliament, and in six years afterwards (1536) he became one of the King's Serjeants-at-Law. On the surrender of the former post, he was made Treasurer of the Court of Augmentations, an office newly erected upon the dissolution of the monasteries; and he became afterwards Chancellor of the Court. He was soon after knighted, and returned to Parliament as representative of the Co. Cambridge. We next find Sir Edward a Privy Councillor, and in such favour with the King, as to obtain various grants of lands from the Crown. But knowing how transitory were HENRY's smiles, he seems to have always been in a state of alarm, of which the following occurrence is a sufficient illustration. One morning a messenger from the King came to Sir Edward to command his immediate presence at Court. He then resided at the Charter House, and one of his servants, an attendant in his bedchamber, when the message was delivered, observed his master to tremble at it; but Sir Edward made the utmost haste to wait upon the King, and took with him his said servant. On his admittance, he found HENRY walking, who continued doing so with great earnestness, looking at him with an angry eye, which was received with a very still and sober carriage. At last the king broke out in these words: "We are informed you have cheated us of certain lands in Middlesex." And receiving no other than a plain and humble negation, the King, after some little pause, replied, "How was it then, did we give those lands to you?" Whereunto Sir Edward answered, "Yes, Sir, your majesty was pleased so to do." The King on this, after a brief pause, put on a milder countenance, and, calling him to a cupboard, conferred privately with him a long time; whereby his servant (as Dudley, the 2nd Lord North was informed) saw the King could not spare his master's service as yet. From this period Sir Edward advanced still higher in the estimation of the King, and at his Highness's death, was appointed one of his executors, with a legacy of £300. After the accession of EDWARD VI. he was re-sworn of the Privy Council, and re-elected for Cambridgeshire. But upon the decease of that monarch, Sir Edward seems to have espoused the cause of Lady Jane Grey. He made his peace, however, very soon with QUEEN MARY, for, on her accession, he was again sworn of the Privy Council, and elevated to the Peerage in the first year of her reign, 17 Feb., 1553-4, being then summoned to Parliament as Baron North, of Kirtling, Co. Cambridge, (a manor which he purchased about the time he was appointed Clerk of the Parliament). In the reign of ELIZABETH, Lord North was constituted Lord-Lieutenant of Cambridgeshire and the Isle of Ely. His Lordship m. 1st, Alice, dau. of Oliver Squyer, Esq. of Southby, Co. Southampton, and widow of Edward Myrffun, Esq. and of John Brigadine, Esq. of Southampton. By this Lady he acquired a considerable fortune, and had (besides daus.) two sons, viz.

ROGER, (Sir) his successor.

Thomas, (Sir) a learned man, who translated into English Guevara's Horologium Principum and Plutarch's Lives.

Lord North d. 31 Dec., 1564, and was s. by his elder son,

SIR ROGER NORTH, Knight Banneret, as 2nd Baron. This nobleman, who was Ambassador Extraordinary from QUEEN ELIZABETH to CHARLES IX. King of France, was sworn of the Privy Council, and constituted Treasurer of the Household in the 39th year of her majesty's reign. He m. Winifred, dau. of Robert, Lord Rich (Chancellor of England), and relict of Sir Henry Dudley, by whom he had two sons,

John, (Sir) who m. Dorothy, dau. and co-heir of Sir Valentine Dale, L.L.D., master of the requests, and, dying before his father, left, with other issue, DUDLEY, successor to the title.

Henry, (Sir) of Mildred Hall, Co. Suffolk.

His Lordship d. 3 Dec., 1600, and he is thus briefly characterised by Camden: "He was a person of great business and vivacity, with a head and heart fit for the service." He was s. by his grandson,

DUDLEY, 3rd Baron, who, according to Camden, "was a person full of spirit and flame; yet, after he had consumed the greatest part of his estate in the gallantries of KING JAMES's Court, or rather his son's (Prince Henry), retired and lived more honorably in the country, upon what was left, than ever he had done before." His Lordship m. Frances, dau. and co-heir of Sir John Brouck, of Brouck Hall, Co. Hertford, and, dying 16 Jan., 1606, was s. by his eldest son,

CHARLES, his successor.

FRANCIS, who, applying himself to the study of the law in the Middle Temple, became one of the great law luminaries of England. In 1671 he was appointed Solicitor-General, and received the honor of Knighthood. In 1673, he succeeded Sir Heneage Finch in the Attorney-Generalship, and, in the next year, was appointed Lord Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas. Upon the death of the Earl of Nottingham, in 1682, Sir Francis North was appointed Lord-Keeper of the Great Seal, and created, 27 Sept., 1683, BARON GUILFORD, of Guilford, Co. Surrey. The life of this celebrated man was written by his youngest brother, ROGER NORTH, to which we must refer for a full account of his many virtues. His Lordship m. Frances, 2nd dau. and co-heir of Thomas Pope, Earl of Down, and, dying in Sept., 1685, was s. by his son,

Lincoln, Bart., by the co-heir of George Brydges, Lord Chandos, and, dying in 1729, was s. by his only son,

FRANCIS, 3rd Baron Guilford, who inherited the Barony of NORTH, at the decease of William, the 6th Baron, but of that presently.

Dudley Lord North d. in 1677, and was s. by his eldest son,

His Lordship d. in 1690, and was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM, 6th Baron North, and 2nd Lord Grey, a Military Officer, who served under the Duke of Marlborough in all his campaigns, and had his right hand shot off at the battle of Blenheim. His Lordship d. without issue, in 1734, when the Barony of Grey ceased; but that of North devolved upon his cousin,

FRANCIS, 3rd Baron Guilford (refer to Sir Francis North, 2nd son of Dudley, 4th Baron North.) His Lordship was b. in 1704, and m. 1st, in 1728, Lady Lucy Montagu, dau. of George, Earl of Halifax, by whom he had one son, FRANK, his successor. He m. 2ndly, in 1736, Elizabeth,

Lineage.

THOMAS HAMILTON, of Orchardfield, who acquired, in 1522, from John, Earl of Lennox, the Barony of Bathgate, Co. Linlithgow; and, in 1524, purchased the lands of Ballincrieff in the same shire. He was s. by his son,

THOMAS HAMILTON, who fell at the battle of Pinkie, 10 Sept., 1547, leaving two sons,

THOMAS,

John, a Secular Priest, who leaving Scotland on account of his religion, took up his abode at Paris in 1573, and was appointed Professor of Philosophy in the College of Navarre. He became tutor to the Cardinal de Bourbon, in 1576; and to Francis de Joyeuse, afterwards a Cardinal, in 1578; was chosen Rector of the University of Paris, in 1584, the next year was presented by the University of the parishes of St. Cosmus and Damian, at Paris. He was a zealous partisan of the League, and one of the council who offered the Crown to PHILIP II., of Spain, in 1591. When HENRY IV. entered Paris, in 1594, Hamilton was arrested, but had liberty soon after to depart from Paris. He retired to Brussels, and, in 1601, ventured to revisit his native country, after an absence of nearly 30 years. He found a temporary asylum at the Castle of Lord Ogilvie; but in 1609 was arrested by a party of Life-Guards, and committed to the Tower of London, where he died.

The elder son,

SIR THOMAS HAMILTON, of Priestfield, had a charter of Balbyn, Drumcairn, and Priestfield, in the year 1597. He was admitted a Lord of Session in 1607, but resigned his seat on the Bench to his second son the next year. Sir Thomas m. The eldest son,

SIR THOMAS HAMILTON, of Priestfield, b. in 1563; studied the law in France; was admitted Advocate in 1587; and soon distinguishing himself at the Bar, was appointed a LORD OF SESSION in 1592, by the title of LORD DRUMCAIRN. He was subsequently one of the Commissioners of the Treasury of Exchequer, called Octavians, and King's Advocate. In 1604 he was nominated a Commissioner by Parliament, to treat of a union with England. In 1612, he was received Lord Clerk Register of Scotland, and in the same year succeeded Sir Alexander Hay, as Secretary of State. He was elevated to the Peerage, 30 Nov., 1613, as Lord Binning and Byres, was appointed Lord President of the Court of Session in 1616, and created EARL OF MELROSE 20 March, 1619. This nobleman acquired by the lucrative offices he enjoyed, one of the largest fortunes of his time, which was considerably augmented by the discovery of valuable mines upon his estates. Their reply, "that his Royal Highness was master of their commissions, but not of their honor," was approved by government, and Sir Peter, in 1754, embarked for America, in command of the 44th Regt. He fell, with his youngest son, James, in Gen. Braddock's defeat by the Indians, 9 July, 1755. HAMILTON, DUKE OF (Alexander-Hamilton-Douglas, F.R.S. and S.A.), Marquess of Hamilton, Co. Lanark, Marquess of Douglas and Clydesdale, Earl of Angus, Arran, and Lanark, Lord of Macanshire, Polmont, Abernethy, Aberbrothock, in the Peerage of Scotland; Duke of Brandon, Co. Suffolk, and Baron of Dutton, Co. Chester, in the Peerage of England; and a nobleman of France, as Duke of Chatelherault; Premier Peer of Scotland; Lord-Lieut. of Lanarkshire, Hereditary Keeper of Holyrood-House, and Col. of the Lanarkshire Militia; b. 3 Oct., 1767; m. 26 April, 1810, Susan-Euphemia, 2nd dau. of William Beckford, Esq., late of Fonthill Abbey, Co. Wilts, (for details of the Beckford family, see BURKE'S History of the Commoners), by whom he has issue,

- I. WILLIAM-ALEXANDER-ANTHONY-ARCHIBALD, Marquess of Douglas and Clydesdale, Grand Master of the Freemasons of Scotland, b. 18 Feb., 1811.
- II. Susan-Catherine-Harriet, m. 27 Nov., 1832, to Henry, Earl of Lincoln, eldest son of the Duke of Newcastle.

His Grace s. to the honors, as 10th Duke and 12th Marquess, 16 Feb., 1819.

Lineage.

This family is said to be descended from Sir William de Hamelden, one of the younger sons of Robert de Belomont, 3rd Earl of Leicester, which Sir William de Hamelden's son, SIR GILBERT HAMILTON, having expressed himself at the Court of EDWARD II., in admiration of King ROBERT BRUCE, received a blow from John de Spencer, which led the following day to a encounter wherein Spencer fell; and Hamilton sought security in Scotland, about the year 1323. Being closely pursued, however, in his flight, he and his servant changed clothes with two woodcutters, and taking their saws, were in the act of cutting through an oak-tree when his pursuers passed by. Perceiving his servant notice them, Sir Gilbert hastily cried out to him, "Through," which word, with the oak and saw through it, he took for his crest in commemoration of his deliverance. This detail is, however, liable to many objections. Sir William Dugdale, in his account of the Earls of Leicester, is totally silent as to the descent of the Hamiltons from Robert, 3rd Earl. That nobleman, according to Sir William, had three sons,

Robert, 4th Earl of Leicester.

Roger, Bishop of St. Andrew's, and Chancellor of Scotland, d. 1202.

William, a leper, founder of the Hospital of St. Leonard, at Leicester.

That this last William pre-deceased his eldest brother without issue is evident, from the circumstance of the great inheritance of the Earls of Leicester devolving, on the death of the 4th Earl, in 1204, upon his sisters, and Simon de Montfort, the husband of the eldest, having, in her right, the title of Earl of Leicester. (See BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.)

William de Hamilton occurs frequently in "Rymer's Fœdera," from 1274 to 1306, being employed by EDWARD I. in various negotiations and transactions of importance. He was appointed Dean of York, in 1286, and HIGH-CHANCELLOR OF ENGLAND, 16 Jan., 1303. This is the first of the name noticed in the "Fœdera;" it appears somewhat earlier, however, in Scotland;

GILBERT DE HAMILTON being on record, in the Chancery of Paisley, in 1272; the younger son of this Gilbert, John, was ancestor of the Earls of Haddington; the elder,

SIR WALTER DE HAMILTON, swore fealty to EDWARD I. in 1292 and 1294; attaching himself to KING ROBERT, he had divers grants of lands, amongst others, the Barony of Kenel (Kinneil) and Cadyow, (now Hamilton), in the Sheriffdom of Lanark. From this Sir Walter lineally descended

SIR JAMES HAMILTON, of Cadyow, who m. Janet, eldest dau. of Sir Alexander de Levingstoun, and had with other issue,

JAMES, his successor.

Alexander, ancestor of the Hamiltons of Silverton Hill, Baronets.

He was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JAMES HAMILTON, of Cadyow, who was created a Lord of Parliament, by Royal Charter, 28 June, 1445, as Lord Hamilton. This nobleman obtained a grant, dated 1 July, 1435, of the Office of Sheriff of the Co. Lanark, and, subsequently, grants of extensive territorial possessions. He m. 1st, Lady Euphemia Graham, eldest dau. of Patrick, Earl of Strathern, Dowager of Archibald, 5th Earl of Douglas, by whom he had an only dau., Elizabeth, m. to David, 4th Earl of Crawford. Lord Hamilton, m. 2ndly, in 1474, Mary, eldest dau. of JAMES II., and relict of Thomas Boyd, Earl of Arran, and, dying in 1479, was s. by his only son,

JAMES, 2nd Lord, who obtained a charter of the lands and Earldom of Arran, dated 11 Aug., 1503, to himself and his heirs male, in failure of which to revert to the Crown. This nobleman, who took a prominent part in the affairs of Scotland, was constituted Lieut.-Gen. of the Kingdom, Warden of the Marches, and one of the Lords of Regency, in 1517. And his Lordship obtained, on the forfeiture of the Earl of Angus, the Lordship of Bothwell. He d. about 1529, and was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES, 2nd Earl. This nobleman, upon the death of JAMES V. in 1542, was unanimously chosen ROBERT of Scotland, by the nobles assembled for that purpose; the public voice applauding their choice; the next year he was declared by Parliament HEIR PRESUMPTIVE to the Crown, appointed Guardian to QUEEN MARY, and Governor of the Realm during her Majesty's minority. In 1548, his Lordship was invested with the French Order of St. Michael, and created, by HENRY II. of France, DUKE OF CHATELHERAULT, in Poitou.] His Grace, one of the most eminent persons in Scottish history, m. Lady Margaret Douglas, eldest dau. of James, 3rd Earl of Morton, and had issue,

JAMES, his successor.

JOHN, successor to his brother.

David, d. unm.

Claude, ancestor of the Marquess of Abercorn.

He d. 23 Jan., 1575, when the Earldom of Arran (the Dukedom of Chatelherault having been resumed by the Crown of France) passed to his eldest son,

JAMES, 3rd Earl. This nobleman, upon the arrival of QUEEN MARY, in 1561, openly aspired to her hand, but opposing the Queen's enjoying the exercise of her religion, and entering a protestation against it, his Lordship entirely forfeited her favour. His love, however, inflamed by disappointment, and his impatience exasperated by neglect, gradually preyed upon his reason, and after many extravagancies, broke out at last in ungovernable frenzy. He was, in consequence, declared to be in a state of insanity, by the cognition of an Inquest, passed on a brief directed out of the Court of Chancery, and the estates of his deceased father devolved upon his brother,

LORD JOHN HAMILTON, who, with his younger brother, Claude, was banished from Scotland in 1579; but, returning in 1585, the act of forfeiture, which had been passed, was annulled, and he was elevated to the Peerage, 17 April, 1599, as Marquess of Hamilton. This nobleman never allowed his fealty to his unhappy QUEEN MARY to swerve one moment; and, so conscious was the unfortunate Princess of his unshaken fidelity, that one of her last acts was to transmit to him a ring (which is still treasured in the family), through the medium of an attendant. His Lordship m. Margaret, only dau. of John, 8th Lord Glamis, and, dying 12 April, 1604, was s. by his only son,

JAMES, 2nd Marquess, K.G., who, upon the demise of his uncle, James (already mentioned as insane), Earl of Arran, in 1609, inherited that nobleman's honors. His Lordship obtained an English Peerage, 16 June, 1619, by the titles of Baron of Ennerdale, in Cumberland, and Earl of Cambridge, and was installed a Knight of the Garter, at Windsor, 7 July, 1623. He m. Lady Anne Cunningham, dau. of James, 7th Earl of Glencairne, by whom he had issue,

JAMES, his successor.

WILLIAM, successor to his brother.

Anne, m. to Hugh, 7th Earl of Eglington.

Margaret, m. to John, Earl of Crawford and Lindsay.

Mary, m. to James, 2nd Earl of Queensberry.

He d. 2 March, 1625, and was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES, 3rd Marquess, K.G., who was created, 17 June, 1653, Marquess of Clydesdale; and on 12 April, 1643, DUKE OF HAMILTON, to him, and the heirs male of his body, and in default thereof to his brother, William, Earl of Lanark, and his male issue; and in default of such issue to the eldest daughter of the said James, Duke of Hamilton, and her male issue, and in default of such issue, to the heirs whatsoever of the said James' body. His Grace espousing warmly and actively the cause of his Royal Master, CHARLES I., was defeated and taken prisoner at the battle of Preston, and suffered decapitation, in Old Palace Yard, 9 March, 1649. He m. Mary, dau. of William, 1st Earl of Denbigh, by whom he had four sons, all of whom d. in infancy, and two daus., ANNE, of whom presently, and Susanna, who m. John, Earl of Cassilis. His Grace was s. by his brother, WILLIAM, 4th Marquess and 2nd Duke, who had himself been elevated to the Peerage, 31 March, 1639, as Lord Macenshire and Polmount, and Earl of Lanark. His Grace m. in 1638, Lady Elizabeth Maxwell, dau. and co-heir of James, Earl of Dirleton, by whom he had a son, who d. in infancy, and five daus., viz.

Anne, m. to Robert, 3rd Earl of Southesk.

Elizabeth, m. 1st. to James, Lord Kilmaurs, and, 2ndly, to Sir David Cunningham, of Robertland.

Mary, m. 1st, to Alexander, 2nd Earl of Calender, 2ndly, to Sir James Livinstone, and 3rdly, to James, 3rd Earl of Findlater.

Margaret, m. to William Blair, of Blair.

The Duke received a mortal wound in the service of CHARLES II., at the unfortunate battle of Worcester, and by Cromwell's Act of Grace, passed in 1654, he was excepted from all benefit thereof, and his estates forfeited, reserving out of them £400 a year for his Duchess for life, and after her death, £100 a year each to his four daus., and their heirs for ever. His Grace's own honors fell under the attainder, and his English dignities expired, while the Dukedom of Hamilton, in virtue of the patent of 1643, devolved upon (the eldest dau. of James, the 1st Duke) his niece,

LADY ANNE HAMILTON, as Duchess of Hamilton, who married

LORD WILLIAM DOUGLAS, eldest son of William, 1st Marquess of Douglas, by his 2nd wife, Lady Mary Gordon, 3rd dau. of George, 1st Marquess of Huntly, and obtained, by petition, for her husband, in 1660, the title of Duke of Hamilton for life. His Grace had been previously elevated to the Peerage as Earl of Selkirk, (see that dignity.) The issue of this marriage were, besides three daughters,

i. JAMES, 4th Duke.

ii. William, d. s. p.

iii. Charles, who, upon his father's resignation, was created Earl of Selkirk.

iv. John, created Earl of Ruglen, and s. his brother in the Earldom of Selkirk.

2 Frederick, in Holy Orders, Vicar of Wellingborough, Co. Northampton.

3 Archibald, accidentally drowned, 30 May, 1744.

4 William, (Sir) K.B., Ambassador at Naples, d. s. p. in 1803.

5 Elizabeth, m. to Francis, 8th Lord Brooke.

6 Jane, m. to Charles, 9th Lord Cathcart.

viii. Catherine, m. to John, 1st Duke of Atholl.

ix. Susanna, m. to John, 2nd Earl of Dundonald.

x. Margaret, m. to James Maule, Earl of Panmure.

The Duke d. in 1694, and was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES, Earl of Arran, who (upon the Duchess, a few years afterwards, surrendering her honors,) became then, by patent, dated 10 Aug., 1693, Duke of Hamilton, &c. with the precedence of the original creation, 12 April, 1643, in the same manner as if he had regularly inherited. His Grace was installed a Knight of the Garter, and created an English Peer, 11 Sept., 1711, as Baron of Dutton, Co. Chester, and Duke of Brandon, Co. Suffolk; but, upon applying for his seat in the House of Lords, it was objected that, by the 23rd article of the Union, "no Peer of Scotland could, after the Union, be created a Peer of England;" and the House of Lords so resolved, after a protracted debate. His Grace m. 1st, Anne, dau. of Robert, Earl of Sunderland, by whom he had two daus., who d. young; and 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. and sole heir of Digby, Lord Gerrard, of Gerrard's Bromley, by whom he acquired a large estate in the Cos. The Duke, having accepted a challenge from Charles, Lord Mohun, engaged that nobleman in Hyde Park, on Sunday, 15 Nov., 1712; and, having slain his opponent, fell himself, it was suspected, through the treachery of Gen. Macartney, Lord Mohun's second, for whose apprehension a reward of £500 was subsequently offered; the General eventually surrendering, was tried, 18 June, 1716, in the Court of King's Bench, and acquitted of the murder, but found guilty of manslaughter. The guardians of his Grace (one of whom, Andrew Stuart, Esq. published in 1773, a series of letters to Lord Mansfield, remonstrating on the course taken in this affair, by his Lordship) asserted his right to the Douglas estates, upon the ground that Mr. Stewart, son and heir of Lady Jane Stewart, sister of the Duke of Douglas, was not her son, and the celebrated "Douglas cause" ensued. (See Lord Douglas, of Douglas.) His Grace dying unm., 7 July, 1769, the honors devolved upon his brother,

DOUGLAS, 8th Duke, who, in 1782, again mooted the point decided against his predecessor, James, 4th Duke, relative to his seat in the House of Lords; and obtaining, after the opinion of the Judges had been taken, a resolution in his favour, was summoned to the House of Lords, as Duke of Brandon. Lineage.

This branch of the Hamiltons springs from ALEXANDER DE HAMILTON, 2nd son of Sir James Hamilton, Lord of Cadyow, and brother of Sir James, afterwards Lord Hamilton. He had a charter in 1449, from Alexander, Earl of Crawford, wherein he was styled "Alexander de Hamilton of Quhitcamp, afterwards Silverton-hill. In a charter of settlement of the Hamilton estates granted to his brother, the 1st Lord Hamilton, of date, 23 Oct., 1455, this Alexander was called next in succession after his brother's dau., Elizabeth, and his natural sons. He appears to have left issue, two sons, JAMES, his heir.

William, ancestor of the Hamiltons, of Westport.

The elder son,

JAMES HAMILTON, of Silvertonhill, in a charter of settlement of the Hamilton estates granted to James, 1st Earl of Arran, of date, 16th Jan., 1512-13, was called next in succession after Sir James Hamilton, of Fynnert, Patrick Hamilton, of Kineavil, and John Hamilton, of Brumehill. He m. a dau. of the family of Douglas, with whom he got the lands of Newton, in the Barony of Drumsarguard, and by whom he had issue,

JOHN, his heir.

— (dau.), m. to James, Viscount Tevlot.

He was s. by his son,

JOHN HAMILTON, designed of Newton, who obtained from Hugh, Lord Somerville, a charter of the lands of Tweedie, Catscastle, &c., confirmed under the Great Seal of the date, 26 March, 1531. He m. a dau. of Sir John Somerville, of Quodquan, by whom he had issue,

ANDREW.

Margaret, m. to Archibald Hamilton, of Raplock.

He d. 1535, and was s. by his grandson,

ANDREW HAMILTON, who on his father's resignation, had a charter, "Andrew Hamilton, filio et heredi apparenti James Hamilton de Newton, terrarum de Goslingtown, infra Baroniam de Stonehouse. Dated, 17 Sept., 1538." He d. before his father, and left issue,

ANDREW.

Alexander, tutor of Silvertonhill, who carried on the line of this family.

John Hamilton, of Cubardy.

The eldest son,

ANDREW HAMILTON, of Silvertonhill, had a charter under the Great Seal, "Andrew Hamilton, nepoti heredi et successori Joannis Hamilton de Newton, terrarum de Madinburn, Overtoun," &c., dated 19 Nov., 1541. He had another charter, of the same date, of the lands of Newton, and superiority of the lands of Braconrig, in a charter of settlement of the Hamilton estates, granted to the Duke of Chatelherault, of the date, 15 Sept., 1540: he was called next in succession after David Hamilton, of Brumehill. He m. a dau. of James Hamilton, of Stanhouse, and d. in the beginning of the reign of Queen Mary, leaving issue, an infant son,

ANDREW HAMILTON, of Silvertonhill, who was carefully educated under the guardianship of his uncle, Alexander. He m. Elspeth, a dau. of Baillie, of Carfin, by whom he had issue, several children, but only one son survived him,

FRANCIS HAMILTON, of Silvertonhill, a very enthusiastic, wrong-headed man: he fancied himself bewitched by Dame Isabel Boyd, Lady Blair, which appears by several extravagant petitions to Parliament from him in 1641. He d. not long after this, having greatly squandered away the family estate; and, as he never was married, this branch of the family expired, and the representation devolved on the descendants of his grand uncle, Alexander, which

ALEXANDER HAMILTON, tutor of Silvertonhill, got from his father the lands of Goslingtown, which some time continued to be the title of his family. He had a charter under the Great Seal, "Alexandro Hamilton, tutori de Sil. terrarum de Longkip," &c., Dated 16 Jan., 1545. He m. Catherine Hamilton, by whom he had issue,

SIR ANDREW HAMILTON, of Goslingtown. This gentleman was a faithful and loyal subject of QUEEN MARY, who conferred on him the honor of Knighthood: he was at the battle of Langsyde, for which he was attainted; but had his possessions restored to him by the treaty of Perth, in 1572. He d. in 1592, leaving issue, and was s. by his son,

SIR ROBERT HAMILTON, of Goslingtown, who m. Elizabeth, dau., and at length sole heir, of Sir William Baillie, of Provan, and d. in 1642, leaving issue, and was s. by his 2nd son,

EDWARD HAMILTON, designed 1st, of Balgray, afterwards of Silvertonhill. He had a Charter under the Great Seal, of the lands of Tweedie, Goslingtown, Provan, &c., containing an entail, first to himself and the heirs male of his body, which failing, to his brother James, &c., dated 8 July, 1635. In this Charter, there are some lands mentioned which had been evicted from Francis Hamilton, of Silvertonhill, by John Crawford, and again acquired by Edward, all of which are now confirmed to him, and he accordingly took the title of Silvertonhill, which afterwards continued to be that of the family. He d. in 1649, and was s. by his son,

I. SIR ROBERT HAMILTON, of Silvertonhill, a steady loyalist, and in great favor with CHARLES I., who made him a Bart. of Nova Scotia, about the year 1648. He m. the Hon. Anne Hamilton, 2nd dau. of John, 1st Lord Belhaven, by whom he had, with other issue, his successor,

1. JOHN-JAMES HAMILTON, b. 4 Aug., 1755, a distinguished Military Commander. This gallant Officer entered upon active service at an unusually early age, and for a period of upwards of fifty years, ending with the General Peace of 1816, he was never unemployed, was never on half-pay, and, what is perhaps without parallel in the British Army, he was never, during more than half a century, relieved from duty, by official leave of absence, excepting for one fortnight only; a relaxation to which he was solely prompted by filial affection. Having distinguished himself by extraordinary intrepidity and judgment at the escalade of the fortress of Gualiar, the storm-

ing of the strong forts of Lahar and Bangalore, and in many similar daring exploits, he was permitted, while still extremely young, and while even in the subordinate situation of Lieutenant, to raise an Indian regiment; a favor which, as it had never before, and has never since been, conferred upon any Officer beneath the rank of Colonel, marks, in the very strongest manner, the universal and high sense entertained of his personal merits. In 1795, he commanded a Light Brigade at the capture of St. Domingo, and his services elsewhere in the West Indies were likewise eminently conspicuous. While in Africa it devolved upon him, as Military Commissioner, to make, in 1803, the mortifying surrender to the Dutch of our newly-acquired territory at the Cape of Good Hope. Being appointed, in 1806, to the command of the Northern District of Ireland, the city of Londonderry being the head-quarters of his staff, he evinced, in a manner at once openly decisive and wholly unprecedented, his respect for the laws and tranquillity of his country, and his generous abhorrence of wanton insult towards his unprotected and inoffensive Catholic fellow-subjects, by forcibly suppressing all exhibitions of religious party triumph. During the recent conflict in Spain, Portugal, and France, his professional science and exemplary courage were still more importantly exhibited in discharging the many arduous duties of the trust imposed in him by the Duke of Wellington, who confided to his command a large division of the Allied Army. While Inspector-General of Portugal, the national force of that kingdom became, through his indefatigable exertions, as effective and as distinguished for high discipline as it had previously been for want of energy and military character. For this and other valuable services, his Portuguese Majesty conferred upon him the insignia of the highest class of the Royal Order of the Tower and Sword. Nor did his active merit as a British General both there and in Spain pass unrecorded in the Duke of Wellington's official dispatches. Few achievements, even amidst numberless scenes of brilliant exploit, was more gallant or more deservedly the theme of universal admiration than his unexampled and almost incredible defence of the unfortified town and dismantled castle of Alba de Tormes, in the latter kingdom, with fifteen hundred men exhausted by a fatiguing retreat, against the pursuing army of the celebrated Marshal Soult, fifteen thousand strong, and supported by twenty pieces of artillery. For this most important service, the dignity of a Bart. of Great Britain was conferred upon him by patent, 21 Dec., 1814, and he likewise received his Majesty's permission to bear an augmentation in his arms commemorative of this signal instance of military skill and personal heroism. Lineage.

In the reign of EDWARD I.,

SIR JOHN DE HANMER, Knt., was appointed Governor of Caernarvon Castle. This gentleman, who was possessed of Hanmer, in the year 1258, m. Hawys, dau. of Eynion ap-Griffith ap-Gwynwyn, Lord of Powis, from which marriage the descent in the male line is unbroken to the present day. Sir John was one of the first who assumed their surname from the place of their residence, as appears by a letter from the celebrated Camden, to Mr. John Hanmer, preserved among the Harleian Manuscripts, in the British Museum. The grandson of Sir John Hanmer,

SIR DAVID HANMER, was appointed a Judge in the Court of King's Bench, in the 6th year of RICHARD II., and received the honor of Knighthood from that monarch. His Lordship left a dau., Margaret, m. to the famed Owen Glendower, and a son and successor,

SIR JOHN HANMER, Knt., who fell under the banner of his brother-in-law at the battle of Shrewsbury. The grandson of this Sir John,

RICHARD HANMER, Esq. of Hanmer, m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Roger Kynaston, of Hordley (by Elizabeth, dau. of Henry Grey, Earl of Tankerville, by Antigone, dau. of Humphrey Plantagenet, Duke of Gloucester), and had a son and successor,

SIR THOMAS HANMER, Knt., who was M.P. for the Co. of Flint, and one of the Council of the President of the Marches of Wales. He also attended the Earl of Derby into France, with the Ensigns of the Garter to HENRY III. from Queen ELIZABETH, and was himself knighted by JAMES I., in 1603. He m. 1st, Anne, dau. of John Talbot, Earl of Shrewsbury, by whom he had no issue; and, 2ndly, Catherine, dau. of Sir Thomas Mostyn, Knt. of Mostyn, by whom he had a son and successor,

SIR THOMAS HANMER, M.P. for the Co. of Flint, and Cup-Bearer to CHARLES I., in whose cause he raised, during the Civil War, two troops of horse. Sir Thomas was to have been one of the Knights of the Royal Oak, had the institution of that Order actually taken place. He m. 1st, Elizabeth Baker, of Wittingham, Co. He was s. in 1678, by his elder son,

SIR JOHN HANMER, M.P. for the Co. of Flint, and Col. of a regiment under King WILLIAM, at the battle of the Boyne. Sir John attained the rank of Major-Gen. in the Army, but, dying without issue, in 1701, the title devolved upon his nephew,

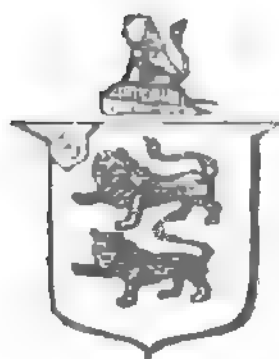

SIR THOMAS HANMER, b. in 1676, son of William Hanmer, Esq. (eldest son of Sir Thomas, the 2nd Bart., by his 2nd marriage), by his wife, Peregrine, sister and heir of Sir Henry North, Bart. of Milden Hall. Sir Thomas Hanmer was returned to Parliament, at the accession of Queen ANNE, for the Co. of Flint; elected, in 1707, for the Co. of Suffolk; and chosen Speaker of the House of Commons in 1712. Alluding to this latter event, Dr. Johnson says,

Illustrious age! how bright thy glories shone

When Hanmer filled the Chair, and Anne the Throne.

Sir Thomas was no less distinguished as a man of letters than a statesman; and a superb edition of Shakspeare's Plays, with his annotations, published by the University of Oxford (to which he presented the MS.), in six vols., fully establish his refined taste and critical acumen. Sir Thomas m. 1st, in 1696, Isabella, Duchess Dowager of Grafton, only dau. and heir of Henry Bennet, Earl of Arlington, by whom he had no issue; and, 2ndly, Elizabeth,

Sir Arthur commanded, as Colonel, a Regiment of Cuirassiers, called the "Lobsters," which performed some signal services, and he was also Governor of Newcastle. The day preceding the battle of Dunbar, in 1650, he received the following letter from the Usurper:

"Deere Sir,

"Wee are upon an engagement very difficult; the enemy hath blocked up our way att the passe, at Coperspeth, through which wee cannot gett without almost a miracle. He lieth so upon the hills, that we knowe not how to come that way without great difficulty; and our lying here dayly consumeth our men, who fall sick beyond imagination. I perceive your forces are not in a capacity for present reliefe; wherefore, (whatever becomes of us), it will be well for you to get what forces you can together in the south, to helpe what they can; the businesse nearly concerneth all good people. If your forces had been in readiness to have fallen upon the back of Copperspeth, it might have occasioned supplies to come to us, but the only wise God knows what is best; all shall work for good; our spirits are comfortable (praised be the Lord, of whose mercy we have had large experience.) Indeed, do you get together what forces you can against them; send to friends in the south to help with more. Lett H. Vane know what I write. I would not make it publick, least danger should accrue thereby. You know what use to make hereof. Let me hear from you. I rest your servant.

"It is difficult for me to send to you: let me heare from you after.

HASTINGS.

HASTINGS, MARQUESS OF (George-Augustus-Francis Rawdon-Hastings), Earl of Rawdon, and Viscount Loudoun, in the Peerage of the United Kingdom; Baron Rawdon, of Rawdon, Co. York, in the Peerage of Great Britain; Baron Hastings, Hungerford, Newmarch, Botreaux, Molina, and Moels, in the Peerage of England; Earl of Moira, and Baron Rawdon, in the Peerage of Ireland; a Bart. of England; and one of the co-heirs to the Barony of Montague, (See BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage, article POLK, BARON MONTAGUE); b. 4 Feb., 1808; m. in Aug., 1831, BARBARA, BARONESS GREY DE RUTHYN, in her own right, and has with a dau., a son, PAULYN-REGINALD-SERLO, EARL OF RAWDON.

His Lordship inherited the honors of his family, as 2nd Marquess, upon the demise of his father, 28 Nov., 1826.

Lineage.

The illustrious family of Rawdon deduces the pedigree from Paulinus de Rawdon, to whom WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR granted considerable estates (part of which the present Marquess enjoys), by the following deed:

"I, William Kyng, the thurd yere of my reign,
Give to Paulyn Roydon, Hope and Hopetowne,
With all the bounds both up and downe;
From heven to yerthe, from yerthe to hel,
For the and thyne ther to dwel,
As truly as this kingright is myn;
For a crossebow and an arrow,
When I sal come to hunt on Yarrow.
And in token that this thing is sooth,
I bit the whyt wax with my tooth.
Before Meg, Mawd, and Margery,
And my third sonne, Henry."

This Paulyn, or Paulinus, commanded a band of Archers in the Norman invading army, and derived his surname of Rawdon, from the lands of that denomination, near Leeds, which constituted a portion of the royal grant. From this successful soldier lineally sprang (19th in descent), through a line of eminent ancestors,

GEORGE RAWDON, Esq. (only son of Francis Rawdon, Esq. of Rawdon), who settled in Ireland, and took an active part as a Military Commander during the Rebellion in 1641, in that kingdom, and subsequently, until his decease, in 1684, in the general affairs of Ireland. to Christopher-Richard Preston, Esq. of Blackmore Priory, Co. Essex, and has issue.

Sir William m. 2ndly, 30 Aug., 1813, Emma, youngest dau. of the late Patrick Tobin, Esq. of the Isle of Man. Sir William Hillary passed much of his early life upon the Continent of Europe, partly with H.R.H. the Duke of Sussex, to whom he is Equerry. Upon the renewal of the war with France in 1803, Sir William raised, at his own expense, and many years commanded, the 1st Essex Legion of Infantry and Cavalry, amounting to 1400 men, the largest force then offered by any private individual for the defence of the country; in consideration of which, and other services, the Baronetage was conferred by the personal direction of his Majesty King GEORGE III. The Baronet has since become the projector, and through his successful efforts, happily, the founder, of the Royal National Institution for the Preservation of Life from Shipwreck.

Lineage.

There are few names of greater antiquity in Italy, France and England, than that of Hilary, St. Hilaire, or St. Hillary, as it has been variously written. In the fifth century, according to the Roman calendar, it gave a successor to St. Peter; and, in the third, fourth, and fifth centuries no less than three Saints to the Church of Rome, two of whom are recorded as of ancient and noble families. The name was ennobled in France long before the time of William the Conqueror, and it still so continues, in the person of the Marquess St. Hilaire, of Normandy.

HILLARY, afterwards Bishop of Chichester, accompanied HENRY II. into England; and, according to Fuller, "was in great favour with that monarch, and had charge of the shire of Surrey."

Dugdale, in his Baronetage, states the marriage of Roger, Earl of St. Clare, with MAUD, dau. of James de St. Hillary. These and numerous other proofs which could be adduced, confirm the ancient dignity and high importance of the family. The Hillarys subsequently settled in the Co. of Warwick and Stafford, and continued to maintain their rank in those shires, until the era of the Reformation, when the last and remaining branch of the family removed into Wensley Dale, in the North Riding of the Co. York, and purchased estates there.

WILLIAM HILLARY, of Wensley, m. in 1561, Elizabeth Jaykes, and was s. by his son,

Lineage.

This noble family, and that of Fox, Earls of Ilchester, have had a common progenitor in

SIR STEPHEN FOX, a distinguished Senator during the reigns of CHARLES II., JAMES II., WILLIAM III., and QUEEN ANNE. By his marriage, in 1703, with Christian, dau. of the Rev. Charles Hope, of Naseby, Co. Lincoln, this gentleman had two sons; Stephen, created Earl of Ilchester, (see that dignity,) and

HENRY FOX, who filled several high official situations in the reign of GEORGE II. (amongst others, those of Secretary-at-War, and Secretary of State,) from 1735, when he was first returned to Parliament for Hendon, until the accession of his Majesty GEORGE III., at which period he was a Member of the Privy Council, and enjoyed the office of Paymaster-General to the Forces, but which he soon afterwards resigned. The Right Hon. gentleman m. in 1744, Georgiana-Carolina, eldest dau. of Charles, 2nd Duke of Richmond, and had issue,

Mr. Fox first came into parliament from Midhurst, in 1768, before he was of age. In 1770, he was appointed a Lord of the Admiralty, which post he retained till May, 1772. In 1773, he was made Lord of the Treasury, an office he resigned the following year, to oppose Lord North, and the American war. Upon the fall of the North Administration, March, 1782, Mr. Fox was constituted SECRETARY OF STATE, but held the Seals only till the death of Lord Rockingham, in the following July. When the brief-lived Lansdown cabinet ceased, Mr. Fox formed the celebrated coalition with Lord North; and became again Secretary-of-State, 7 April, 1783. His power was as fleeting, however, as before, and he retired on the 19th of Dec. following, to make room for Mr. Pitt, who at once became Premier. After the death of Mr. Pitt, Mr. Fox came again into office, and he died deeply lamented, in 1806, when nominally Secretary-of-State for Foreign Affairs, but virtually Prime Minister of England. He had m. Elizabeth-Bridget Armistead, but had no issue.

CHARLES-ALEXANDER, b. 11 April, 1834. The Earl assumed the surname of his maternal grandfather, "Ramey," in addition to that of Home, by Royal permission, in 1814.

Lineage.

This noble family yields to few of its native country in antiquity of descent, being a branch of the great house of Dunbar and March, springing from

THE HON. PATRICK DUNBAR, second son of Cospatrick, Earl of Dunbar and March; whose son,

WILLIAM DUNBAR, m. for his second wife, Ada, dau. of Patrick, Earl of Dunbar, and widow of — Courtenay, who had obtained from her father the lands of Home in free marriage. Courtenay d. s. p., and the lady brought those lands to her second husband, whence his posterity assumed the name of "HOME." This Ada made a grant to the monastery of Kelso, for the salvation of her soul and the souls of her father and mother, prior to the year 1240. The son of her marriage with William Dunbar,

WILLIAM DE HOME, confirmed, under that designation, the grant of his mother to the Abbot of Kelso, in 1268. From this William lineally descended

SIR ALEXANDER HOME, of Home, who founded the Collegiate Church of Dunglas, for a Provost and several Prebendaries. He m. Mariota, dau. and heir of Sir Robert Lauder, of Bass, and was s. by his eldest son,

His Lordship joined the Queen Dowager and her husband Angus, in 1515; and embraced the English interest in opposition to the Regent Albany, who took Home Castle and Fast Castle, the fortlets of Lord Home, and ravaged his lands. Albany having caused the French Ambassador to offer an amnesty, and to send a pardon to Lord Home, with a request of a conference, he agreed to meet the Regent at Dunglas, where he was instantly arrested, and committed to Edinburgh Castle, then under the governorship of the Earl of Arran; but Lord Home prevailed on Arran to permit him to escape, and to accompany him to the Borders. Lord Home made his peace with the Regent in 1516, and was restored to his honours and estates; but visiting the court in the September of that year, with his brother, William, they were arrested, tried for treason, and convicted. Lord Home was executed, 8 Oct., 1516, his head placed on the tolbooth of Edinburgh, and his honors and estates forfeited to the Crown. His brother suffered the next day. THOMAS HOPE, the elder son, being bred to the Scottish Bar, first attained eminence in 1606, by his defence of the

He was subsequently appointed King's Advocate, and created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, 11 Feb., 1628. (See lineage of Sir John Hope, Bart., the chief of the house of Hope, for a further account of this learned person.) Sir Thomas left a very large family, from the eldest son of which descend the Hopes of Craighall. The sixth son,

SIR JOHN HOPE, of Hopetoun, a Member of the Scottish Bar, marrying Anne, only dau. and heir of Robert Foules, of Leadhills, Co. His son,

CHARLES HOPE, who was b. in the previous year, s. to the family estates, and was elevated to the Peerage of Scotland 5 April, 1703, by the titles of Viscount Aithrie, Baron Hope, and EARL OF HOPETOUN. On the 22nd Oct., 1588, Lord Howard was created EARL OF NOTTINGHAM, and, after the accession of JAMES I., (at whose coronation he officiated as Lord High Steward of England,) his Lordship was engaged in several diplomatic missions of importance. "An hearty gentleman, and cordial to his sovereign, of a most proper person, one reason why Queen ELIZABETH (who, though she did not value a jewel by, valued it the more for, a fair case) reflected so much on him.

"His services in the 88th is notoriously known, when, at the first news of the Spanish approach, he towed at a cable with his own hands to draw out the harbour-bound ships into the sea: I dare boldly say, he drew more, though not by his person, by his presence and example, than any ten in the place. True it is, he was no deep seaman, (not to be expected from one of his extraction,) but had skill enough to know those who had more skill than himself, and to follow their instructions; and would not starve the Queen's service, by feeding his own sturdy wilfulness, but was ruled by the experienced in sea matters, the Queen having a navy of Oak, and an Admiral of Oiler."

Lineage.

The family of Lord Howden is of the most ancient Welsh origin, claiming descent from Caradoc, and the earliest Princes of Wales. After the final defeat of Cradoc (the Caractacus of the Romans) near a mountain still called Caer Caradoc, in the neighbourhood of Shrewsbury, his descendants settled partly in Leicestershire, and partly in Staffordshire, but a larger portion went as far north as Richmond, in Yorkshire; some even crossed the sea, and took refuge in Brittany; where a village, not far from Rennes, still bears their name. His Lordship is descended from a younger son of

SIR MATTHEW CRADOCK, of Caversal Castle, Co. Stafford, and his wife the Lady Katherine Gordon, called the White Rose of Scotland, upon whose tomb, in St. Herbert's Isle, Swansea Church, the following inscription appears: "Here lie Sir Matthew Cradock, Knt., sometime Deputie unto the Right Honorable Charles Erle of Worcester, in the countie of Glamorgan: R. Attor-& R. Chancellor of the same, Steward of Gower and Helvie; and my Lady Katherine his wife."

Sir Matthew Cradock and his lady above mentioned, had two daughters. The elder, Mary, was m. to Sir Edward Herbert, son of the 1st Earl of Pembroke: and from that union descended the Earls of Pembroke, and Powis, Hans Stanley, Esq., George Price, Esq., &c. The younger, less fortunate, espoused the famous Perkin Warbeck, whose life was as extraordinary as his death was ignominious, though his real pretensions are to this day a subject of dispute.

The elder branches of the Cradoeks of Staffordshire terminated in heiresses, by whom the estates were carried into other families.

i. WILLIAM, Viscount St. Lawrence, b. in 1826.

ii. Elizabeth.

iii. Margaret.

iv. Another daughter.

The original surname of this very ancient family was Tristram, and it is said to have been exchanged for the present one of ST. LAWRENCE, under the following circumstances:—A member of the house of Tristram, having the command of an army against the invaders of his native soil, attacked and totally routed them on St. Laurence's day, near Clontarffe, and assumed, in consequence of a vow made previously to the battle, the name of the saint, which his descendants have ever since borne. The sword, with which this warrior fought and vanquished, still hangs in the Hall of Howth, where the family has resided since its first arrival in Ireland, a period of six centuries at least.

SIR AMORICUS TRISTRAM, the brother-in-law and companion in Arms of Sir John Courcy, having, in the year 1177, effected a landing at Howth, defeated the Irish in a pitched battle, at the bridge of Ivora, and obtained the lands and barony (by tenure) of Howth, as a reward for his distinguished valour during the conflict. After this successful commencement, Sir Amoricus, with his brother-in-law, Sir John Courcy, reduced the whole province of Ulster; but in 1189, when Sir John was removed from the government of Ireland, by RICHARD I., Sir Amoricus, who was then in Connaught, being attacked by O'Connor the King of that Province, and overwhelmed by numbers, himself and his whole party, consisting of thirty knights and two hundred infantry, perished to a man. Prior to the battle, the horse evincing a disposition to seek safety in flight, Sir Amoricus thus addressed them:—"Who will may save his life by flight on horseback, if he can; but, assuredly, my heart will not suffer me to leave these my poor friends in their necessity, with whom I had rather die in honor, than live in dispraise; but to all those that will stand this day, I can say no more than this: as our lives shall together depart, so shall my soul accompany with yours to the latter day; and in doing this I give you all my most humble thanks, and this day will live and die in the field. And my fellows and friends, all bear witness with me the latter day, that to God I render and yield my soul; my service to my natural prince; my heart to my brother, Sir John Courcy, and my wife; my force, might, pain, and good will, to my poor friends and fellows here." This he spoke kneeling, and kissing the cross of his sword, thrust it through his horse, saying, "he should never serve against them, with whom he so worthily and truly had served afore." His example was followed by all the horsemen, except two young gentlemen, whom he ordered to stand upon the next hill, to witness the conflict, and after it was over, to convey the news to his brother; which they accordingly did, and testified all the circumstances of this transaction. "Thus died Sir Amorey Tristram, who, among a thousand Knights might be chosen for beauty and heroic courage: for humility and courtesy to his inferiors; yielding to none but in the way of gentleness." By the sister of Sir John Courcy, Earl of Ulster, Sir Amorey left three sons; the two younger of whom were slain on Good Friday, 1203, in assisting their uncle Courcy, against Lacie's men, in the churchyard of Downpatrick; and the eldest,

SIR NICHOLAS FITS AMOREY, 2nd Baron, was obliged to content himself with the lands of Howth, and relinquished to religious houses, the conquests of his father in Ulster. From this Sir Nicholas the Barony descended uninterruptedly, to

SIR ROBERT ST. LAWRENCE, the 15th Baron, who was appointed 23 Feb., 1467, Chancellor of the green-wax of the Exchequer; and constituted 10 July, 1483, LORD-CHANCELLOR OF IRELAND. His Lordship m. Joan, 2nd dau. of Edward Beaufort, Duke of Somerset, by whom he had four sons and two daus.; and the deed of feoffment by which he settled all his estates on Trustees for the uses and purposes of that marriage, and which contains most of the names of the prime nobility of England, as the Lady's Trustees is duly enrolled in Ireland. By this marriage

Lord Howth's descendants derived descent from EDW. III., and became inheritors of the Blood Royal. Further, it is well deserving here of observation that it was formerly and long considered that the instrument by which the children of John of Gaunt, "time honored Lancaster," were legitimated had a special reservation of their right to inherit the Royal dignity, but the accuracy of modern research has discovered the fallacy of this opinion and torn away the mystery with which the fact was surrounded. The Act of Parliament confirming the legitimation was lately found on strict examination to contain no such clause or reservation, and consequently, though King HENRY IV.'s right to the throne became questionable, if, as was thought, any of the Duke of Lancaster's children happened to have been born before him, and he thereby had a positive interest in inserting such a clause in his Patents, and did so, yet in England, the King's Letters or Patents never have had the power to annul or defeat the express Statute Law of the Realm. Hence HENRY VII. but truly described himself when he said he was heir lineal of John of Gaunt, and representative of the House of Lancaster. The second son, Thomas, was appointed in 1532, Attorney-General of Ireland, and, in 1535, second Justice of the Court of King's Bench, he left an only dau., Margaret, m. to William, son of Patrick Birmingham, Chief Justice of the King's Bench, in 1530. Sir Robert was s. by his eldest son,

SIR NICHOLAS ST. LAWRENCE, the 16th Baron. This nobleman, for his fidelity to HENRY VII., in the affair of Lambert Simnel, was presented by that monarch with three hundred pieces of gold, and confirmed by charter, dated 4 March, 1489, in the lands of Howth, &c. He subsequently attended the Lord-Deputy Kildare, at the famous battle of Knocktough, in Connaught, fought against the Irish, 19 Aug., 1504, where his Lordship headed the billmen on foot. Sir Nicholas was made Lord Chancellor of Ireland, 10 June, 1509, and dying in 1536, was s. by his eldest son, by his first wife, Genet, only dau. of Sir Christopher Plunkett, 3rd Lord of Killeen,

SIR CHRISTOPHER ST. LAWRENCE, the 17th Baron, who was s. by his eldest son,

EDWARD, 18th Baron. This nobleman, dying without male issue, in 1549, was s. by his brother,

SIR RICHARD ST. LAWRENCE, 19th Baron; at whose decease, without issue, in 1558, the lineal heirship of whatever honors accrued to the family of Lord Robert's intermarriage as above, with Joan, one of the co-heirs of "the most illustrious and powerful Prince Edward, Duke and Earl of Somerset, Marquess of Dorset, and Earl of Moreton, by his wife the noble Princess Eleanor, dau. and co-heir of the most noble Lord Richard Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick and Albemarle," (as the record has it) devolved on Lord Richard's two sisters, ANN, wife of B. Dillon, Esq. of Keptoch; and ALISON, wife of John Goulding, Esq., while the Irish dynasty of Baron of Howth passed over undisputedly to the nearest heir male of the family according to the usual course. This happened to be his brother,

CHRISTOPHER, 20th Baron, generally called the "blind Lord;" who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Plunket, of Beaulieu, by his wife, Anne, dau. of Robert Barnewall, Esq. of Dromenagh, and was s. at his decease, in 1589, by his eldest son,

HUN

Lineage.

This illustrious house, so renowned in the cabinet and the field, derives its surname from the sea-port of Hastings, in Sussex (the lastage of which its senior members farmed for many years from the Crown), and deduces its pedigree from Robert de Hastings, Portgrave of Hastings, Lord of Fillongley, in Warwickshire, and Dispensator, or Steward, to WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR. The successor of this Robert was

WALTER DE HASTINGS, who became Steward to HENRY I., as owner of the manor of Ashill, Co. Norfolk, a grant from the Crown, upon the condition of taking care of the naperie (table linen) at the coronation. From this Walter descended

HENRY, LORD HASTINGS, who m. Ada, 4th dau. of David, Earl of Huntingdon, by Maud, dau. of Hugh, and sister and co-heir of Ranulph, Earl of Chester, (refer to BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage, article Meschines, Earls of Chester), and was s. by his only son.

HENRY, LORD HASTINGS, who, adhering to Simon Montford, Earl of Leicester, against HENRY III., was knighted, and was made Governor by that nobleman of the Castles of Scarborough and Winchester in 1264; and in the following year of Kenilworth Castle. This feudal Baron m. Joane, dau. of William, and sister and co-heir of George de Cantilupe, Barons of Bergavenny; and, dying in 1308, was s. by his elder son,

JOHN DE HASTINGS, Lord Hastings and Bergavenny, seneschal of Aquitaine, and, in 1290, one of the aspirants to the Scottish throne, in right of his grandmother, Ada, who was niece of MALCOLM IV. and WILLIAM the Lion, Kings of Scotland. This nobleman had summons to Parliament from 1298 to the time of his death. He m. Isabel, dau. of William, and sister and co-heir of Aylmer de Valence, Earls of Pembroke, by whom he had two sons and three daus.; the 2nd of which daus., Elizabeth, m. Roger, Lord Grey de Ruthyn, and her Ladyship's grandson, Reginald, Lord Grey, of Ruthyn, eventually inherited the estates of this branch of the family, with the Baronies of Hastings, Bergavenny, and Welshford. His Lordship m. 2ndly, Isabel, 5th dau. of Hugh Despenser, Earl of Winchester, and had two sons. He d. 9 March, 1312-13, and was s. by the elder son of the first marriage,

JOHN, LORD HASTINGS, Bergavenny and Welshford, Governor of Kenilworth Castle, in 1323, who d. in 1325, and was s. by his only son,

LAURENCE, who, upon the decease of his grand-uncle, Aylmer de Valence, Earl of Pembroke, s. p., was created Earl of Pembroke, by patent, dated 13 Oct., 1389; a dignity that expired with John, 3rd Earl, who was accidentally slain in a tournament, by Sir John St. John, at Woodstock. His Lordship's minor honors, however, Lord Hastings, Bergavenny, and Welshford, devolved upon Reginald, Lord Grey of Ruthyn. This terminated the elder branch of the noble house of Hastings; but a younger, deriving from

THOMAS DE HASTINGS, great-grandson of Walter de Hastings, Steward to HENRY I., and elder son of William de Hastings, by his second wife, Ida, dau. of Henry, Earl of Ewe, laid the foundation of the present Earldom of Huntingdon. From this Thomas lineally descended

SIR WILLIAM DE HASTINGS, Knt., who was nominated, by EDWARD IV. Master of the Mints, at London and Calais, Steward of the honor of Leicester, and of the manors and castles of Donnington, Higham Ferrers, and Daventry; and created by the same monarch, 26 July, 1461, Baron Hastings, of Ashby-de-la-Zouch, when his Lordship was installed a Knt. of the most noble Order of the Garter. His Lordship m. Catharine, relict of William, Lord Bonville and Harrington, and dau. of Richard Nevill, Earl of Salisbury, by whom he had four sons, and two daughters. In 1465, we find this nobleman entering into an agreement with Dame Elizabeth Grey, late wife of Sir John Grey, Knt. and heir of Edward Grey, late Lord

Ferrers, that he should have the wardship of her son, Thomas, afterwards Marquis of Dorset, on whose part it was stipulated, that he should within five or six years afterwards, marry the eldest dau. of Lord Hastings, that might then be living. His Lordship about this time undertook in his capacity of Master of the Mint, a new coinage of gold, consisting of pieces of eight shillings and four-pence sterling each, called nobles; other pieces of one-half, and a third of one-fourth that value. For several years afterwards, Lord Hastings was one of the most powerful persons in the kingdom. In 1474, he obtained a license from EDWARD IV., to impark three thousand acres of land and wood in Ashby-de-la-Zouch, and he accordingly built, at Ashby, a magnificent castle for the residence of his family, which it continued to be for two hundred years. This castle was afterwards remarkable as the temporary prison of MARY, Queen of Scots. Of his Lordship, Fuller says, "The tender needeth not my dim candle to direct him to this illustrious person, whom King EDWARD IV., or rather Edward Plantagenet (because more in human than his royal capacity), so delighted in, that he made him his Lord-Chamberlain, Baron Hastings of Ashby-de-la-Zouch," &c. Lord Hastings fell a victim, eventually, to the Protector, Gloucester (RICHARD III.), and was beheaded in the Tower, 13 June, 1483, when his estates were confiscated, but soon afterwards restored, partly by RICHARD, and the remainder by HENRY VII. to his son.

EDWARD, K.B., 2nd Baron, who having m. Mary, dau. and sole heir of Thomas, Baron Hungerford, Botreux, Moulins, and Moels, had been summoned to Parliament, 15 Nov., 1482, as Lord Hungerford. By this union, his Lordship had a dau., Anne, who became the wife of Thomas Stanley, Earl of Derby, and, after his decease, of John Radcliffe, Lord Fitz-Walter; and a son, his successor, at his demise, 8 Nov., 1507.

GEORGE, third Baron. This nobleman attended HENRY VIII., in 1513, at the taking of Scroane and Tournay, and was created, by that Monarch, 3 Nov., 1520, EARL OF HUNTINGDON. His Lordship m. Anne, dau. of Henry Stafford, 2nd Duke of Buckingham, and widow of Sir Walter Herbert, Knt., and, dying 21 July, 1544, was s. by his eldest son,

FRANCIS, 2nd Earl, K.G., who m. Katherine, dau. and co-heir of Henry Pole, Lord Montagu, and grandau. of Margaret, Countess of Salisbury (which Margaret was dau. and sole-heir of George Plantagenet, Duke of Clarence, brother of EDWARD IV.). On new year's day, 1553, we find this nobleman presenting to EDWARD VI. in a purse of red silk, five sovereigns and eight half sovereigns, and receiving in return a gilt cup and cover, weighing twenty ounces. His Lordship d. 20 June, 1561, having had six sons and five daus.; of the youngest dau., the beautiful Lady Mary Hastings, the following circumstance is related: "John Vasilivich, Great Duke and Emperor of Russia, having a desire to marry an English lady, was told of the Lady Mary Hastings, who being of the Blood Royal, he began to affect: whereupon making his desires known to Queen ELIZABETH, who did well approve thereof, he sent over Theodore Pimenakoie, a nobleman of great account, his Ambassador, who, in the name of his master, offered great advantages to the Queen in the event of the marriage. The Queen hereupon caused the lady to be attended with divers ladies and young noblemen, that so the Ambassador might have a sight of her, which was accomplished in York House garden, near Charing Cross, London. There was the Envoy brought into her presence, and casting down his countenance, fell prostrate before her, then rising back with his face still towards her, (the lady with the rest, admiring at his strange salutation), he said, by his interpreter, 'it sufficed him to behold the angelic presence of her, who he hoped would be his master's spouse and Empress.' The alliance did not, however, take place, and the Lady died unmarried. Of the Earl's sons,

Lineage.

This noble family deduces its descent from the ancient and honorable house of Villiers, Seignours of Lile-Adam, in Normandy; and its establishment in England is fixed at the period of the Conquest. For six centuries, subsequently, it ranked amongst the most considerable gentry, serving the office of Sheriff, receiving the honor of Knighthood, &c. &c., and was amongst the earliest distinguished by a Baronetcy, that dignity having been conferred, 19 July, 1619, upon

WILLIAM VILLIERS, Esq. of Brookesby, eldest son of Sir George Villiers, Knt. (by his 1st marriage with Audrey, dau. and heir of William Sanders, Esq. of Harrington, Co. Northampton). The title, however, ceased in 1711, at the demise of the grandson of the first possessor, without issue. The eldest son, by his 2nd marriage, of Sir George Villiers, and the half-brother of Sir William, the 1st Bart., was George, DUKE OF BUCKINGHAM, the celebrated favorite of JAMES I. and CHARLES I., who fell by the hand of the assassin, Felton, 23 Aug., 1628, (for an account of VILLIERS, DUKES OF BUCKINGHAM, see BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage). The 2nd son of the above Sir George Villiers, Knt., by his 1st wife, and consequently, brother of Sir William Villiers, aforesaid,

EDWARD VILLIERS, received the honor of Knighthood 7 Sept., 1616, and from him the present Earl of Jersey directly derives. This gentleman having been employed, in 1620, as Ambassador to Bohemia, was nominated in 1632, through the interest of his half-brother, the Duke of Buckingham, President of the Province of Munster, in Ireland, upon the decease of the Earl of Thomond. Sir Edward m. Barbara, eldest dau. of Sir John St. John, of Lidiard Tregose, Co. Wilts, and niece of Sir Oliver St. John, created, 3 Jan., 1630, Viscount Grandison, in the Peerage of Ireland, with limitation of the honor to her (Lady Villiers's) posterity. By this marriage, Sir Edward had four sons and three daughters. He d. 7 Sept., 1636, lamented more deeply than any Governor who had previously ruled the Province, and was interred in the Earl of Cork's chapel, at Youghall, where the following lines were engraven on his tomb:

"Munster may curse the time that Villiers came,
To make us worse, by leaving such a name
Of noble parts, as none can imitate,
But those whose hearts are married to the state:
But if they press to imitate his fame,
Munster may bless the time that Villiers came.

WILLIAM VILLIERS, Esq., the eldest son of Sir Edward, succeeded to the estate of his father, and, upon the demise of his uncle, in 1630, became Viscount Grandison. Actively espousing the cause of CHARLES I., his Lordship received a wound at the siege of Bristol, 26 July, 1643, of which he died in the following month, at Oxford, leaving, by Mary, dau. of Paul, Viscount Bayning, an only dau., Barbara, (wife of Roger Palmer, Earl of Castlemain, in Ireland,) afterwards Duchess of Cleveland, and Mistress of CHARLES II., and transmitting his title to his brother,

JOHN, 3rd Viscount Grandison, who d. s. p., when the honors devolved upon his brother,

GEORGE, 4th Viscount, who m. Lady Mary Leigh, 2nd

dau. and co-heir of Sir Francis Leigh, Bart., created Lord Dunamore, in 1628, and Earl of Chichester, in 1644; (honors which expired with his Lordship, in 1653), and had two sons and two daus. The elder son,

EDWARD, a Brigadier-Gen. in the Army, and Lieut.-Col. of the Queen's Regt. of Horse, m. in 1677, Catherine, dau. and heir of John Fitzgerald, Esq. of Dromana, Co. Waterford, by whom he obtained a considerable landed property in that county. He d. in 1693, leaving

Mrs. Villiers obtained a patent from King WILLIAM in 1699, granting her the privilege to enjoy the same title and precedence, as if her husband had survived his father, and had actually been possessed of the honor of VISCOUNT GRANDISON. She married with Lieut.-Gen. William Steuart, appointed in 1711, Commander-in-Chief of the Army during the Duke of Ormonde's absence. General Steuart was M.P. for the Co. of Waterford, and a Privy-Councillor in Ireland.

Her ladyship d. 1809.

His Lordship d. 14 May, 1766, when the Earldom expired, but the Viscounty of Grandison devolved, as will appear presently, upon the 3rd Earl of Jersey. Return we now to

He had likewise a grant from the same Monarch, of the royal house and manor of Richmond; and his Lady was appointed Governess to the Princesses, MARY and ANNE, afterwards Queens of England. Retiring from the troubles in his own country, he removed to the North of Scotland, and was well received by Thomas, Earl of Marr, then one of the most powerful persons there. This Stiven m. Margaret, dau. and heir of Sir Andrew Garioch, Knt., Caskieben, with whom he obtained a very considerable fortune; and from this marriage lineally descended, through a long line of distinguished ancestors,

He had subsequently, however, the misfortune to assist his friend, the Hon. Capt. James Campbell, in carrying off and marrying Miss Mary Wharton, a young and rich heiress, related to Lord Wharton, the great favourite of King WILLIAM, who obtained a proclamation for arresting all the parties. Campbell escaped into Scotland; but Sir John being betrayed by his landlord for fifty pounds, was tried at the Old Bailey, and condemned, and executed in Dec., 1690; although it appeared upon the trial, by the evidence of the clergyman who performed the marriage ceremony, and the people of the house in which the parties lodged, and where they remained two days, as well as by Miss Wharton's own letter to her aunt, informing her of her marriage, that no force had been used, but that she had acted with her free will. The marriage was ultimately dissolved by Act of Parliament, and Capt. Campbell, marrying in Scotland, became the father of Gen. Campbell, afterwards Duke of Argyll. In the battle of Sheriff Muir, young Johnston fell, and Sir John, being obliged to fly, sunk into the grave, broken hearted, his hopes frustrated, and his branch of the family extinct. He died at the close of the year, 1724, when the Baronetcy devolved upon his cousin,

KEMP.

KEMP, THE REV. SIR WILLIAM-ROBERT, of Gissing, Co. Norfolk; b. in Nov., 1791; s. as 10th Bart., on the decease of his father, 11 Oct., 1804. Sir William Kemp is Rector of Flordon and Gissing, both in the Co. Norfolk.

Lineage.

The name of Kemp is derived from the Saxon word kemp, or combat, which in Norfolk is retained to this day; a foot-ball match being called Camping or Kemping; and thus, in Saxon, a Kemper signifies a combatant, a champion, a man of arms.

The family of Kemp has been of long standing in the Cos. of Kent, Essex, Suffolk, and Norfolk; and we meet with two very eminent churchmen of the name—John Kemp, LL.D., Bishop successively of Rochester, of Chichester, and of London, then Archbishop of York, and finally Archbishop of Canterbury; and Thomas Kemp, his Grace's nephew, who was consecrated Bishop of London, in 1449.

K E N

Lineage.

This family deduces its descent from

SIR VALENTINE BROWNE, of Crofts, Co. Lincoln, Knt., who was constituted Auditor-General of Ireland, and d. in 1567, leaving

SIR VALENTINE BROWNE, his heir, who in 1583, received instruction, jointly with Sir Henry Wallop, for the surveying several escheated lands in Ireland. He was subsequently sworn of the Privy-Council, and represented the Co. of Sligo in Parliament, in 1585. On the 28th June, in the same year, Sir Valentine purchased from Donald, Earl of Clancarty, all the lands, manors, &c., in the Cos. of Kerry and Cork, which had been in the possession of Teige Dermot Mac Cormac, and Rorie Donoghmore. Sir Valentine m. Thomasine, sister of the Lord-Keeper (Sir Nicholas) Baron, and had two sons, the second of whom,

Sir Valentine, after his father's decease, presented a petition to JAMES I., praying an abatement of the yearly rent reserved on the estate, which he held from the Crown as an undertaker, at the annual sum of £113 6 8., in regard of the small profit he made of it, being set out in the most barren and remote part of the county of Kerry; which request was complied with, and he received a confirmation, by patent, of all his lands at a reduced rent. VALENTINE, 3rd Viscount, who continued outlawed by the attainder of his father and grandfather. KENMURE.

KENMURE, VISCOUNT (John Gordon), and Lord Lochinvar, in the Peerage of Scotland, restored by Act of Parliament, 17 June, 1824, to the honors forfeited by the 6th Viscount, was b. in 1750; m. in 1791, Miss Morgan, by whom (who d. in 1815), he has no issue. The Viscount is Vice-Lieut. of the Stewarty of Kircudbright, is the 10th Viscount in succession, and the 7th in the enjoyment of the dignity.

Lineage.

The Gordons are believed to have come from Gaul to England with WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR; and thence to Scotland with MALCOLM III., in whose reign the public records exhibit Richard de Gordoun, the head of this family, as holding the Barony of Gordoun and other extensive possessions in the Merse, in the Southern frontiers of Scotland. From this Richard descended

SIR ADAM DE GORDOUN, a Knight of great renown, and the representative of the family in the momentous period of Scottish History, who, though his possessions were almost on the borders of England, long held out against the tyranny of EDW. I., and for a long time resisted the bond of fealty and submission prescribed by EDWARD, in 1292; but that bond having become generally subscribed by the successively conquered Scotch nobility, and Sir Adam's own son, William de Gordon, having been obliged to do so, the valiant Knight was compelled to succumb, 28 July, 1296. Baliol's subsequent resignation of the Crown to EDWARD gave Sir Adam a pretence to fly to arms, and thereafter, like Wallace and others, he leagued his fortunes with those of ROBERT BRUCE, from whom he obtained for his services a grant of the lands of Strathbogie in the North, forfeited by the desertion of the Earl of Athol. These Sir Adam never however possessed, for the donation became ineffective, by the return of the Earl to his allegiance. Sir Adam had another son who shone conspicuously at Hallidon Hill, in 1333, but it has not yet been ascertained whether William or Alexander was the elder son. But it appears from the records, that Sir Adam in 1306 took a charter of his Barony of Stithill in life-rent to himself, and in fee to his son,

SIR WILLIAM DE GORDOUN, who subscribed the bond of fealty 12 July, 1206, and was designated in a writ, in 1331, as Signor de Stithill. He was s. by his son,

ROGER DE GORDOUN, who was s. by his son,

SIR ROBERT GORDON, of Lochinvar, remarkable for his great bodily strength and activity, who, at a tournament, proclaimed by JAMES VI., obtained, as one of the three successful champions, a prize from the hands of the Princess Elizabeth. He m. Lady Isabel Ruthven, dau. of William, 1st Earl of Gowrie, and, dying in 1632, was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN GORDON, of Lochinvar. This gentleman disposed of Stithill, the ancient inheritance of the family, and is said to have given the produce in a purse to the Duke of Buckingham, to insure his Grace's interest, in forwarding his claim to the Earldom of Gowrie. But the Duke falling the very next day, by the hand of the assassin Felton, the expectation proved abortive. Sir John was, however, elevated to the Peerage, as Lord Lochinvar, and VISCOUNT KENMURE, by patent, dated 8 May, 1633, with remainder to his heirs male whatsoever, bearing the surname and arms of Gordon. His Lordship m. Jane, dau. of Archibald, 7th Earl of Argyll, and dying in 1634, was s. by his only son,

He was made prisoner at Preston Pans the following year and thence conveyed to London, where he was tried, condemned and executed on Tower Hill, 24 Feb. ensuing, when the honors of his house fell under an attainder. He m. Mary Dalzell, only sister of Robert, 6th Earl of Carnwath (a title also forfeited, and recently restored), by whom he left three sons (the eldest and youngest d. unm.) and a dau., Harriet, m. to John Dalzell, Esq. When his Lordship's estate was brought to the hammer, his Dowager purchased it; and when her son Robert came of age, delivered it up to him free of debt, which son,

ROBERT GORDON, was styled 7th Viscount. He d. unm., 1 Aug., 1741, when the estates devolved on his brother,

Lineage.

I. JOHN KENNAWAY, Esq. (descended from William Kennaway, Esq., a Merchant, by Joyce, dau. of Sir William Bastard, of Garston, Devon), having entered early into the service of the Hon. East India Company, received his commission as Captain in 1780, and served in the Bengal part of the Grand Army, commanded by Lieut.-Gen. Sir Eyre Coote, K.B., in the Carnatic, during the invasion of Hyder Ali, until the battle and siege of Cuddalore. A general peace soon after taking place, Capt. Kennaway returned to Bengal, was appointed, in 1786, Aide-de-Camp to Marquess Cornwallis, and sent by his Lordship, in 1788, as Envoy to the Court of Hyderabad, to demand from the Nizane the cession of the maritime province of Guntoor, which, contrary to treaty, had for many years remained in his Highness's possession; Capt. Kennaway was in this embassy eminently successful, and soon after concluded with the Nizane a treaty of alliance against Tippoo Sultan, for which services his Majesty was pleased to create him a Bart., 25 Feb., 1791, and the Court of Directors of the East India Company to take out his patent at the public expense. In 1792, he was appointed by Marquess Cornwallis Commissioner to adjust, in concert with agents of the Nizane and the Mahrattas, a preliminary and definitive treaty of Peace with the Commissioners of Tippoo Sultan, by which the latter Prince ceded half his dominions, and agreed to the payment of three millions three hundred thousand pounds to the three allied powers, for the expenses of the war, and to deliver up two of his sons as hostages for the due performance of the treaty. His health having suffered by his residence in India, Sir John Kennaway returned to England on furlough in 1794, was promoted to be Major, and subsequently Lieut.-Col., by Brevet, in his Majesty's service in India. The East India Company, in 1796, under the sanction of the Board of Commissioners for the Affairs of India, conferred upon Col. Kennaway a pension of £500 per annum, as a reward for his services. The remotest ancestor of the family of Kenyon which can be traced, is

JORDAN KENYON, Lord of Kenyon, in the parish of Winwick, Co. Lancaster, temp. HENRY III., which property was carried away by

ALMARICA KENYON, an heiress, who m. Thurston Holland, Esq. of Denton; on the occurrence of this event the family of Kenyon removed to Park-head, near Blackburn; and thence to Peel Hall, on the marriage of

ROGER KENYON, Esq., with Alice, dau. and heir of George Rigby, Esq., which mansion of Peel Hall is still in the possession of the Kenyons. The branch of the family, raised to the Peerage, removed into Flintshire in the beginning of the eighteenth century, and acquired the estates and mansion of Gredington, by the marriage of

LLOYD KENYON, Esq., in 1730, with Jane, eldest dau. of Robert Eddowes, Esq., of Eagle Hall, Co. Chester. The issue of this marriage were

LLOYD KENYON, Esq., the 2nd son, b. at Gredington, in Flintshire, 6 Oct., 1732; having received the elementary part of his education at Ruthin, in Denbighshire, was articulated at an early age to Mr. W. J. Tomkinson, an eminent attorney at Nantwich, in Cheshire. At the expiration of his articles, Mr. Kenyon determined to pursue the higher walk of the profession, and became accordingly, in Trinity Term, 1754, a Member of the Society of Lincoln's Inn, by which he was called to the Bar in Hilary Term, 1761. His subsequent success was slow, but not the less certain, and about the year 1773, we find him enjoying very considerable practice in the Court of Chancery; his reputation was, however, firmly established in 1780, by his able defence, in conjunction with Mr. (afterwards Lord) Erskine, of Lord George Gordon. In 1782, soon after the accession of the Rockingham administration, Mr. Kenyon was appointed Attorney-General, without serving the intermediate office of Solicitor-General, and was constituted at the same time, Chief-Justice of Chester. In March, 1784, he was appointed Master of the Rolls, and created a Bart. Upon the Rolls' Bench Sir Lloyd continued until the end of May, 1788, when he succeeded Lord Mansfield as LORD-CHIEF-JUSTICE of the Court of King's-Bench, and was elevated to the Peerage (9 June, 1788,) in the dignity of LORD KENYON, Baron of Gredington, Co. RICHARD, 3rd Viscount. This nobleman took up arms in 1642, under an apprehension that the extirpation of the Catholics was in contemplation, and obtaining possession of the City of Kilkenny, was appointed General of the Irish forces. He was soon afterwards defeated by the Earl of Ormonde, at Kiltrush, and forced to fall back upon Kilkenny, where he was chosen President of the Supreme Council assembled there in the summer of 1642. He continued, subsequently, an active leader in the War, until his decease, in 1651, when (although dead) he was excepted from pardon for life or estate, by Cromwell's Act, passed in 1652, for the settlement of Ireland. In 1692 his Lordship claimed his seat in Parliament, and subscribed the oath of allegiance; but being required to take the oath of supremacy, he declined, when the Lord-Chancellor apprised him, that in consequence of such refusal, he could not sit in the House of Lords. KIN KINGSALE.

KINGSALE, LORD (John Stapleton de Courcy), Baron Courcy, of Courcy, and Baron of Ringrove, in the Peerage of Ireland; b. 17 Sept., 1805; m. Sarah, dau. of Joseph Chadder, Esq., and has a daughter,

His Lordship s. as 28th, and PREMIER, Baron, on the demise of his father, 25 Jan., 1832. Lord Kingsale enjoys the hereditary privilege (granted by King JOHN to De Courcy, Earl of Ulster,) of wearing his hat in the royal presence.

Lineage.

The family of Courcy claims alliance with most of the Royal Houses of Europe, paternally through the Dukes of Lorraine, and maternally through the ducal House of Normandy.

LEWIS IV. King of France, b. in 920, m. in 930, Gerberga, dau. of HENRY I., Emperor of Germany, by whom he had two sons, Lotharius, who succeeded to the French Throne (and with whose son, Lewis V., the race of Monarchs descended from Charlemagne ceased), and

CHARLES, Duke of Lorraine, whose immediate descendant,

ROBERT DE COURCY, was Lord of Courcy, in Normandy, in 1006, and was s. by his eldest son,

RICHARD DE COURCY, who accompanied his sovereign, WILLIAM, into England, and distinguishing himself at the battle of Hastings, participated largely in the Conqueror's spoil, having been allotted numerous lordships; amongst which was that of Stoke, Co. Somerset, and thence denominated Stoke Courcy. His Lordship d. in 1068, and was s. by his son,

ROBERT, as Lord de Courcy, in Normandy, and Baron of Stoke Courcy in England. This nobleman was Steward of the Household to HENRY I., and to his dau., Maude the Empress: by the former of whom he was made one of the greater Barons of Westminster. His Lordship m. Rohesia, dau. of Hugh de Grant Mesnil, Lord of Hinckley, Co. Leicester, and Lord High-Steward of England, by whom he had five sons, and was s. by the eldest,

WILLIAM, Baron of Stoke Courcy, and Dapifer to HENRY I. This nobleman, having no issue, was s. by his brother,

ROBERT, Baron of Stoke Courcy, who, temp. King STEPHEN, had a principal command at the battle of Northampton, against the Scotch. This feudal Lord m. Avicia, dau. and co-heir of William de Meschines, Earl of Cambridge, and was s. by an only son,

WILLIAM, Baron of Stoke Courcy, and Dapifer to HENRY II. This nobleman d. in 1171, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN COURCY, who, having distinguished himself temp. HENRY II. in that monarch's wars in England and Gascony, was sent into Ireland, in the year 1177, as an assistant to William Fitz-Adelm in the Government of that kingdom. Sir John having prevailed upon some of the veteran soldiery to accompany him, invaded the province of Ulster with 22 knights, 50 esquires and about 300 foot soldiers, and, after many hard fought battles, succeeded in attaching that quarter of the kingdom to the English monarchy. For which important service he was created, in 1181, (being the first Englishman dignified with an Irish title of honor), EARL OF ULSTER. His Lordship continued in high favour during the remainder of the reign of his royal master, and performed prodigies of valor in Ireland; but upon the accession of KING JOHN, his splendour and rank having excited the envy of Hugh de Lacie, appointed Governor of Ireland by that monarch, the Earl of Ulster was treacherously seized while performing penance unarmed and barefooted in the churchyard of Down-Patrick, on Good Friday, anno 1203, and sent over to England, where the King condemned him to perpetual imprisonment in the Tower, and granted to Lacie all the Earl's possessions in Ireland. After his Lordship had been in confinement about a year, a dispute happening to arise between KING JOHN, and Philip-Augustus of France, concerning the Duchy of Normandy, the decision of which being referred to single combat, KING JOHN, more hasty than advised, appointed the day, against which the King of France provided his champion; but the King of England, less fortunate, could find no one of his subjects willing to take up the gauntlet, until his captive in the Tower, the gallant Earl of Ulster, was prevailed upon to accept the challenge. But, when every thing was prepared for the contest, and the champions had entered the lists, in presence of the Monarchs of England, France and Spain, the opponent of the Earl, seized with a sudden panic, put spurs to his horse, and fled the arena; whereupon the victory was adjudged with acclamation to the champion of England. The French King, being informed, however, of the Earl's powerful strength, and wishing to witness some exhibition of it, his Lordship at the desire of KING JOHN, cleft a massive helmet in twain at a single blow. The King was so well satisfied with this signal performance, that he not only restored the Earl to his estates and effects, but desired him to ask any thing within his gift, and it should be granted. To which ULSTER replied, that having estates and titles enough, he desired that his successors might have the privilege (their first obeisance being paid) to remain covered in the presence of his Majesty, and all future Kings of England, which request was immediately conceded. This heroic warrior and able statesman d. in France, about the year 1210, and was s. by his only son,

MILES, upon whom HENRY III. conferred, in 1181, the Barony of Kingsale, in Ireland, as a compensation for the Earldom of Ulster, which was retained by Hugo de Lacie. For five centuries afterwards the honors descended regularly. The 18th Lord,

This nobleman, in observance of the ancient privilege of his house, appeared in the presence of KING WILLIAM covered, and explained to that monarch, when his Majesty expressed surprise at the circumstance, the reason thus:—"Sire, my name is Courcy; I am Lord of Kingsale, in your Majesty's kingdom of Ireland; and the reason of my appearing covered in your Majesty's presence is, to assert the ancient privilege of my family, granted to Sir John de Courcy, Earl of Ulster, and his heirs, by JOHN, King of England." brother's death, returning into Ireland, he had a pardon from the Crown. His Lordship d. in 1727, and was s. by his only surviving son,

Lineage.

The feudal Barony of Kinnaird, in Perthshire, was conferred (by charter) upon RADULPHUS RUFUS, or the Red, by William the Lion, King of Scotland, whence the family assumed the name of Kinnaird. From this personage directly descended

Mr. Kinnaird, the next heir, however, brought an action in the Commissary Court, for the purpose of establishing the surreptitiousness of these children, and Lord and Lady Kinnaird refusing to answer the interrogatories directed to be put by the Commissaries, it was decreed that his Lordship should pay to Mr. Kinnaird £400, for not appearing personally in Court. The affair terminated by Lord Kinnaird's declaring that both the children were dead. His Lordship d. 16 July, 1758, when the Barony devolved upon his kinsman,

PETER, of whom presently.

James, (Sir) of Kingask, whose son,

SIR JAMES HAY, of Pitcorthie, Co. Fife, accompanied JAMES VI. into England, and became, subsequently, celebrated as the favourite of that Monarch. Sir James was created a Baron of England in 1615, as Lord Hay of Sauley, Co. York, without a solemn investiture, being the first Peer so created, the lawyers declaring that the delivery of the letters patent was sufficient without any ceremony. In 1616 his Lordship went Ambassador to France, and was advanced, in 1618, to the Viscounty of Doncaster, and being again deputed upon a similar embassy, was created Earl of Carlisle. His Lordship was Groom of the Stole to King JAMES, and Knight of the Garter. Upon the accession of CHARLES I. he obtained a grant of the Island of Barbadoes. This nobleman was remarkable for the extravagancy of his voluptuousness, and left behind him, according to Lord Clarendon, "the reputation of a very fine gentleman, and a most accomplished courtier: after having spent in a very jovial manner, about £400,000, which, upon a strict computation, he received from the Crown, he left not a house nor acre of land to be remembered by." His Lordship d. in 1686, and was s. by his only son, (by Honora, dau. and sole heir of Edward, Lord Denny),

The second son,

GEORGE HAY, Esq. of Kinfauns, being a highly accomplished person, was introduced at Court by his uncle, Lord Carlisle, and acquired immediately the full confidence and favor of King JAMES. He was appointed a Gentleman of the Bed-Chamber, honored with the dignity of Knighthood, and granted (18 Feb., 1598) the dissolved Carthusian Priory of Perth. He was, subsequently, nominated Clerk Register of Scotland, and in 1622, appointed to the high dignity of LORD CHANCELLOR of that kingdom. Sir George was advanced to the Peerage by CHARLES I., 4 May, 1627, by the titles of Baron Hay, of Kinfauns, and Viscount Duplin, with reversion to his heirs general whatsoever; and created, 25 May, 1633, EARL OF KINNOL, with the same reversionary clause in the patent. His Lordship m. Margaret, dau. of Sir James Haliburton, of Pitcur, by whom he had issue, two sons and a daughter. GEORGE, 2nd Earl, Captain of the Yeomen of the Guard to CHARLES I., and one of his Majesty's Privy Council. His Lordship was distinguished, during the Civil Wars, by unshaken fidelity to his unfortunate sovereign, and gallant and active services as a soldier in his cause. He m. Anne, eldest dau. of William, (Douglas) Earl of Morton, Lord Treasurer of Scotland, by whom he had issue two daus., and his successor, at his demise, in 1644.

WILLIAM, 3rd Earl, who became, upon the decease of his cousin, James, Earl of Carlisle, without issue, in 1660, proprietor of the Island of Barbadoes, granted by King CHARLES I. to the 1st Earl of Carlisle, which his Lordship disposed of to CHARLES II. in 1661. This nobleman, during the Civil Wars, was taken by the Republicans, and committed prisoner to the Castle of Edinburgh, whence he made his escape, 28 May, 1654, over the wall, by tying sheets and blankets together. Joining the Earl of Middleton in the North, he was made prisoner again by the English, in the braes of Angus, in the Nov. of the same year. The Earl m. 1st, Mary, dau. of Robert, 2nd Earl of Cardigan, by whom he had no issue; and, 2ndly, Catherine, dau. of Charles Viscount Cranbourne, and grandau. of William Cecil, Earl of Salisbury, by whom he had two sons, successive Earls. The Earl d. in 1719, and was s. by his only surviving son,

GEORGE-HENRY, 7th Earl, who had been previously (31 Dec., 1711), created a Peer of Great Britain, by the title of Baron Hay, of Pedwardine, Co. Hereford. His Lordship m. in 1709, Abigail, youngest dau. of Robert, (Harley), Earl of Oxford, Lord-High-Treasurer of Great Britain, by whom he had four sons and six daughters, of whom, 1. Robert, entered into Holy Orders, and became successively a Prebendary of Westminster, (1743), Bishop of St. Asaph (1748), Bishop of Salisbury (1761), and (in the same year) Archbishop of York. His Grace assumed the surname and arms of "Drummond," according to the deed of entail of his great grandfather, William, Viscount Strathallan. Lineage.

SIR WILLIAM KEITH, Knt., was created Earl Marischal of Scotland, by JAMES II. of that kingdom in 1458, which dignity passed in regular succession to

GEORGE,* the 10th Earl; but this nobleman joining in the rising of 1715, his honors and estates fell under an

* George, 10th Earl Marischal. This nobleman, who, as mentioned, was attainted in consequence of his participation in the rising of 1715, had the good fortune to effect his escape into Spain, and thence removing into Prussia, obtained the confidence and friendship of FREDERICK III., who appointed him, in 1750, Ambassador to France; invested him with the Order of the Black Eagle, and constituted him Governor of Neuschatel. In 1759, his Lordship, being Ambassador from Prussia to the Court of Madrid, discovered the secret of the family compact, by which the different branches of the house of Bourbon had bound themselves to assist each other; and communicating the same to Mr. Pitt, that minister represented his case so favorably to GEORGE III. that his Majesty granted his Lordship's pardon in 1759; and an Act of Parliament act of attainder in 1716. His Lordship was, for many years subsequently, in the service of the King of Prussia, and his only brother, the Hon. George Keith, following his fortunes, distinguished himself first in the Russian service, where he attained the rank of Field Marshal, and had the command of the Russian Army in the war of 1740. He was afterwards in the service of the King of Prussia. He fell at Hockirchin, 14 Oct., 1758; and a superb monument to his memory, at Berlin, records his achievements, as the celebrated Marshal Keith.

THE HON. SIR JOHN KEITH, Knt., 3rd son of William, 6th Earl Marischal, by Lady Mary Eskine, was elevated to the Peerage 26 June, 1677, by the titles of Baron Keith, of Inverurie, and Keith Hall, and EARL OF KINTORE, having been appointed in 1660, Knight Marischal of Scotland, and that office settled hereditarily in his family, in consideration of the loyalty he had evinced, in preserving the regalia of Scotland from falling into the hands of CROMWELL. Sir John Keith had those ensigns of royalty safely conveyed from Dunmore Castle, and deposited under ground in the church of Kinneff; sailing immediately for France, it was supposed that he had carried them away; in consequence of which, all further search, by the Cromwellians, was abandoned.* His Lordship obtained a new grant of his honors in 1694, extending the reversion to his own female heirs, and to the male issue of his brother George. He m. Margaret, dau. of Thomas, 2nd Earl of Haddington, and was s. in 1714, by his only son,

WILLIAM, 2nd Earl. This nobleman, joining the insurgents of 1715, was at the battle of Sheriff Muir, and never afterwards shaved his beard; he does not appear to have suffered in consequence, however, further than being deprived of the Office of Marischal. His Lordship m. Catherine, eldest dau. of David, 4th Viscount Stormont, by whom he had issue,

- I. JOHN, } successive Earls.
- II. WILLIAM, }
- III. Catherine, m. to David, 5th Lord Falconer of Halkerton, and had, with other issue,

1 ALEXANDER, 6th Lord Falconer, who was s. in 1762, by his brother,	1776, and was s. by his eldest son,
2 WILLIAM, 7th Lord Falconer, who d. in Dec.,	3 ANTHONY-ADRIAN, 8th Lord Falconer, of whom hereafter, as 5th EARL OF KINTORE.

His Lordship was s. in 1718, by his elder son,

JOHN, 3rd Earl, who d. s. p. in 1738, when the honors devolved upon his brother,

WILLIAM, 4th Earl. This nobleman dying unm., in 1761, the estates devolved upon George, the 10th and attainted Earl Marischal, while the Peerage remained suspended, until that nobleman's decease, in 1778, when it passed to

ANTHONY-ADRIAN FALCONER, 8th Lord Falconer, of Halkerton, (revert to Catherine, dau. of William, 4th Earl, and her descendants), who inherited with it the estate of Kintore, the old castle of Hall Forest, given to the family by ROBERT I. and Keith Hall. The noble family of Falconer deduce their descent from Ranulphus, (son of Walter de Lunkyr), appointed King's Falconer by WILLIAM the LION, whence he assumed the surname of Falconer. The descendant of that personage, Alexander, passed in the following year to enable him to inherit estates, but he rejected the insertion of a clause empowering his succession to honors. His Lordship was further favored by the Crown under the sanction of Parliament, with a grant of public money in 1761. He died in 1778, at Potsdam, at the advanced age of eighty-eight, enjoying his Majesty of Prussia's confidence to the last, in so great a degree as to be called "the King's friend." An "Eloge de my Lord Marechal," by M. D'Alembert, was published at Berlin in 1779.

He likewise served the office of Sheriff in the first year of the latter reign. This gentleman was a zealous supporter of the republican party, and it was at a meeting held at his house that a plan for annihilating the prerogative of the Crown was first projected. By that scheme the King was to be divested of the power of making war, or concluding peace. The Parliament was to possess the sole control of the Militia, the disposal of all places of trust and emolument, and to assemble once a year without any summons from the Crown; and to have, likewise, the entire superintendence of the Royal revenues, under the management of Councils appointed by the House. His Lordship s. to the honors, as 3rd Viscount, on the demise of his brother, in May, 1836.

Lineage.

ALMARIC LAKE, of Southampton, had two sons,

THOMAS, (Sir) of whom presently.

Arthur, in Holy Orders, consecrated BISHOP OF BATH AND WELLS, in 1626, d. unm. 4 May, 1616.

The elder son,

SIR THOMAS LAKE, of Canons, Co. Middlesex, was born at Southampton, bred a scholar, and afterwards taken into the service of Sir Francis Walsingham, Secretary of State, as his amanuensis. By this Minister he was recommended to Queen ELIZABETH, to whom he read French and Latin. A little before her Majesty's death, she made him Clerk of her Signet; and, after her decease, he was deputed by the State, in that capacity, to attend JAMES I. from Berwick. That monarch soon afterwards employed him in French affairs, and Knighted him. After Sir Robert Cecil (Salisbury) attained the administration of affairs, the Secretaryship of State was divided, and Sir Thomas Lake was appointed one of the Secretaries; "and so continued," says A. Wood, "with honorable esteem of all men, till malice and revenge, two violent passions, overruling the weaker sex,* concerning his wife and dau., in-

* From a statement made by Saunderson, who was Secretary to Lord Roos, during that nobleman's embassy in Spain (1611), we extract the cause and issue of the great feud between Frances, 2nd wife of Thomas, 1st Earl of Exeter, and the Lake family, alluded to above. We must previously premise that Thomas, 1st Earl of Exeter, espoused, for his 2nd Countess, Frances-Brydges, dau. of William, Lord Chandos, and widow of Sir Thomas Smith, Master of Requests to JAMES I., and that the Lady was thirty-eight years younger than her noble husband. It is necessary also to observe, that Lord Roos, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Thomas Lake, was only son of William, 2nd Earl of Exeter (son and successor of the 1st Earl), by Elizabeth, only dau. and heir of Edward Manners, Earl of Rutland. He was thus step-grandson to Frances, Countess of Exeter.

Upon Lord Roos's return from Spain, falling into some neglect of his wife and her kindred, and soon after withdrawing into Italy, where he became a Roman Catholic, Lady Lake and her dau., Lady Roos, asserted that an improper intimacy had subsisted between his Lordship and the Countess, his step-grandmother, and that the discovery of the intrigue had caused his Lordship's flight

And

WARWICK LAKE, Esq., who m. Elizabeth, only dau. and sole heir of Sir Charles Gerard, of Flamberda, Bart. and granddaughter, maternally, of Charles Seymour, Lord Seymour of Trowbridge, and dying in 1712, left an only son.

LANCLOT-CHARLES LAKE, Esq. This gentleman m. Letitia, dau. and co-heir of John Gumley, Esq. of Isleworth, and had two sons; of whom,

GERARD LAKE, Esq., having adopted the profession of arms, attained the rank of General in the Army, with the Colonelcy of the 60th Regiment of Foot, and was elevated to the Peerage 1 Sept., 1804, as Baron Lake of Delhi, Lancashire, and of Aston-Clinton, Co. Bucks, in consideration of the high military talents and personal valour he had displayed in the command of the Army during the Mahratta War, receiving, at the same time, the thanks of both Houses of Parliament. His Lordship was advanced to a Viscounty, by similar titles, 31 Oct., 1807. He m. in 1770, Elizabeth, only dau. of Edward Barker, Esq. of St. Julian's, Co. Herts, and had issue,

Sir Thomas Lake and his wife were condemned to pay £10,000 to the Crown, and £5000 to the Countess, while Sarah Wharton, one of the perjured witnesses, was sentenced to be whipped through the streets at the cart's tail, and to do penance in St. Martin's Church.

Charles s. to the title, as 2nd Bart., upon the demise of his father, 4 Oct., 1824, and was appointed Knt.-Marshal of the King's Household, 30 Jan., 1825.

Lineage.

LIEUT.-COL. ROBERT BURGESS, a gentleman of considerable fortune in the Co. Berks, distinguished himself amongst the most gallant adherents of Royalty during the Civil Wars, and had the honor of successfully opposing the Usurper Cromwell himself; of which affair the following account is extracted from Rushworth's Historical Collection for 1645.

"He (Cromwell) then marched over the river to Farringdon, hoping to have reduced the place, where a garrison was kept for the King, by Lieut.-Col. Burgess (as Deputy-Governor under Col. Owen); but wanting Foot for that service, he sent to Major-Gen. Brown at Abingdon, who dispatched thither about five or six hundred; whilst, in the meantime, Cromwell sent in his summons:

"Sir,—I summon you to deliver into my hands the house wherein you are, and your ammunition, with all things else there, together with your persons, to be disposed of as the Parliament shall appoint; which, if you refuse to do, you are to expect the utmost severity of war. I rest your servant.

"April 29, 1645.

"O. C.

"To the Governor of the garrison of Farringdon."

"To which answer was returned, 'that the King had intrusted them to keep that garrison and, without special order from his Majesty himself, they would not deliver it.'

"Cromwell then drew unto the town of Farringdon, and sent this second summons:—

"Sir,—I understand by forty or fifty poor men, whom you forced into your house, that you had many there whom you cannot arm, and who are not serviceable to you. If these men should perish by your means, it were great inhumanity surely. Honor and honesty require this, that though ye be prodigal of your own lives, yet not to be so of theirs. If God give you into my hands, I will not spare a man of you, if you put me to a storm.

"O. C."

"But the Deputy-Governor returned his resolute answer,—

"Sir,—We have forced none into our garrison. We should have you to know, you are not now at Blechington. The guiltless blood that shall be spilt, God shall require at your hands, that have caused this unnatural war. We fear not your storming, nor will have any more parleys.

R. B."

About three o'clock the next morning, (the Abingdon foot being come up,) Cromwell with them and his Dragoons began the assault, but was repulsed with the loss of fourteen men killed, and Captain Canon (who reared the first scaling ladder, and ascended himself) taken prisoner, with an ensign and eight common soldiers, and divers wounded; after which, CROMWELL led off his force, and joined Fairfax.

The great-grandson of this stout cavalier,

L. JAMES-BLAND BURGESS, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, only son of George Burgess, Esq. Commissioner of Excise and Receiver-General of the salt duties in Scotland, by Anne, only dau. of James, 10th Lord Somerville, was created a Bart. 31 Oct., 1794, upon resigning the Office of LANSDOWNE.

LANSDOWNE, MARQUESS OF (Henry Petty-Fitzmaurice, D.C.L., F.R.S.), Earl of Wycombe, Viscount Calne and Calstone, and Baron Wycombe, of Chipping Wycombe, Co. Bucks, in the Peerage of Great Britain; Earl of Kerry, and Earl of Shelburne, Viscount Clanmaurice and Fitzmaurice, Baron of Kerry, Lixnaw, and Dunkerron, in the Peerage of Ireland; b. 2 July, 1780; m. 30 March, 1808, Louisa-Emma, fifth dau. of Henry-Thomas, 2nd Earl of Ilchester, by whom he has issue,

II. Henry, b. 3 Jan., 1816.

III. Louisa.

His Lordship s. to the English honors, and the Irish Earldom of Shelburne, with the Viscounty of Fitzmaurice, and the Barony of Dunkerron, upon the demise of his half-brother, 15 Nov., 1809; and to the Earldom of Kerry, &c., at the decease of his cousin, Francis-Thomas, 3rd Earl of Kerry, 4 July, 1818. The Marquess of Lansdowne has recently filled the office of Chief-Secretary of State for the Home Department, and is now Lord-President of the Council.

Lineage.

The Earls of Kerry trace their origin to a common ancestor in the direct line with the eminent houses of Fitzgerald, Windsor, Carew, McKensie, &c., namely, Walter Fitz-Otho, Castellan of Windsor, in the eleventh century; whose eldest son,

GERALD FITZ-WALTER, obtained a grant from HENRY I. of Molesford, Co. Berks. This Gerald m. Nesta, dau. of Rees Gruffydh, Prince of South Wales, and had issue, MAURICE FITZGERALD, ancestor of the Ducal house of Leinster.

WILLIAM, of whom presently.

David, consecrated, in 1147, Bishop of St. David's, and d. in 1176.

The second son,

WILLIAM, called by Geraldus Cambrensis the eldest son; but the pedigree of the family of Leinster setting forth the contrary, and his being possessed of the castle of Karriu, Co. Carmarthen, in South Wales, his mother's inheritance, and assuming that surname, bespeak him a younger son

* The present Marquess of Lansdowne entitles his heir apparent EARL OF KERRY, but certainly without authority. The Earldom of Kerry is a distinct Irish Peerage, enjoyed by his Lordship, one of the privileges of which he himself exercises at every election of an Irish Representative Peer, and is summoned as Earl of Kerry: it does not therefore merge in the Marquisate of Lansdowne. The courtesy title of the Marquess of Lansdowne's eldest son is, correctly, EARL OF WYCOMBE—of the Earl of Kerry's, Viscount Clanmaurice.

which is confirmed by the unerring testimony of the addition of chief, ermine, to his coat armour (a certain sign of cadency, to distinguish him and his posterity from the elder branch of the family). This William was sent, in 1171, by Earl Strongbow, into Ireland, with his son Raymond, where, for a time, he assisted in the reduction of that kingdom; but returning to his native country, died there, in the year 1173, leaving issue, by Catharine, dau. of Sir Adam de Kingsley, of Cheshire, seven sons and a dau. The eldest son,

REYMOND, surnamed from his corpulency Le Grosse, having, as stated above, accompanied his father into Ireland, was a principal in the reduction of that kingdom. He m. Baselia, sister of Earl Strongbow, and had, as a marriage portion with her, a large territorial grant, and the Constablership of Leinster. After this we find him aiding Mac Carthy, King of Cork, against his rebellious son, Cormac O'Lehanagh, and acquiring for his services a large tract of land in the Co. of Kerry, where he settled his eldest son,

MAURICE FITZ REYMOND, who m. for his 1st wife, Johanna, dau. of Miles Fitz-Henry, founder of Conall Abbey, Co. Kildare, and Chief Governor of Ireland, by whom he had a son,

THOMAS, who assumed the surname of Fitzmaurice, and became Lord of Kerry and Lixnaw. This Thomas founded the Grey Franciscan Friary of Ardfert, in 1253. He m. Grace, dau. of Mac Murrough Cavenagh, son of Dermoid, King of Leinster, and dying in 1280, was s. by his eldest son,

MAURICE, 2nd Lord Kerry, who sat in the Parliament held at Dublin in 1296, and attended a writ of summons of EDWARD I.'s, in 1297, with horse and arms, in an expedition against Scotland. He m. Mary, dau. and heir of Sir John McCleod, of Galway, and dying in 1303, was s. by his son,

NICHOLAS, 3rd Lord of Kerry, whose son,

MAURICE, 4th Lord of Kerry, having a dispute with Dermoid Oge Mac Carthy, killed him upon the Bench before the Judge of Assize at Tralee, in 1325, for which he was tried and attainted by the Parliament of Dublin, but was not put to death. His lands were, however, forfeited, but restored, after his decease, to his brother and successor,

JOHN, 5th Lord, from whose time we are obliged, by our limits, to pass over nearly four centuries, and to come to

THOMAS, 21st Lord of Kerry, who was created 17 Jan., 1722, Viscount Clanmaurice and EARL OF KERRY. His Lordship m. in 1692, Anne, only dau. of Sir William Petty, Physician-General to the Army in Ireland, in 1632, so celebrated for his extraordinary talents and surprising fortune. In Dec., 1664, Sir William undertook the survey of Ireland; and, in March, 1696, he had completed the measurement of two millions and eight thousand acres of forfeited lands, for which, by contract, he was to receive one penny per acre, and did actually acquire an estate of £6000 a year. This eminent and distinguished person died of a gangrene in his foot, 16 Dec., 1687. The Earl of Kerry had issue, five sons and three daus., of whom the eldest son,

WILLIAM, succeeded at his decease, 16 March, 1741, as 2nd EARL OF KERRY. His Lordship, who was a Colonel in the Coldstream Foot-Guards, left at his decease in 1747, by his 2nd wife, Gertrude, only dau. of Richard, 4th Earl of Cavan,

Anna-Maria, m. to Maurice Fitzgerald, Knt. of Kerry,

And an only son, his successor.

FRANCIS-THOMAS, 3rd Earl of Kerry, who m. Anastasia, dau. and co heir of Peter Duly, Esq. of Quansbury, Co. Galway, but dying s. p. 4 July, 1818, his Lordship's honors devolved upon his cousin, Henry, present Marquess of Lansdowne.

Thomas, 1st Earl of Kerry's 2nd son,

THE HON JOHN FITZMAURICE, having inherited the Petty estates, upon the demise of his maternal uncle, Henry

LAU

Petty, Earl of Shelburne, in April, 1751 (when that Earldom expired), assumed the surname and arms of Petty, and was advanced to the Peerage of Ireland, 7 Oct., 1751, by the titles of Baron Dunkerron and Viscount Fitzmaurice. His Lordship was further promoted, 26 June, 1753, to the Earldom of Shelburne. He m. in 1734, his first-cousin, Mary, dau. of the Hon. William Fitzmaurice, of Gallane, Co. In 1782, his Lordship, after the decease of the Marquess of Rockingham (under whom he filled the office of Secretary for Foreign Affairs), was nominated Prime Minister, and, 30 Nov., 1784, advanced to the dignities of Earl of Wycombe, Co. Sir Thomas, who is the lineal male representative of the family of Lauder, of Lauder-Tower, and Bass, and, through a female, of Dick, of Braid, and Grange, s. to the title, as 7th Bart., upon the decease of his father, in 1820.

Lineage.

The surname of Lauder, anciently De Lavedre, is of Norman origin, and the Scottish historians mention the first De Lavedre as one of those Anglo-Norman Barons who accompanied Malcolm Canmore into Scotland, 1056, to assist that Prince in recovering his kingdom from the usurper, Macbeth: for which important service De Lavedre obtained grants of land from the King, in Berwickshire, to which he gave his own name, as other Knights, similarly recompensed, had done, in obedience, according to Boethius, of a direct Royal Command. The next of the family, of whom there is any particular notice, is

ROBERTUS DE LAUDRE, who seems to have been the 5th Baron, and was a Soldier of the Cross, in the 5th Crusade, in 1188; after him, the earliest we find is

SIR ROBERT DE LAUDRE, the brave associate of Sir William Wallace, (probably the 8th Baron.) This gallant soldier d. 1311, and his monument existed in the time of Nisbet, who gives its inscription at length. The present Baronet has in his possession an original charter from William de Lambirton, Bishop of St. Andrews, to another Robert de Lavedre, of that fragment of the island of Bass, over which the abbey of St. Andrews had, until then, retained a right, the family having enjoyed the larger part of it for generations before. It is dated 4 June, 1316, as is the charter of confirmation, by John de Forfar, prior of St. Andrews, also in the family charter crest. This Robert, was Ambassador to England, from ROBERT I., upon various occasions. In 1323, he was one of the Proxies in the Oath of Peace, with EDWARD: on which occasion he swore, "on the soul of the Bruce," for the due maintenance of it by the Scottish King. His son,

SIR ROBERT DE LAVEDRE, fought at Halidon, in 1333, in the 3rd Division of the Army under Archibald Douglas, Lord of Galloway, nick-named Tyneman, Regent of Scotland. Immediately after the defeat, Sir Robert, who was "Justiciary by North the Forth," hastened to occupy the Castle of Urquhar, on Lochness, one of the only four strong holds which defied the power of Edward. This gallant Knt. was generally denominated a Quarrelwood. His son,

SIR ALLEN DE LAVEDRE, m. Alicia Campbell, dau. of Sir Robert Campbell, of Lochawe, the 9th of the Argyll family, by whom he had

ROBERT, his successor.

William, Bishop of Glasgow, and Chancellor of Scotland in 1423, who built the steeple of Glasgow.

Alexander, Bishop of Dunkeld in 1440.

Sir Allen was killed with THE DOUGLAS, in Spain, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR ROBERT LAUDER, who was deputed, with his brother the Chancellor, to the Court of England, to treat about the liberation of King JAMES I. of Scotland. Sir Robert was s. by his son,

SIR EDWARD LAUDER, who, in 1425, was sent Ambassador to France, to negotiate the treaty of marriage between LOUIS XI. and Margaret, dau. of JAMES I., and the contract was signed by him in 1436. From this Sir Edward lineally descended

I. JOHN LAUDER, Esq. of Newington, Edrington, and Fountainhall, who was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, in 1688, and who, by the death of his third cousin, Robert Lauder, of Lauder, became the representative of that branch of the family. Sir John m. Isabel Ellis, of Morton Hall, and was s. by his eldest son,

Lineage.

This very ancient and distinguished family of North Britain has been seated at Thirlestane, in Berwickshire, for nearly six centuries. Its earliest ancestor was Sir Richard de Maitland, (as the name was formerly written), who gave divers lands to the Abbey of Dryburgh, in the reign of ALEXANDER III.

SIR RICHARD MAITLAND, 12th feudal Lord of Thirlestane, was a person of considerable importance in the era in which he lived. In 1552 and 1560, we find him one of the Commissioners appointed to adjust the differences with England about the debateable lands on the borders. In 1564, he was constituted one of the extraordinary Lords of Session. In 1561, appointed one of the ordinary Lords, and in the following year Keeper of the Privy-Seal, which latter Office he resigned in 1567, in favor of his 2nd son. His Lordship retired from the Bench in 1584; on which occasion JAMES VI. acknowledged, by letter, Sir Richard's faithful services, "to his grandaie, goodsire, gooddame, mother, and himself;" by which it would seem that this eminent person was employed seventy years at least in the public service. In the literary world he was known by his history of the family of Seton, and poems on several subjects. He m. Mary, dau. of Sir Thomas Cranston, and had,

WILLIAM, of Leigthington, Secretary of State for Scotland, and one of the principal actors in the turbulent times of the unhappy MARY. Secretary Maitland was deputed, in 1565, to announce to ELIZABETH the marriage of MARY with Darnley; and he was the person said subsequently to have projected the alliance of his unfortunate mistress with the Duke of Norfolk. In 1571, he was deprived of the Secretaryship, proclaimed a traitor, and attainted in the Parliament held in the Canongate; and being in the castle of Edinburgh when it surrendered in 1573, he terminated his life, according to the old Roman fashion, says Melvil, by a voluntary death, 9 June, 1573, to avoid the ignominy of public execution, the fate of his friend, Kirkaldy, the Governor. Secretary Maitland left an only son, JAMES, who, being a Roman Catholic, withdrew to the continent, and sold his estate of Leigthington to his uncle,

SIR JOHN MAITLAND, Knt. (second son of Sir Richard), who, having filled the high offices of Lord-Privy-Seal, Judge of the Court of Session, Secretary of State, and LORD-CHANCELLOR OF SCOTLAND, was elevated to the Peerage, 18 May, 1800, by the title of Lord Maitland, of Thirlestane. His Lordship m. Jane, only dau. and heir of James, 4th Lord Fleming, and grandaun., maternally, of James Hamilton, Duke of Chatelherault; and, dying in 1805, was s. by his only son,

His Lordship was President of the Council, and one of the ordinary Lords of Session. He m. Isabel, dau. of Alexander, Earl of Dumferline, by whom he had issue, two sons and a dau. Surrey. His Grace m. 1st, Anne, 2nd dau. of Alexander, 1st Earl of Home, co heir, with her sister, Margaret, Countess of Moray, of her brother, James, 2nd Earl of Home, by whom he had an only child, ANNE, m. in 1666, to John, 2nd Marquess of Tweeddale. The Duke espoused, 2ndly, 17 Feb., 1671-2, Eliza, Countess of Dysart, relict of Sir Lionel Talmash, Bart., but had no other issue. LE DESPENCER.

LE DESPENCER, BARONESS (Mary - Frances - Elizabeth Stapleton), in the Peerage of England; b. 24 March, 1822; s. to the title upon the demise of her grandfather, 3 Oct., 1831.

Lineage.

This is one of the old Baronies created by writ of summons, which, being heritable through the female as well as the male line, pass at different periods into different families.

HUGH DE SPENCER, son of Thomas de Spencer, (who was the sixth in descent from Robert Despencer, or Stewart, to WILLIAM the CONQUEROR, and one of his Barons), was summoned to Parliament 14 Dec., 1264, when he was constituted, by patent, Justiciary of England. This personage, one of the most powerful Barons of his time, taking up arms with other nobles, in defence of their ancient privileges, was elected by them, in 1258, one of the twelve, who, with twelve other Barons, chosen by the King, were to amend and reform all the political abuses complained of. Hugh de Spencer distinguished himself subsequently in the field against the Crown, but, disgusted with the haughty deportment of Simon Mountfort, Earl of Leicester, he forsook the Baronial Banner, and obtained immediately the highest favor of the Court, being, as stated above, elevated to the Peerage, and appointed Justiciary, an office which then comprehended the jurisdiction of all the present Law-Courts. Again, however, espousing the cause of the Barons, he fell at the battle of Evesham, 5 Aug., 1265, and was s. by his son (by Olivia, dau. and heir of Philip, Lord Basset, of Wycombe, Co. Bucks).

HUGH, known in history as Hugh Despencer, senior, 2nd Baron, who was summoned to Parliament, 23 June, 1295, and appointed Governor of Marlborough Castle, 2nd EDWARD II. He was further promoted to the dignity of Earl of Winchester, 10 May, 1322. This nobleman was banished the realm through the influence of the Barons in 1320; but returning the ensuing year, and adhering staunchly to the cause of his oppressed sovereign, was beheaded after the landing of QUEEN ISABEL and the Prince of Wales, in Oct., 1326, without the formality of trial. His Lordship m. Isabel, dau. of William de Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, and widow of Sir Patrick Chaworth, by whom he had, with five daus., an only son,

SIR HUGH DE SPENCER, (known as Hugh De-Spencer, junior), who having m. Eleanor, dau. and co-heir of Gilbert, Earl of Gloucester, and niece of EDWARD II., was summoned to Parliament as a BARON, from 1314, to 1325, and was commonly called EARL OF GLOUCESTER. In the 13th EDWARD II., he was nominated Lord-Chamberlain. His Lordship was soon after, however, obliged with his father to leave the kingdom; but being recalled with him, was constituted Governor of the castle and demesne lands of Gloucester, and Warden of the forest of Dean. He was eventually, however, beheaded at Hereford, in Nov., 1326, and having been declared a traitor by Parliament, his honors became forfeited. This eminent nobleman left issue,

- i. HUGH.
- ii. Edward, m. Anne, dau. of Henry, Lord Ferrers, of Groby, and, dying in 1342, left,

1 EDWARD, of whom presently, as heir to his uncle.
2 Thomas.

The eldest son,

HUGH, commonly called Lord Glamorgan, having entered into the Military service of EDWARD III., and distinguished himself in France and Scotland, was summoned to Parliament, from 1338 to 1349, when he d. without issue; and his nephew and heir,

SIR EDMUND DE SPENCER, being summoned, from 1357 to 1372, was installed a Knight of the Most Noble Order of the Garter. His Lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Sir Bartholomew Burghersh, Knt., and, dying in 1375, was s. by his son,

THOMAS, commonly called Despenser of Glamorgan, who was summoned, in 1396, and created Earl of Gloucester in 1397; but being beheaded and declared a traitor in 1400, for conspiring to restore RICHARD II., his honors were extinguished. This nobleman left a son and heir, who died during minority: when his Lordship's sister,

ISABEL DE SPENCER, became his heir, and m. Richard Beauchamp, Earl of Worcester, and Baron Abergavenny, by whom she had an only daughter,

ELIZABETH BEAUCHAMP, who m. Edward Neville, 4th son of Ralph, Earl of Westmorland, (an Earldom forfeited in 1570;) and the attainder of her grandfather, Thomas, 7th Baron de Spencer, having been reversed, her Ladyship carried the Baronies of Bergavenny, Burghersh, and De Spencer, into the family of her husband, where they remained until 1589, when

HENRY, the 4th Baron Abergavenny, d. without male issue. His Lordship's only daughter,

THE HON. MARY NEVILL, m. in 1574, Sir Thomas Fane, Knt., by whom she had issue four sons and two daughters. Lady Fane, after the demise of Sir Thomas, 25 May, 1604, was restored, by letters patent, to the dignity of Baroness Le De Spencer, in remainder to the heirs of her body, with the ancient seat, place, and precedence of her ancestors (her Ladyship, was likewise entitled to the Barony of Burghersh, but that has never been claimed; the Barony of Abergavenny was confirmed at the same time to the heir male). Lady Le De Spencer d. 28 June, 1696, and was s. by her eldest son,

FRANCIS, who was created Baron Burghersh, and EARL OF WESTMORLAND, 29 Dec., 1624, and the Barony of De Spencer merged in the Earldom, until the demise of

JOHN, the 7th Earl, in 1769 (who succeeded his two brothers), without issue, when it fell into abeyance, between the heirs of his Lordship's sisters, Mary, wife of Sir Francis Dashwood, Bart., and Catherine, lady of William Paul, Esq.; but the Crown terminated the abeyance, in 1763, in favor of

SIR FRANCIS DASHWOOD, Bart., son and heir of the above-named Sir Francis. This nobleman dying, however, in 1781, without issue, the Barony again fell into abeyance, between his sister Rachel, relict of Sir Robert Austen, Bart., and the heir of his aunt Lady Catherine, Paul; namely, the descendant of

CATHERINE PAUL, (only dau. of Lady Catherine), who m. William Stapleton, Esq., (created a Baronet, 28 June, 1787), and left (with a daughter) an only son,

SIR THOMAS STAPLETON, 2nd Bart. of Rotherfield Greys, Co. Oxford. This gentleman m. in 1765, Mary, dau. of Henry Fane, Esq. of Wormsley, Co. Oxford, by whom he had issue,

This noble family, like many others in the Peerage, traces its origin to the City of London, where it first became of importance through

SIR EDWARD OSBORNE, Knt., who filled the Office of Lord-Mayor in the year 1582. This gentleman discovering an early bias to commercial pursuits, was put apprentice to Sir William Hewet, of the Cloth-workers' Company, one of the most considerable merchants in London, and, while serving his apprenticeship, Sir William's only child, Anna, having accidentally fallen from the window of Sir William's house on London Bridge into the Thames, Mr. Osborne leaped into the river, and brought her out in safety, when but little hope remained of her rescue. This lady was afterwards his wife, and by her had issue,

Buckingham, in the Peerage of Great Britain; Custos-Rotulorum and Governor of the Co. Kildare; b. 21 Aug., 1791; s. to the honors, as 3rd Duke, on the demise of his father, 20 Oct., 1804; m. 16 June, 1818, Charlotte-Augusta, youngest dau. of Charles, 3rd Earl of Harrington, by whom he has issue,

- ii. Gerald, b. 6 Jan., 1821.
- iii. Otho-Augustus, b. 10 Oct., 1827.
- iv. Jane-Seymour, b. 5 Feb., 1824.

His Grace is the sole Duke, and the Premier Marquess, and Earl, of Ireland.

Lineage.

This illustrious family is descended from a common ancestor with the house of Fitzmaurice, Earls of Kerry, (an Earldom now merged in the Marquisate of Lansdown,) and that of Windsor, Earls of Plymouth, namely,

MAURICE FITZGERALD, through whose exertions the possession of Ireland was chiefly accomplished by HENRY II. This Maurice was son of Gerald Fitz-Otho, (son of Walter Fitz-Otho, Castellan of Windsor, in the reign of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR; which Walter was son of Otho, a Baron of England, in the 16th year of EDWARD THE CONFESSOR,) by Nesta, dau. of Rhese, Prince of South Wales. The said Maurice obtained for his services a grant of extensive territories in the Province of Leinster, and was constituted, in 1172, one of the Governors of Ireland; in which year he slew O'Rourke, Prince of Meath, then in rebellion against the English government. This feudal Chief d. full of honor 1 Sept., 1177, and was s. by his eldest son,

GERALD, who was with his father in the memorable sally out of Dublin, anno 1173, when that city was besieged by O'Connor, King of Connaught, with an army of 36,000 men, over whom the Fitzgeralds obtained a complete victory. This Gerald dying at Sligo, was s. by his son, (by Latharne, dau. of Hamo de Valois, Lord Justice of Ireland, in 1197.)

MAURICE FITZGERALD, Lord of Offaley, who was put into possession by a mandatory letter of HENRY III., dated 26 Nov., 1216, of Maynooth, and all other lands of which his father died seized in Ireland, and was put also into possession of the Castle of CARM, Co. Limerick. This nobleman is said to have been the first who brought the Orders of Friars-Minors and Preachers into Ireland. In 1229, the King, appreciating the good services of the family since its settlement in Ireland, constituted his Lordship Lord Justice of the kingdom. In 1236, Lord Offaley built the Castle of Armagh; and, in 1242, he erected a similar edifice at Athlone. His Lordship d. 20 May, 1257, in the habit of St. Francis, leaving the reputation of having been a "valiant knight, a very pleasant man, inferior to none in the kingdom, having lived all his life with commendation." He was s. by his son,

MAURICE-FITZMAURICE, then in minority; and Prince EDWARD having obtained the dominion of Ireland from his father, King HENRY, claimed his wardship as a part of the prerogative; but the BARONY OF OFFALEY being held by the minor and his deceased father, under Margaret, Countess of Lincoln, to whom belonged the Co. Kildare, as widow of the Earl of Pembroke, that Lady contested the right of wardship, and brought the case before the King himself for decision. This nobleman was afterwards Chief Governor of Ireland, and was s. at his decease by his son,

JOHN, Lord of Offaley, designated of Callan, who m. 1st, Margery, dau. of Sir Thomas Anthony, with whom he acquired the lands of Decies and Desmond, and had an only son, MAURICE; he m. 2ndly, Honora, dau. of Hugh O'Connor, (the first Irish Lady chosen for a wife by any member of the family), and had four sons,

Gilbert, from whom descended the White Knight.

John, ancestor of the Knights of the Glyn and the Valley.

Maurice, first KNIGHT of KERRY, or the Black Knight. Thomas.

This John being killed with his eldest son Maurice, at Callan, by Maccarthy More, against whom the Fitzgeralds had raised a great army, in 1261, was s. by his grandson,

THOMAS, nicknamed Nappagh Simiacus, or the APR, a surname thus acquired—being only nine months old when his father and grandfather fell at Callan, his attendants rushing out at the first astonishment excited by the intelligence, left the child alone in its cradle, when a baboon, kept in the family, took him up, and carried him to the top of the steeple of the Abbey of Tralee; whence, after conveying him round the battlements, and exhibiting him to the appalled spectators, he brought him down safely, and laid him in his cradle. From this tradition the supporters of the house of Leinster are said to have been adopted. This Thomas, who is called 6th feudal Lord Offaley, was constituted Lord-Justice of Ireland, and Captain of all Desmond, in 1296; and being of so much power, was generally styled Prince and Ruler of Munster. He m. Margaret, dau. of John, Lord Barry, of Olothan, and, dying in 1298, left two sons,

JOHN, his successor.

Maurice, created EARL OF DESMOND* 21 Aug., 1329, whose descendants ranked amongst the most powerful nobles of Ireland for more than two centuries, until Gerald, 16th Earl, entering into rebellion, waged war for nearly ten years against the whole power of the English Government, and eventually lost his life in attempting to seize upon a prey of cattle; when his head was transmitted by the Earl of Ormonde to QUEEN ELIZABETH, who caused it to be fixed upon London Bridge. An attainder of course followed, (25 Sept., 1582), by which his prodigious estates, comprising 574,628 acres, became forfeited. The son of this unfortunate nobleman,

James, having been educated at the Court of ELIZABETH, embraced the Protestant faith; and her Majesty, hoping, by his influence, to bring back the followers of his deceased father to their allegiance, recognized him as EARL OF DESMOND, and dispatched him to Ireland; but so soon as it was known that he had attended divine service at the Church of Killmallock, the crowds who collected to see and follow him immediately withdrew; he was obliged therefore to return to London, where he died in 1601. The last male heir of the House of Gerald, who assumed the title of Earl of Desmond, was an Officer in the King of Spain's and the Emperor's armies, who died in Germany in 1632.

* In the very able work upon "Feudal Dignities," by the late William Lynch, Esq., it is denied that the Desmond family was at all connected with that of Leinster subsequently to the year 1199, and Mr. Lynch supports his statement by the strongest documentary evidence.

THOMAS, Lord of Offaley, was s. by his elder son,

JOHN-FITZMAURICK, Lord of Offaley. This nobleman, being at variance with William Vesey, Lord of Kildare, and Lord-Chief-Justice of Ireland, in 1291, and having various charges to prefer against him, came over to England, and confronted, and challenged the said Vesey, Lord of Kildare, before the King. Lord Kildare first took up the glove, but subsequently withdrawing to France, his Majesty, EDWARD I., pronounced against his Lordship, and conferred upon Lord Offaley Vesey's manors and Lordship of Kildare, Rathangan, &c. Lord Offaley returned triumphantly to Ireland, and having continued to promote the English interest there, was created by EDWARD II., 14 May, 1316, Earl of Kildare. His Lordship d. 10 Sept., in the same year. From this nobleman the family honors descended, without any thing remarkable occurring, to

GERALD, Earl of Kildare, who died, leaving a dau. and heir, Elizabeth, who, marrying James le Boteler, Earl of Ormond, the King's Sheriff, in the year 1434, was ordered, on payment of the usual fine to the Exchequer, to give full Livery of the Earl of Kildare's estates to this latter nobleman and his wife; and, on the same Roll in that year we find that the Earl of Ormond and his wife paid the accustomed "Relief" due to the Crown out of the estates of the said Earl Gerald. But no claim was ever made by the Earls of Ormond to the Parliamentary Barony of the Kildare family in right of their marriage with the heir; for we find it with the Earldom-inherited by THOMAS, the 7th Earl, who succeeded his father, John, the 6th Earl, in 1427. This nobleman was appointed, in 1454 and 1455, Lord-Deputy of Ireland; in the latter of which years he held a great Council or Parliament, in Dublin, and, subsequently, one at Naas, wherein, amongst other proceedings, it was resolved, "That as no mean could be found to keep the King's coin within the Kingdom of Ireland, that all Frenchmen, Spaniards, Britons, Portingales, and other sundry nations, should pay for every pound of silver they carried out of the land, forty-pence of custom to the King's Customer, for the use of the King." His Lordship was continued in the government of Ireland until 1459, when Richard, Duke of York, was constituted Lord-Lieut.; but, the following year, Lord Kildare was appointed Deputy to the Duke of York. In 1468, he was appointed Lord Chancellor of Ireland, by Act of Parliament, with the fee of forty pounds per annum, and ten shillings per day. This tide of prosperity continued to flow until 1467, when, being involved with the Earl of Desmond, he was attainted with that nobleman (who suffered death), but subsequently pardoned, set at liberty, and restored in blood, by act of Parliament. His Lordship was afterwards Lord Justice, and, in 1471, Deputy to George, Duke of Clarence. He d. 25 March, 1477, and was s. by his eldest son (by Johan, dau. of James, 7th Earl Desmond),

GERALD, 8th Earl, who was constituted, on his accession to the Peerage, Lord-Deputy to Richard, Duke of York, and held a Parliament at Naas, on Friday, after the feast of St. Petronelle the Virgin. In 1480, he was re-appointed Lord-Deputy; and again, upon the accession of HENRY VII., Deputy to Jasper, Duke of Bedford, the Lord-Lieutenant. Upon the arrival, however, of Lambert Simnel, and his tutor, Richard Simon, an Oxford Priest, in Ireland, the Lord-Deputy, the Chancellor (Thomas Fitzgerald, the Deputy's brother), Treasurer, and other nobles, in the York interest, immediately acknowledged the impostor, and had him proclaimed in Dublin, by the style of Edward VI.; and the Lord-Deputy assisted, with the others, at his coronation, in Christ's Church, 2 May, 1487, where the ceremony was performed with great solemnity, the Chancellor, the Archbishop of Dublin, the Earl of Lincoln, Lord Lovel, Jenico Marka, Mayor of Dublin, and several other persons of rank attending. The crown was borrowed from the image of the Virgin Mary; John Pain, Bishop of Meath, preached the coronation sermon; and the Pretender was subsequently conveyed upon the shoulders of Darcy of Platen, a person of extraordinary height, to the Castle of Dublin, amidst the shouts of the populace. In the engagement which afterwards decided the fate of Simnel, near Stoke, the Chancellor, Fitzgerald, fell; but the Lord Deputy had the good fortune to make his peace with the King. His Lordship was nominated Lord-Lieut. of Ireland in 1496, and d. in 1513, when he was s. by his son,

GERALD, 9th Earl, who, with his five uncles, having revolted, was imprisoned in the Tower, where he died, 12 Dec., 1534, and an act was passed in the Parliament of Ireland, attainting him of high treason, and forfeiting the family honors and estates. His eldest son,

THOMAS, 10th Earl, shared in the misfortunes of his father, and, leaving no issue, was s. by his brother,

GERALD, 11th Earl, of whom a most remarkable account is given, by a contemporary historian, Stanghurst. It appears, that at the age of ten, he was preserved from the power of HENRY VIII. by the precaution of his female relatives, and his tutor, Thomas Laurence, his father's foster-brother. He wandered from Court to Court upon the continent, until Cardinal POLA, who was related to his Lordship's mother, sent for him into Italy and completed his education. He m. Mabel, dau. of Sir Anthony Brown, and, through the medium of that connexion, obtained the favor of EDWARD VI., who conferred upon him, in 1552, the Lordship of Maynoth, and other of his father's estates. In the ensuing reign he was fully restored by letters patent to the EARLDOM OF KILDARE and Barony of Offaley, with the precedence of his ancestors. It is a remarkable circumstance, that, though attainted by act of Parliament, this Gerald, under such grants from the Crown, but without any new statute, was summoned to, and actually sat as a Peer in, the Parliament of 1570, and it was not until the 11th of Queen Elizabeth, that the attainder was removed by Parliament. His Lordship's eldest son, GERALD, Lord Offaley, dying in the lifetime of the Earl, left an only daughter, Lettice, who m. Sir Robert Digby, and for a long time claimed the BARONY OF OFFALEY, as heir of her father, but which claim, after being referred by JAMES I. to the Judges of England, was decided by his Majesty himself, who confirmed the Barony of Offaley to the Earls of Kildare, and their heirs male; and created Lady Digby BARONESS OF OFFALEY for life;* where-

* Nothing can better shew the extreme difficulty of writing, even now, on the subject of Irish Peerage descents, with any degree of documentary certainty, than the following piece of evidence brought forward during the progress of the above family contest. It is part of a Chancery pleading wherein it is alleged, and was not denied or disproved, that no less than four sets of daus. or co-heirs had occurred in the family of Kildare, previous to that time, and that none of them had inherited the title or dignity of the Parliamentary Barony belonging to the Earls of Kildare, which, it seems, always devolved on the next heir male: "That the said Title or name of dignity of Offaley is not due, or ought not to be due, to the said Lady Lettice, although the same had been fee simple in the ancient Earls of Kildare, yet indeed it was not, for that there had been several women-heirs-general of that family which ought to have had that title had it been in fee simple, I. namely Annabell and Julian, daus. and heirs to Maurice Fitzgerald, and Julian, dau. to Gerald Fitzgerald, and Elizabeth, dau. and heir to Gerald Fitzgerald ancestor to Gerald, grandfather to the Lady Lettice, which upon that ancient title devolved on the deceased Lord's second son and successor,

HENRY, 12th Earl of Kildare. This nobleman m. Lady Frances Howard, dau. of Charles, Earl of Nottingham, and had surviving issue,

His Lordship dying thus without male issue, was s. by his brother,

WILLIAM, 13th Earl, who d. unm., when the honors devolved upon (the son of Edward Fitzgerald, brother of the 11th Earl, by his wife, Mabel, dau. and heir of Sir John Leigh, and widow of Sir John Paston, of Norfolk), his kinsman,

GERALD, 14th Earl, whose grandson,

GEORGE, 16th Earl, was the first of the family brought up in the reformed religion, being so educated by his guardian, the Duke of Lennox. His Lordship m. Lady Jane Boyle, dau. of the 1st Earl of Cork, and had, with other issue,

WENTWORTH, his successor.

Robert. This gentleman having taken an active part in effecting the Restoration, was appointed by CHARLES II. Comptroller of the Musters and Cheques of the Army, in 1661, with the fee of 20s. a-day, and was sworn at the same time of the Privy-Council. He was subsequently appointed Governor and Custos-Rotulorum of the Co. of Kildare, in which shire he resided, at Grangemellan. Upon the accession of King JAMES, however, he was stripped of all his employments and estate, to the value of £3,300 per annum, and imprisoned in Newgate for twenty-one weeks, but afterwards, in consequence of the state of his health, removed to his own house, where he remained guarded for five months. On the landing of WILLIAM in Ireland, Capt. Fitzgerald was placed in close durance within the College of Dublin, and so restrained until the defeat of JAMES at the Boyne, when he broke from his prison, and by his courage and prudence preserved Dublin from being sacked. When WILLIAM entered the metropolis, Capt. Fitzgerald had the honor of presenting to his Majesty the keys of the city. He was afterwards sworn of the Privy-Council. He m. Mary, dau. and heir of James Clotworthy, Esq. of Monnimore, Co. Londonderry, and had, with several daughters, Elizabeth, was married to the Earl of Ormond; and lastly, Katherine, sister and heir of Thomas, late Earl of Kildare, who have heirs yet living." Now, scarcely any of these co.-heirs are mentioned by Mr. John Lodge, whose "Peerage of Ireland," from his official situation, as Keeper of the records there, obtained a reputation for authenticity which it now clearly appears his researches or desire for accuracy by no means justified. From him most latter accounts of British dignities have been taken, and hence error has decidedly been propagated; to what an important extent, may be guessed from the fact that the right to Peerages will not unfrequently depend on the suppression or establishing of such occurrences of co.-heirs.

JAMES, 20th Earl, who was created a Peer of Great Britain, by the title of Viscount Leinster, of Taplow, 21 Feb., 1746-7; on the 3rd March, 1761, his Lordship was advanced to the Marquessate of Kildare, in Ireland; and created, 26 Nov., 1766, DUKE OF LEINSTER. The Earl, after the forfeiture of his eldest son, appears to have been invested by the Crown, by some act or deed, which cannot now be traced, with the power of disposing of the honors of the family to whichever of his sons he pleased. He conferred them therefore upon the above ANDREW, and he gave the lands of Findrassie to his son, Robert, who became in consequence,

- ii. A son, b. 14 Oct., 1833.

- iii. Elizabeth-Jane.

- iv. Anne-Maria.

- v. Susan.

The Earl is one of the Representative Lords.

Lineage.

This noble house is chief of the very ancient Scottish family of MELVILLE, which, it is said, derive their descent from a person of Anglo-Norman lineage, called MALB, who settled under DAVID I., upon some lands in the Co. Edinburgh, which he called MALB-VILLE, and thence his descendants assumed that designation as a surname.

GALFRID DE MALEVILLE, the first of the family, lived in the reigns of DAVID I., MALCOLM IV., and WILLIAM the Lion. He was Vicecomes de Castella Puellarum, for MALCOLM IV., and had the honor of being the first Justiciary of Scotland on record. This eminent person left three sons, viz.,

Gregory, whose line terminated in an heir female.

AGNES-MELVILLE, who m. Sir John Ross, of Halk-head, temp. ROBERT II., and conveyed to him the lands of MELVILLE.

PHILIP, ancestor of the MELVILLES of Glenbervie. This branch ended in the male line in 1468, when ALEXANDER MELVILLE, OF GLENBERRIE, left a dau. and sole heir, ELIZABETH, married to Sir John Auchinleck, of Auchinleck, and her grandaun., ELIZABETH AUCHINLECK, carried the Barony to her husband, Sir William Douglas, 2nd son of Archibald, 5th Earl of Angus.

Walter.

The third son,

WALTER DE MELVILLE, was grandfather of

SIR JOHN DE MELVILLE, one of the principal men of Scotland who agreed to the marriage of QUEEN MARGARET with Prince Edward of England, in 1290; and who swore fealty to EDWARD I., in 1296. From this distinguished personage we pass to his lineal descendant,

SIR JOHN MELVILLE, of Raith, who had charters jointly with his wife Helen Napier, of the King's lands of Murdocarny, in Fife, dated 23 May, 1536, and 23 Oct., 1542. He enjoyed the confidence of JAMES V., who appointed him Master-General of the Ordnance, and Capt.-General of the castle of Dunbar, having previously conferred upon him the honor of Knighthood. Sir John, in the minority of Queen MARY, was, however, convicted of treason, and executed towards the end of 1549. He had married Helen, eldest dau. of Sir Alexander Napier, of Marchistoun, and had issue,

JOHN, who was restored to his father's forfeited estates by the QUEEN REGENT of Scotland, about 1553, and then became of Raith. He was s. by his son,

JOHN, of Raith, who m. Margaret, dau. of Sir William Scot, of Balwearie, and was s. by his elder son,

JOHN, of Raith, who s. his cousin as third LORD MELVILLE.

ROBERT, of whom presently.

James, (Sir) of Hall-hill, in Fife, ambassador from MARY to ELIZABETH, and of the Privy-Council to JAMES VI. d. in 1617, leaving issue.

William, who was appointed a Lord of-Session in 1587, and sat on the Bench till 1614.

Andrew, (Sir) of Garvock, Master of the Household to Queen MARY and to JAMES VI.

David, of Newmill.

Janet, m. to Sir James Kilkaldy, of Grange, High-Treasurer of Scotland; by whom she was mother of Sir William and Sir James Kilkaldy, who were executed in 1573, for their fidelity to Queen MARY.

Margaret, m. to Sir James Johnstone, of Riphinstone.

The 2nd son,

SIR ROBERT MELVILLE, of Murdocarny, upon his return from France, where he held some official employments, was sworn of the Privy-Council of Scotland, and accredited Ambassador to England in 1562. In 1567, he had a charter of the hereditary office of Keeper of the Palace of Linlithgow, and was sent a second time Ambassador to England, in 1587, to endeavour to prevent the execution of MARY, Queen of Scots, which duty he discharged with so much boldness before the council, that Elizabeth menaced his life, and would have imprisoned him, but for the interest of his colleague, the Master of Gray, with her Majesty. In 1589, when Lord Thirlestane, the Chancellor, went to Denmark on the affair of the King's marriage, Sir Robert was appointed Vice-Chancellor and Treasurer-Depute; and, in 1594, he was constituted an Extraordinary Lord-of-Session, under the title of Lord Murdocarny: from which office he retired in favor of his son in 1601, and was elevated to the Peerage, 30 April, 1616, as Baron Melville, of Monymaill, with special remainder, in default of his own male issue, to the heirs male of his brother JOHN, &c. His Lordship d. in 1621, at the age of 94, and was s. by his only son,

ROBERT, 2nd Lord Melville, who had been constituted an Extraordinary Lord-of-Session, in 1691, under the designation of Lord Burntisland. This nobleman obtained a charter from CHARLES I., dated Bagshot, 10 Aug., 1627, of the Barony of Monymaill, and the dignity of Lord Monymaill, with reversion to his heirs general, bearing the surname and arms of MELVILLE. His Lordship d. s. p. 9 March, 1633, when he was s. by his cousin,

JOHN MELVILLE, of Raith, as 3rd Lord, (refer to JOHN, eldest son of Sir John Melville, of Raith, father of the 1st Lord.) This nobleman m. Anne, eldest dau. and co-heir of Sir George Erskine, of Innertiel, a Lord-of-Session, and, dying in 1643, was s. by his elder son,

GEORGE, 4th Lord Melville. This nobleman was involved in the rebellion of the Duke of Monmouth, but had the good fortune to effect his escape into Holland. His estates were consequently forfeited by act of attainder in 1685; but returning to England with King WILLIAM, his Lordship was fully reinstated in fortune and dignity upon the success of that Prince, with the additional honors (8 April, 1690), of Lord Raith, Monymaill and Balwearie, Viscount of Kirkcaldie, and EARL OF MELVILLE. Lord Melville m. in 1685, Lady Katherine Leslie, (who s. her niece as COUNTESS OF LEVEN), dau. of Lord Balgonie, and grandaun. of Gen. EARLDOM OF LEVEN.

ALEXANDER LESLIE, (son of Capt. George Leslie, of Balgonie, by Anne, dau. of Stewart, of Ballechin,) having adopted the profession of arms, served as Captain in Lord Vere's Regiment, in Holland, against the Spaniards, and there founded his reputation. Thence he entered the service of GUSTAVUS-ADOLPHUS, of Sweden, by whom he was promoted to the Rank of Lieutenant-General, and afterwards made Field-Marshal of the Swedish Army. In 1628, Leslie defended STRALSUND against the Imperialists under Count Walstein with so much gallantry, that he forced them to raise the siege; and he was rewarded by a considerable present from the citizens, who caused medals to be struck in his honor. He continued in the Swedish service after the death of GUSTAVUS, until invited back, in 1639, to Scotland by the COVENANTERS, to take the command of their army. His first exploit, after his return, was the capture of Edinburgh, at the head of a thousand musqueteers, by assault; and he afterwards commanded the Scottish army at Duncelaw in May, 1639, where his camp is said to have been a spectacle, "not less interesting to the military, than edifying to the devout." His banners were inscribed with the crown and covenant of Christ; his soldiers were summoned by the drum to sermon, and their tents resounded at sunrise and sunset with psalms and prayers. The clergy were instrumental in preserving discipline; and the ambition of the Nobles was restrained by the discretion of the general, an unlettered soldier of fortune, of an advanced age, a diminutive size, and distorted person, but prudent, vigilant, experienced, and enterprising. Leslie marched into England in Aug., 1640, and upon the 28th of that month, completely routed the Royal Army at Newburn, which gave him possession of Newcastle, Tynmouth, Shields, and Durham, with large magazines of provision and arms. The treaty of Ripon followed this victory, and peace was ratified by Parliament in 1641, when General LESLIE was elevated to the Peerage as Lord Balgonie, and created, 11 Oct., in the same year, EARL OF LEVEN. He was subsequently engaged upon the side of the Parliamentarians in the Civil War, and commanded the Scottish Forces, amounting to 22,000 men, at MARSTON MOOR. His Lordship m. 1st, Agnes, dau. of Renton, of Billy, in Berwickshire, by whom he had (with five daus.) two sons, viz.

- iii. — a son, b. 5 March, 1835.
- iv. Louisa-Mary.
- v. Anne-Frederica.
- vi. Harriet-Frances-Maria.

His Lordship s. his father in the Viscounty, 31 July, 1818, and obtained the Earldom by letters patent, dated 7 Sept., 1831. The Earl of Lichfield is Postmaster-General & a Privy-Councillor.

Lineage.

The family of Anson has resided in the Co. of Stafford for several generations; first, at Dunston; but since the time of JAMES I. at Shugborough, which manor was purchased in that reign by

WILLIAM ANSON, Esq., who had been an eminent lawyer in the previous reign; and of whom Sir William Dugdale, in his Antiquities of Warwickshire, gives this account:—"Sir Walter Aston, K.B., and Bart., sold the manors of Bolchall and Glascoate, Co. Warwick, unto William Anson, of Lincoln's Inn, Esq., of whom they were purchased by William Cumberland, of Tamworth, Esq., and Anne, his wife, in the 2nd of JAMES I." This William Anson m. Joan, dau. of Richard Mitchel, of Oldbury, in Warwickshire, and, dying at an advanced age, about the year 1644, was s. by his son,

WILLIAM ANSON, Esq. of Shuckborough, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Stafford, Esq. of Botham Hall, in Derbyshire, and was s. by his son,

WILLIAM ANSON, Esq. This gentleman m. Isabella, dau. and co-heir of Charles Carrier, Esq. of Wirkworth, and had (with younger daughters),

THOMAS, his successor.

GEORGE, of whom presently.

Janette, m. to Sambrooke Adams, Esq. of Sambrooke, Co. Salop, and left a son, GEORGE ADAMS, who eventually inherited the estates of his two maternal uncles, and assumed the surname of ANSON.

Mr. Anson, Sen., d. in 1720, and was s. by his elder son,

THOMAS, who represented Lichfield in Parliament; and at his decease, s. p., bequeathed his property to his nephew, George Adams. The youngest son,

GEORGE ANSON, having early evinced a strong bias to the naval service, was educated suitably for the profession, and appointed, in 1722, Capt. of the Weazle sloop. On the breaking out of the Spanish war, Commodore Anson was appointed to command a fleet of five ships, destined to annoy the enemy in that dangerous and unfrequented sea which lies beyond America, and to attack him in that unexpected quarter with vigour. His departure being unaccountably delayed some months beyond the proper season, he sailed about the middle of Sept., 1740; and toward the vernal equinox, in the most tremendous weather, arrived in the latitude of Cape Horn. He doubled that perilous Cape in March, 1741, after a bad passage of forty days, in which he lost two ships, and arrived off Juan Fernandez in June, with only two ships, besides two attendants on the squadron, and 335 men. He left it in Sept., took some prizes, and burnt Païta; and staid about the coast of America until May, 1742. He then crossed the Southern Ocean, and proceeded with the Centurion only, the other ships having been destroyed in Aug. Having refreshed his crew at Tinian, he sailed in Oct. for China, remained there till the beginning of 1743, waiting for the galleon at the Philippine Islands; met her on the 20th June, and captured her. Having sold the prize in China, he set sail for England, in Dec., 1743, and arrived at Spithead 18 June, 1744, having sailed in a fog through the midst of the French fleet, then cruising in the Channel. Soon after his return he was appointed Rear-Admiral of the Blue, and one of the Lords of the Admiralty. In April, 1745, he was made Rear-Admiral of the White; and in July, 1746, Vice-Admiral of the Blue. In 1747 (13 June), he was elevated to the Peerage, by the title of Lord Anson, Baron of Soberton, in Hants, and the same year appointed Vice-Admiral of the Red. In 1751, his Lordship was constituted First Lord of the Admiralty; and he continued in that high office, with a very brief interval, until his death. This gallant and enterprising seaman is characterized as calm, cool, and steady; but he was known, from the simplicity of his disposition, to have been frequently duped at play, whence it was observed, that although Lord Anson had been round the world, he had never been in it. His celebrated VOYAGE ROUND THE WORLD was composed by Mr. Benjamin Robins, under his own inspection, and few works ever experienced a more favourable reception. Four large impressions were sold off within a year: it has been translated into most of the European languages, and it still sustains its reputation. His Lordship espoused Lady Elizabeth Yorke, dau. of Philip, 1st Earl of Hardwicke, but dying s. p. in 1762, the BARONY OF ANSON became EXTINCT, while his fortune devolved upon his nephew,

GEORGE ADAMS, Esq., who subsequently inherited the estates of his elder uncle, THOMAS, and assumed by sign manual, 30 April, 1773, the surname and arms of ANSON. He likewise succeeded (in 1773) in the Representation of Lichfield. He m. in 1763, Mary, dau. of George-Venables Vernon, 1st Lord Vernon, and had issue,

LYTTELTON.

LYTTELTON, LORD (William-Henry Lyttelton), Baron of Frankley, Co. - i. GEORGE-WILLIAM, b. 31 March, 1817.
- ii. Spencer, b. 19 June, 1818.
- iii. William-Henry, b. 3 April, 1820.
- iv. Caroline-Lavinia.
- v. Lavinia.

His Lordship s. to the honors, as 3rd Baron, at the decease of his half-brother, 12 Nov., 1828.

Lineage.

The family of Lyttelton has been of long standing in the Co. of Worcester, and had considerable possessions in the vale of Evesham, particularly at South Lyttelton, whence the name has probably been assumed, in the beginning of the 13th century.

THOMAS DE LUTTELTON, about the 19th year of HENRY III., m. Emma, only dau. and heir of Sir Simon de Frankley, Knt., by whom he had an only dau., Emma, who m. Augerus de Tatlynton, (which Augerus was disinherited in the 40th year of HENRY III., for not taking upon himself the Order of Knighthood.) Thomas de Lyttelton, m. 2ndly, Anselm, dau. and heir of William Fitzwarren, of Upton, Co. Worcester, one of the Justices Itinerant and Judge of the Common Pleas, 12th HEN. III. and Sheriff of Worcestershire the following year, by whom he left three sons. This Thomas was a considerable benefactor to religious institutions, particularly to the convents of Pershore, and the abbey of Evesham. He was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

EDMUND DE LUTTELTON, who resided at Coulesdon, and had lands at Nauntou, in Worcestershire, which still continue in possession of a branch of the family of Lyttelton; but, dying without issue, his estates devolved upon his youngest and only surviving brother,

THOMAS DE LUTTELTON, who represented the Co. of

Worcester in Parliament, from 9th EDWARD II. to the 34th EDWARD III., and was s. at his decease by his eldest son.

THOMAS DE LUTTELTON, who recovered the Manor of Frankley, by a writ of right, on failure of issue to his cousin, Thomas de Tatlynton. This Thomas de Lyttelton was Esquire of the Body to three successive Kings, namely, RICHARD II., HENRY IV., and HENRY V.; and was rewarded with several grants of money, timber, &c., from each of those Monarchs, pro bono et gratuito servitio, as expressed in the grants. He d. in the 1st year of HENRY VI., and left an only dau. and heiress,

ELIZABETH DE LUTTELTON, who m. Thomas Westcote, Esq., the King's servant in Court, a gentleman of Devonshire, anciently descended; but she being fair, and of noble spirit (to use the phraseology of Lord Coke), and having large possessions and inheritances from her ancestors, de Lyttelton, and from her mother, the dau. and co-heir of Quartermain, and other ancestors, resolved to continue the honor of her name, and therefore provided, by Westcote's assent, before marriage, that her issue inheritable should be called by the name of Lyttelton. Upon this marriage, Mr. Westcote settled at Frankley, and served the office of Escheator of Worcester 29th HENRY VI. 1450: soon after which he d. leaving four sons and as many daus., and was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS LUTTELTON, (or Lyttelton, as he began to write it,) who, having been brought up to the Bar, was called, in 1454, to the degree of Serjeant-at-Law: and, in the following year, was nominated King's Serjeant, when he rode Justice of the Assize in the Northern Circuit. In 1464, (the 4th year of EDWARD IV.) Mr. Serjeant Lyttelton was appointed one of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas: and the King granted him, at the same time, out of the customs of London, Bristol, and Hull, 110 marks yearly, with the sum of 106s. 10d. for a robe and furs, and 66s. 6d. for a summer robe, called linura. In the 15th year of the same Monarch, his Lordship, with the Prince of Wales, and other persons of distinction, was created a Knight of the Bath. Sir Thomas wrote his celebrated "Treatise on Tenures," after he had ascended the Bench; a book which Lord Coke has characterized "as the ornament of the common law, and the most perfect and absolute work that ever was wrote in any human science." Sir Thomas Lyttelton m. Joan, widow of Sir Philip Chetwind, of Ingestre, Co. Stafford, and dau. and co-heir of Sir William Burley, of Bromscroft Castle, in Shropshire, Knt., by whom he had (with two daus., who d. unm.)

WILLIAM, his successor.

Richard, to whom the Treatise is addressed, and who followed his father's profession. From this gentleman descended the LITTLETONS, of Pillaton Hall, in Staffordshire; which family continued, without interruption, always through Sir Edwards, at first Knights, afterwards Barts, until the death of Sir Edward Lyttelton, Bart. in 1812, when the title became extinct, and the estates passed to (the grandson of his sister, Frances, and her husband, Moreton Walhouse, Esq.) his grand-nephew,

EDWARD-JOHN LITTLETON, Esq. of Teddesley, M.P. for the Co. of Stafford, who was recently elevated to the Peerage as BARON HATHERTON. (See that title, and BURKE's History of the Commoners, Vol. i.)

Thomas, who was seated at Spechley, near Worcester, and was the ancestor of Lord-Keeper Lyttelton, Baron of Mounslow, temp. CAR. I. and of Sir William Lyttelton, Speaker of the House of Commons, temp. WILLIAM III. See BURKE's Extinct Peerage.

His Lordship d. at Frankley, 23 Aug., 1481, and was interred under an altar-tomb, which he had erected in his life-time, on the south-side nave of the Cathedral at Worcester. In his will, which is a curious document, he bequeaths considerable sums for masses to be said for the repose of his own and the souls of his immediate relations. Sir Thomas was s. by his eldest son,

SIR WILLIAM LYTTELTON, of Frankley, who m. 1st. Ellyn, widow of Thomas Fickling, Esq., and dau. and heir of William Walsh, Esq. of Wanlip, in Leicestershire, by whom he had an only daughter,

Joan, who m. Sir John Aston, of Heywood, in Staffordshire, and carried the Manors of Tixhall and Wanlip into the Aston family.

Sir William m. 2ndly, Mary, dau. of William Whittington, Esq. of Pauntley, Co. Gloucester, and dying in 1507, was s. by his only son,

JOHN LYTTLTON, Esq. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Sir Gilbert Talbot, and great-great-grandau. (maternally) of John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster; in right of whom the family of Lyttelton quarters the arms of France and England, within a bordure gobony. Of this marriage, there were seven sons and two daughters. Mr. Lyttelton was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN LYTTLTON, Esq., who d. 17 May, 1532, and was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN LYTTLTON, Knt. This gentleman was granted, by Queen Mary, in 1553, the office of Constable of Dudley Castle, Co. Stafford, with the Rangership of the old and new parks there; and, though adhering to the Catholic religion, he enjoyed the confidence of Queen ELIZABETH, being, during her Majesty's reign, one of the Council of the Marches of Wales, Deputy Lieutenant and Custos Rotulorum of the Co. Worcester, and in the Commission of the Peace for that and the Co. Stafford. He received, too, the honor of Knighthood from Queen ELIZABETH, in 1556, at Kenilworth Castle, when her Majesty honored Dudley, Earl of Leicester, with a visit there. Sir John d. 15 Feb., 1589-90, and was s. by his eldest son,

GILBERT LYTTLTON, Esq., M.P. for the Co. Worcester, 13th and 14th of ELIZABETH, and High Sheriff in the 25th of the same reign. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Humphry Coningsby, Esq. of Nyend-Solers, in Shropshire, and of Hampton Court, Co. Hereford, and dying 1 June, 1590, was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN LYTTLTON, Esq., M.P. for the Co. Worcester, temp. ELIZABETH. This gentleman (to use the words of Sir Francis Bacon) being much respected for his wit and valor, and a Roman Catholic, was courted by Lord Essex and his friends; and in some measure drawn in by Sir Charles Danvers to that conspiracy which cost Essex his head, and Lyttelton his estate: for he was tried and convicted of high-treason at the Queen's Bench Bar, 20 Feb., 1600-1; and died in prison in the July following; (the execution of the penalty regarding life being averted, through the interest of Sir Walter Raleigh.) Mr. Lyttelton m. Muriel, dau. of Sir Thomas Bromley, Knt., and left issue, three sons and five daughters. Mrs. Lyttelton obtained, upon the accession of JAMES I., a reversal of the attainder of her husband, and a grant, by letters patent, of the whole of his estate. She was a person of great prudence, and discharged debts, contracted by her husband and his father, to the amount of £9,000, although she was remarkable for benevolence and hospitality. This lady survived Mr. Lyttelton twenty-eight years, and brought up her children in the reformed religion. The eldest son,

SIR THOMAS LYTTLTON, Knt., represented the Co. Worcester in Parliament, and served the office of Sheriff of that shire in 1613. He was created a Bart. 18 July, 1618. This gentleman was an active adherent of Royalty during the Civil Wars, and suffered imprisonment in the Tower, in consequence. Sir Thomas m. to royalty, and was imprisoned in the Tower of London for seventeen months. The fidelity of the family appears to have been fully appreciated by the following letter, addressed to Sir Henry, in the exiled Monarch's own hand, a short time before his restoration.

"To Sir Henry Lyttelton, I am well informed how much and how often you have suffered for me, and how much I am beholding to all your relations, and you may be very sure I have the sense of it that I ought to have, of which you shall one day have evidence; in the mean time, cherish your health, and prepare for better times, which we shall enjoy together. MACDONALD.

MACDONALD, BARON (Godfrey-William-Wentworth Bosville-Macdonald), of Slate, Co. Antrim, in the Peerage of Ireland, and a Bart. of Nova Scotia; b. 16 March, 1809; s. as 4th Baron and 11th Bart., on the demise of his father, 13 Oct., 1832.

Lineage.

This nobleman is the Representative of the Lords of the Isles, princes of the ancient Celtic race, who, for several generations, held themselves independent of the Scottish monarchy.

SOMERLED, Thane of Argyll, who acquired the Western Islands by his marriage with Effrica, or Rachel, dau. of OLAVUS the Swarthy, King of Man, and grandau. of Harald Harfager, King of Denmark, assumed the designation of King of the Isles. This predatory chief was killed at Renfrew, in 1164, in an unsuccessful attempt to invade Scotland, and was s. by his son,

REGINALD, who was designed King of Man and the Isles. This chief was received under the protection of King JOHN of England, in 1205, and from him we pass to his descendant,

ANGUS, Lord of the Isles, who, after King ROBERT BRUCE was defeated by the English, in 1306, afforded him an asylum in his castle of Dunavarty. The descendant of this Angus,

DONALD, Lord of the Isles, entered into a treaty with

RICHARD II. in 1338, on the footing of a sovereign prince. He m. Lady Margaret Lesly, only dau. of Euphemia, COUNTESS OF ROSS, by Sir Walter Lesly, in her right, Earl of Ross, and he subsequently took up arms to establish his right to that Earldom. He was defeated, however, or, more correctly speaking, weakened, by the Earl of Marr, who engaged him at HARLOW, near Aberdeen, 24 July, 1411. The battle was bloody and obstinate, but indecisive. On the side of Donald, the chiefs of Macintosh and Maclean fell, with about nine hundred, while Marr lost about five hundred, amongst whom were some persons of rank. The Lord of the Isles was forced to retire: and the Regent Duke of Albany marched to and took the castle of Dingwall. Eventually Donald was compelled to abandon his pretensions to the Earldom, to make personal submission, and to give oaths and hostages for indemnification and future observance of peace. He was s. by his son, ALEXANDER, Lord of the Isles. This chief was defeated by JAMES I., at Lochabar, 23 June, 1429, and reduced to the most abject submission. In absolute despair, the Lord of the Isles sent an embassy to sue for peace, which being refused, he resolved to throw himself upon the King's mercy. For that purpose he came privately to Edinburgh, and on the 27 Aug., 1429, attired only in his shirt and drawers presented his sword to the King upon his knees, before the high altar of Holyrood Church, in presence of the Queen and Nobles. He m. Elizabeth, only dau. of Alexander Seton, Lord of Gordon and Huntley, and was s. by his son,

JOHN, 11th Earl of Ross, and Lord of the Isles. This nobleman having entered into a treaty with EDWARD IV. of England, in 1462, was deemed a traitor to his liege Sovereign of Scotland, and was forced to surrender the EARLDOM OF ROSS, which was unalienably annexed to the Crown, by Act of Parliament, 10 July, 1476. He d. in 1498, without legitimate issue, when the line was continued by his brother,

HUGH OF THE ISLES, whose great-grandson,

DONALD, styling himself Lord of the Isles, but being refused the dignity by JAMES V. took up arms to support his pretensions, and laid siege to the castle of Elendounan. From the battlements of which he was shot dead with an arrow in 1537, leaving a son,

DONALD, OF THE ISLES, commonly called "Donald Gorme Macdonald of Slate." This personage was restored by Queen MARY of Scotland to the lands of Slate, forfeited by his father, and took her Majesty's part in the civil war of 1567. He d. in 1585, and was s. by his eldest son,

DONALD MAC DONALD, of Slate, who d. s. p. in 1616, and was s. by his nephew,

DONALD MAC DONALD, of Slate, who was created by CHARLES I. a Bart. of Nova Scotia, 14 July, 1625; with a special clause of precedence, placing him second of that order in the kingdom of Scotland. Sir Donald arrayed himself, of course, under the Royal banner at the breaking out of the civil war, but died within four years, anno 1641. He m. Janet (commonly called "Fair Janet"), second dau. of Kenneth, 1st Lord Mackenzie, of Kintail, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JAMES MACDONALD, of Slate, who joined the Marquess of Montrose, in 1645, and sent some of his men to the assistance of CHARLES II., when he marched into England, in 1651. He m. 1st, Margaret, only dau. of Sir Roderick Mackenzie, of Tarmachan, and had four sons and two daughters. He espoused 2ndly, Mary, eldest dau. of John Macleod, of Macleod, and had another son, John, of Blackney. Sir James d. 8 Dec., 1678, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR DONALD MAC DONALD, who m. Lady Mary Douglas, 2nd dau. of Thomas, 3rd Earl of Morton, and dying in 1695, was s. by his son (he left four daus. besides),

SIR DONALD MAC DONALD, who, joining in the rebellion of 1715, was attainted, and d. in 1718. He was s. by his son,

SIR DONALD MAC DONALD, at whose decease, nam., in 1720, the baronetcy reverted to his uncle,

SIR JAMES MAC DONALD, designated of Oransay, who m. 1st, Janet, dau. of Alexander Macleod, of Grishernish, and had issue,

After his return from India, he was appointed Chief of the Medical Department on the expedition to Walcheren; and his services upon that unfortunate occasion are honorably noticed in many of the official despatches. In 1811, he joined the Army of the Duke of Wellington in the Peninsula; and there his services met the approbation of his great Commander, and were frequently mentioned in his Grace's despatches, particularly in those detailing the surrender of Badajoz, and the victory of Victoria. For all these eminent services, Mr. M'Grigor at the conclusion of the war received the honor of Knighthood, and obtained permission to wear the decorations of the Portuguese Order of a Knight-Commander of the Tower and Sword, conferred upon him by the King of Portugal. SIR GEORGE, 2nd Baronet, who, for the good services he had rendered to CHARLES II. during his Majesty's exile, and the restoration, was made by that monarch one of the Judges of Session, Clerk-Register, sworn of the Privy-Council, and constituted Justice-General. His lordship was elevated to the Peerage by JAMES II. 15 April, 1685, in the dignities of Lord Macleod and Castlehaven, and Viscount of Tarbat. At the revolution he went up to Court, and was well received by WILLIAM; but his arbitrary proceedings in the former reigns had rendered him so unpopular in Scotland, that his name was not included in the new Commission of Lords of Session, 1 Nov., 1689. He was however restored to his office of Lord Clerk Register, in 1692, from which he retired in four years afterwards upon a pension of £400 per annum. On the accession of Queen ANNE, Lord Tarbat was sent for to Court, by letters patent, dated 1 Jan., 1703, Lord Macleod and Castlehaven, Viscount of Tarbat, and EARL OF CROMARTY, himself and his heirs male and of entail. He was at the same time appointed one of the principal Secretaries of State, which office he soon after, on account of his great age, exchanged for that of Lord-Justice-General, and finally retired in 1710, after zealously promoting the union by his parliamentary influence, as well as his writings. His Lordship m. 1st, Anne, dau. of Sir James Sinclair, of Mey, Bart., by whom he had, with four daus., three sons:

1. JOHN, who succeeded as 2nd Earl of Cromarty, and was succeeded himself by his eldest son GEORGE, 3rd Earl, which latter nobleman, and his eldest son, Lord M'Leod, having taken an active part in the rebellion of 1745, and being both made prisoners in the field, were tried, convicted, and attainted of high treason, but becoming objects of Royal clemency, their lives were spared and their freedom restored. The honors, however, became forfeited, while the Earl was permitted to reside in England, and his son obtained leave, in 1750, to accept a commission in the Swedish service, of which kingdom he was created Count Cromarty, &c. He returned in 1777, raised two battalions of Highlanders, and became Col. of the 71st Foot, with which he served in India, with the local rank of Major-General. His Lordship came home in 1784, when his forfeited estates were restored to him, and he d. in 1789, without issue. The estates* have since passed through co-heirs into other families, and the honors remain under the attainder.

Upon the resignation of his uncle, Lord Prestonhall, he was appointed one of the Senators of the College of Justice, and a Lord of Justiciary.
